Cured After 24 Years of Misery.

MRS LITTLE, residing at the corner of San Pablo avenue and Forty-first street, Oakland, says: "After being under a physician's care for 24 years and taking opiates every night to quiet my nerves and produce sleep, I commenced a few months ago to take half a wine-glass of Dr. Henley's Celery, Beef and Iron each night before retiring. The effect was wonderful and now I have discarded physicians and opiates and am able to sleep soundly every night. In fact I have received new life and vigor, and cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Henley's Celery, Beef and Iron."

This is only one case of several hundred who have been cured and saved from years of misery. This remedy is for sale by all druggists. BE-WARE OF VILE IMITATIONS. Dr. Henley's is the original and only preparation of Celery, Beef and Iron in the market. Ask for

The Stutzman Improved Fruit Evaporators

Are for Sale and on Exhibition at the Storerooms of the

C. W. GIBSON COMPANY,

108, 110 and 112 North Main Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

And orchardists and farmers especially are invited to examine the machines and get Catalogues and prices.

The Stutzman Evaporator is made of galvanized iron and hence is fire-proof. The Trays are wire gauze. There is nothing shoddy in its construction. It is more easily moved about than any other Evaporator in the market. This alone is of great advantage to the fruit dryer. In simplicity of construction and durability it excels, and in cheapness nothing of the kind can compete with it. Made in all sizes, from stove to large factory sizes. jun26

AMERICAN FRUIT EVAPORATOR!

The most practical and reliable Fruit Evaporator made. It gives unobstructed hot air currents ABOVE and BELOW all fruit, thus insuring evenness of drying and no spoiled fruit. Beware of infringements. THE AMERICAN is pre-eminently the fruit-raisers' machine. Its sizes grade from domestic to manufacturing wants. It makes the highest quality of work with ordinary care in handling. There is no need of making anything else. Though we approve a slight use of sulphur, the AMERICAN is specially adapted for highest grade in unbleached work. It places fresh cut fruit first in highest and dryest heat; cures cut surfaces at once and keeps them dry, thereby setting and making permanent the color, and also thereby, as in broiling steaks, securing the highest quality in product. We place our experience in evaporating at the disposal of our customers. In some cases this gratuitous service is of more value than prices paid us for evaporators. Sold by

PLEASURE

The most delightfully located tract as to natural scenery, climate and convenience to city and mountains; on the only good carriage road in the county, and those who know say it is a real pleasure to live in such a location.

PROFIT

Now we do strike you. This tract is (or will be August 1st) connected by steam street with Commercial street Depot. Rapid Transit is the key to all successful suburban residences, and this place will be within 19 minutes of the depot or 18 minutes of the Courthouse.

The difference in TAXES of a home on this tract (it is outside city limits) and one in the city will pay the owner's fare to and from the city during the year. It brings you so near the business center as you would be at "Twelfth street". You can own a lot large enough to keep a cow and chickens, grow some fruit, keep the boys at home off the streets, live at home with your family nights, enjoy life, and make money by it. Think, happy and useful life, and make money by it.

THE PLACE

is HIGHLAND PARK, just four miles from the Courthouse, on the new Los Angeles and San Gabriel Valley Railway, and on the direct road to Pasadena, and must be looked over to be fully appreciated. Lots for sale in any size to suit, at prices that will command attention.

Over 40,000 cases treated by me during the last nineteen years.

In order to show how successfully lung diseases can be cured when properly treated, we give the testimonial of one who is well and favorably known by many of the people of Los Angeles. From Rev. L. R. Fiske, D.D., President Albion College, Albion, Mich., formerly pastor of Central M. E. Church, Detroit, Mich., and editor of the Christian Advocate.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 22, 1877.

DR. WILLIAMS—Dear Sir: I am glad to add my testimony to the efficacy of the treatment my son has received. In the Spring of 1877, my son, then at the age of 18, was suffering from a severe affection of the bronchial tubes and lungs, so as to be compelled to keep his room, and the most of the time his bed. Within the space of two weeks he experienced at least a dozen hemorrhages, from which the ordinary remedies afforded but temporary relief. I applied to you who had lied him with in using medicines, which effected an immediate arrest of the bleeding, and which has never returned since he began the inhalations.

Respectfully, L. R. FISKE.

DISEASES OF THE RECTUM

Female and Chronic Diseases a Specialty.

Rectal Ulcers, Hemorrhoids or Piles Fissure, Fistula in Ano, Pruritus or so-called Itching Piles, Prolapsus Recti Successfully Treated by Dr. A. W. Brinkerhoff's System of Rectal Treatment.

A SURE AND PAINLESS SYSTEM FOR the cure of Hemorrhoids without cutting, ligating, burning, taking medicine or detention from business. No anesthetics used. Over 50,000 operations for piles and not one death. The knife, ligature, cautsour, hot iron and the cruel carbolic treatment are the weapons in use to-day for the treatment of piles.

We can treat you without using any of these barbarities and guarantee a cure in every case.

Thousands die annually from what is called CONSUMPTION, heart, liver, kidney diseases, etc., while the cause is unknown, hidden, never brought to light. We ask the sick and suffering to investigate the cause of the lung bark, affected kidneys, vaginal, womb, urinary, heart, lung, stomach, liver and head troubles; rheumatism, benumbed limbs and blooted abdomen, dyspepsia, biliousness and tendency to malaria, and they will find RECTAL ULCERATION the hidden monster—the bane to human health an' happiness.

The existence of Rectal Ulcers is as old as the race, and surgeons from time to time have written of them, but have been unable to SEE THEM. We have instruments by which the rectum can be clearly and intelligently examined, and without pain or danger to the patient. The invention of these instruments by Dr. A. W. BRINKERHOFF, of Upper Sandusky, Ohio, has opened wide the door to the successful treatment of this malady, and has established the fact, after examining more than twenty thousand patients suffering with all the various complaints found in chronic diseases of both sexes, that Rectal Ulceration existed in every case. With our system of treatment we cure the ulceration, if not too far advanced, and the train of symptoms and misery disappear.

Come and investigate! Our practice is not experimental, our labor not guess work. We know what we see. Charges reasonable.

Office—Temple, Main and New High.

A SUBSCRIPTION for a monument to General Grant has already been started in New York City.

KELLEY has been heard from. He is in Paris. Having learned has whereabouts, the government would do well to cable him the suggestion that "there is no place like home."

GENERAL GRANT'S funeral will take place in New York on Saturday, August 8th. The remains will be taken from Mount McGregor Tuesday, August 4th, and will lie in state successively at Albany, Washington and New York City.

THERE is "hair pulling," in a figurative sense, over the marriage of Princess Beatrice. It is said that no invitation was issued to Queen Victoria's eldest daughter, and that, moreover, the Prince and Princess of Wales and the Duke and Duchess of Edinburg accorded but cold courtesy to the wedding.

IT appears that General Grant's work on his memoirs was fully completed before his malady incapacitated him for further writing. A note from General Grant to his physician, Dr. Douglas, now brought to light for the first time, shows the General's satisfaction that he was permitted to finish his task. The publisher of the memoirs promises that the first volume shall appear the first of December, and the second volume in March. An immense sale is insured in America, and the publisher is to leave for Europe, August 1st, to make arrangements for the publication of the work in England, France, Germany and perhaps other foreign countries. It is estimated that Mrs. Grant's share of the proceeds will be from $300,000 to $400,000. This will place her in independent circumstances. Many a great man has lived and died without accomplishing so much as General Grant did after he was stricken with his fatal malady.

THE San Francisco Chronicle, in the issuance of its Grant memorial number last Thursday morning, acquitted itself of one of the greatest feats of newspaper enterprise that the Pacific Coast has ever witnessed. The definite announcement of General Grant's death did not arrive until about half past five o'clock Thursday morning, it should be remembered, yet the Chronicle published twenty-nine columns of matter devoted to the life and services of General Grant, aside from the regular telegraphic reports, occupying two columns more. What time this immense double number of the Chronicle made its appearance we have no means of knowing; but it probably came out within two hours of the telegraphic announcement of the death. If we may be pardoned for speculating as to a newspaper secret, we will say that the Chronicle must have had its memorial matter standing in type, or stereotyped, awaiting the event—a judicious thing to do, of course.

THE pseudo alliance between the English Conservatives and the Parnellites has been quickly broken. In the House of Commons, Thursday, the government received an ignominious defeat on a clause of the Medical Relief bill, the vote standing 180 to 130. This, of course, does not mean a dissolution of the government, as would be the case with a defeat in both branches of Parliament, but it is bad enough, considering that the new ministry has been in power only a month. A few more backsets like this would undoubtedly bring about a speedy dissolution. The Conservative lease of power at the outset was very uncertain, and now that the Parnellites have shown a tendency to kick in the traces, the government hold is precarious indeed. News comes in this morning's dispatches that Gladstone's voice has given out by reason of a serious catarrhal affection, and that he will, therefore, be unable to take part in the approaching campaign. If this be so, it will militate greatly in favor of the Conservatives. Perhaps they will be able to strengthen themselves in an appeal to the people.

A High-toned Scandal.

COPENHAGEN, July 24.—Conservative journals refer to a public scandal involving a professor in the University, the President of a leading scientific society, the most eminent author in Denmark, several wealthy merchants, and some members of the magistracy. They are accused of having criminal intercourse with young girls. Ten culprits have been arrested and two committed suicide. The exposure resulted from an attempt to extort money, which was resisted.

Tobacco Factory Burned.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The nine-story snuff and tobacco factory of S. P. Lillienthal was gutted by fire to-night. During the conflagration an explosion from an unknown cause blew out several doors and windows and injured six firemen. John Driscoll was the worst hurt, receiving a compound fracture of the right leg and other wounds. The loss is estimated at $250,000.

An American Congressman in Ireland.

DUBLIN, July 24.—General Patrick A. Collins, member of the United States Congress, arrived to-day and was welcomed by the Mayor and other Nationalists. General Collins declined a banquet tendered him by Mayor Dillon and others. At the invitation of Secretary Harrison, he will attend a meeting of the Irish National League next Tuesday.

"I Have No Friends."

MODESTO, July 24.—At 8:15 this evening Dora Montgomery, aged 17, living on C. M. Stetson's ranch, seven miles from here, committed suicide by shooting herself in the left breast with a Winchester rifle, dying instantly. She left a note, in which she said, "Good-bye to all. I have no friends." She leaves a mother and brother. Her brother is a rancher two miles from here.

Three Shipwrecks Seen.

CONCEPCION, via Galveston, July 24.—The captain of the schooner Marie reports signalling three vessels off Cape Horn, completely dismasted, and that a steamer, supposed to be English, succeeded in saving one. He is ignorant of the fate or names of the others.

Crop Failure and Suicide.

STOCKTON, July 24.—Frank B. Chwz, a well-known nurseryman of this city, committed suicide last night by cutting his throat with a butcher knife. His wheat crop failed this year, and the news made him despondent. He was an unmarried man.

Suicide in Jail.

SUISUN, Cal., July 24.—George Maxwell, an inmate of the county jail at Fairfield, committed suicide this afternoon by taking a dose of strychnine. Despondency was the cause of his deed.

Withdrawn from Tonquin.

PARIS, July 24.—The Chinese government has informed the French Ambassador at Pekin that the chief Black Flags have been withdrawn from Tonquin.

Will Not Give Up Zulikar.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 24.—The official paper says it is authorized to state that Russia will not renounce her claims to Zulikar Pass.

THE DEAD HERO.

Arrangements Effected for the Funeral.

AUGUST 8TH SET FOR THE INTERMENT.

Central Park, New York, the Place of Burial—General Hancock to Have Charge of the Obsequies.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 24.—The one condition imposed by General Grant before he died upon those who should decide the place of his burial is the cause of delay in fixing the spot for sepulchre. Mayor Grace's chief clerk, Mr. Turner, is here and has been in consultation with Colonel Fred Grant. He has formally urged the acceptance of a burial spot in any one of the parks of New York City. There is a strong leaning in the family of General Grant that the New York proposition is one that would have gratified the General, but the condition that Mrs. Grant might be buried beside the General is one that the Mayor's representatives cannot accede to, and telegraphic communication is now going on between here and New York on that point. The President's messenger at 11 o'clock had not arrived, and when he does come and presents an invitation from the Soldiers' Home it is not unlikely that the condition of General Grant relative to Mrs. Grant being buried beside him will also then cause some delay, pending a conference. The other invitation from the city of Springfield, Ills., is not being seriously considered as yet, though before his death General Grant said of the three States in which he would desire to be buried, Illinois was one.

THE ADJUTANT GENERAL WITH A MESSAGE.

MOUNT MCGREGOR, July 24.—Adjutant General Drum arrived on the mountain this evening. He was the bearer of a letter from President Cleveland to Mrs. Grant, tendering a lot in the Soldiers' Home grounds as a burial place for the dead General if it should meet the views of the family. In conversation General Drum said: "I have to-day transmitted to General Hancock an order from the Secretary of War directing General Hancock to take entire charge of the military arrangements of General Grant's funeral from the present to the day of burial, and all the military of any kind here will be under his direction, and to him application must be made by all military organizations that may desire to take part in the obsequies."

THE BURIAL PLACE FIXED.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 24—4 p. m.—At this moment it has been finally decided to bury General Grant in Central Park, New York City, one week from Tuesday next.

DETERMINED THE QUESTION OF BURIAL.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 24.—This afternoon Mr. Turner, Mayor Grace's chief clerk, received a message which determined the question of Grant's burial-place in favor of Central Park, New York. It was as follows: "Your two telegrams just to hand and understood. The matter is definitely settled that General Grant's body is to be interred here. We cannot take any more definite action in regard to the matter of Mrs. Grant until a later date. The faith of the President of the Board of Aldermen, and my own, is pledged that we will see, when a little time has passed away, that the wishes of the family are gratified by a formal resolution of the Board. Answer immediately so I may appoint a committee to make my quota for the Grant National monument. (Signed.) W. T. GRACE."

Upon receipt of Mayor Grace's telegram Mr. Turner repaired at once to the cottage where a conference was held with Colonel Fred Grant. The Colonel read the Mayor's dispatch and retained it. At the close of the conference Colonel Grant assured the Mayor's representative that he and the family thus formally accepted the tender of a burial place for General Grant and Mrs. Grant in Central Park, New York City, and that he and the family would now proceed with all funeral arrangements with reference to the above conclusion. The Mayor's message was then telegraphed to Mayor Grace the result of his mission.

THE ACCEPTANCE OF NEW YORK'S OFFER.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Mayor Grace today received the following dispatch from his Private Secretary, at Mt. McGregor, in regard to the offer made by the city, of a place of burial in one of the parks belonging to the city: "Colonel Grant instructs me to say that, upon the condition that the wish of the General that a place be reserved beside him for Mrs. Grant, he and the family definitely accepts. Colonel Grant, therefore, at liberty to take action upon this information which is final. The family prefer Central Park."

REMARKS AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Regret is almost universal here that Central Park, New York, has been selected as the last resting place for the remains of General Grant. The Post says editorially: "There is no national character to Central Park, and the family, as a matter of natural reverence should be buried there." The Republic is equally emphatic in its expression of opinion that General Grant should be buried here, and says there is some talk of the Grand Army sending a formal protest to Colonel Grant upon the subject. General Hardcastle, Commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, said to-night he was very sorry for the selection, but that 10,000 Grand Army men would attend the funeral, wherever it takes place. He will issue a general order to-morrow.

REGRETS AT SPRINGFIELD.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 24.—The Republican will say to-morrow: The country will share the sentiment of the people of Washington in regard to the great Captain's burial place. The fitting spot for the rest of the nation's hero is the nation's capital. New York has shown a greed after one more show for the tax-paying populace, and the family of Grant have weakly and hastily yielded to it without waiting to hear the voice of wiser friends and of their countrymen.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE FUNERAL.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 24.—The programme of the funeral arrangements is as here given: The remains will lie quietly at the cottage, in the room where the General died, until a week from Tuesday afternoon next, when the funeral cortege will be placed on a special train and conveyed directly and without demonstration to Albany, reaching there in the evening. The remains will be borne to the Capitol building, where they will lie in state until Wednesday noon. Thence the dead General will be conveyed by the funeral train to New York, arriving there Wednesday evening. The body will then be conveyed to the City Hall, where it will remain in state until Saturday, when it will be borne to its last resting place in Central Park.

TIME TABLE FOR THE FUNERAL TRAIN.

Mr. W. J. Arkell has arranged the following time table for the removal of the remains from Mt. McGregor: At 1 p. m. August 4, arrive at Saratoga; at 2 p. m. leave Saratoga; at 5:30 p. m. arrive at Albany; leave Albany at 12 o'clock noon Wednesday, August 5th, and arrive about 4:30 in New York. In the interval, from 5:30 p. m. Tuesday to noon Wednesday, August 5th, the remains will lie in state in the Capitol, and from the time of arrival in New York, Wednesday afternoon, until Saturday, August 8th, the body will lie in state at the City Hall. The public obsequies will take place Saturday, at such time as the civic authorities may arrange, and the interment will then follow in Central Park.

TO BE BURIED WITH NATIONAL HONORS.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—President Cleveland was to-night advised by telegram from Adjutant General Drum at Mt. McGregor that he delivered the President's letter to Mrs. Grant, and that she and the other members of the family expressed a desire to have General Grant buried with national honors. Their wishes will be respected and the ceremonies will take place as already indicated in the press dispatches. President Cleveland and members of the Cabinet will attend the funeral, in New York, Saturday, August 8th.

A CIRCULAR FROM SECRETARY BAYARD.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Secretary Bayard has addressed a circular to all diplomatic and consular offices of the United States, inviting attention to the presidential proclamation announcing the death of General Grant. Bayard directs that the flags of the offices be displayed at half mast on the reception of the circular, and that symbols of mourning be assumed for thirty days.

A SENATORIAL COMMITTEE APPOINTED.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Sergeant-at-Arms Canady, of the Senate, to-day received the following dispatch from St. Clair Springs, Mich.:

"It is proper that the Senate of the United States shall participate with other departments of the government and with the people in doing honor to the memory of General Grant. I therefore designate the following Senators to represent that body in connection with the funeral ceremonies: Justin Morrill, John Sherman, John A. Logan, J. D. Cameron, Wade Hampton, W. M. Ranson, Joseph E. Brown, J. G. Harris and John F. Miller, of California. You will notify them immediately, and you are requested to officially accompany them.

(Signed) "THOS. A. HENDRICKS,
"Vice President."

Of the Senators named by the Vice-President, Miller is in Alaska, Cameron in Montana and Harris and Brown out of the reach of the telegraph. The remaining Senators were notified by telegraph to-night, and the Vice-President was informed of the absence of the others and asked to name substitutes. This will probably be done to-morrow. Although the Vice-President named only nine Senators, it is probable that a full delegation of twelve will be present at the funeral.

A MEMORIAL ADDRESS FROM BUTLER.

LOWELL, Mass., July 24.—General B. F. Butler has accepted an invitation to deliver the oration at the memorial services to be held in honor of General Grant; date not yet fixed.

GENERAL SHERMAN SUMMONED.

MOUNT MCGREGOR, July 24.—General Sherman, now enroute East from Minnesota, will find awaiting at New York a message requesting his presence here at his earliest convenience. General John A. Logan will also doubtless attend the remains from here to New York.

THE CANOPY.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The canopy to be used above General Grant's coffin was sent to Saratoga. It was last used at the funeral of Bishop Simpson at Philadelphia. It consists of four heavily carved and heavy posts with black broadcloth and damask silk curtains, looped with silk and chenille tassels.

THE EMBALMING.

The embalming will be completed today. The cheeks and face by the process made use of have been made to assume their natural appearance and lines have been filled out, and the expression of the face is now one of peace and rest.

On Monday the remains will be placed in a casket and near relatives will be permitted to view them.

Señor Romero is with the family today, as are also Dr. Newman and wife.

General Carr paid his respects at the cottage this morning.

THE HOUSE TO BE DRAPPED.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 24.—The disposition of the cottage in which General Grant died rests with Joseph W. Drexel, and the Associated Press is authorized to announce that the cottage will never again be occupied by any family or person. Mr. Drexel will, in due time, present it to the State or National Government. The house will be presented intact.

G. A. R. AND LEGION.

Preparations Made to Honor Their Dead Comrade.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 24.—There will be over two hundred representatives of the Grand Army posts from various parts of the country here to-morrow. They will camp in tents pitched on the mountain, and will take their meals on the hotel verands.

LOYAL LEGION OF HONOR.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The board of officers of the Grand Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, at their headquarters at Philadelphia, have notified the New York commandery that, upon the action of the latter with respect to the funeral of its late Commander, General Grant, being communicated to them, they will convene the different commanderies throughout the Union to observe the proper order for participation in the obsequies and mourning. The following telegram was received by New York Commandery this afternoon:

General C. A. Carleton: California Commandery mourns the bereavement which has deprived New York of its Commander and the Loyal Legion of its grandest and best beloved companion.

(Signed.) W. L. ELLIOTT,
Commander.

THE OHIO LEGION.

CINCINNATI, July 24.—The Ohio Commandery of the Loyal Legion to-night adopted a resolution on the death of General Grant, Commander of the New York Commandery, and authorized its commander, Ex-President Hayes, to appoint a delegation to attend with himself the funeral.

NEW YORK CITY.

The Board of Aldermen in Session —Resolutions.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The Board of Aldermen met to-day. Mayor Grace sent in a communication to them, calling their attention officially to the death of General Grant and quoting his letter of yesterday to Mrs. Grant and the answer from Col. Fred. Grant. Appropriate resolutions were then offered. The resolutions extend sympathy to the family and authorize the proper authorities to offer semulchre for the body of General Grant in any of the public parks in this city which the family of the deceased may select, and say that the City Hall will be draped and placed at the disposal of the family of the deceased for the reception of the remains. The family's committee to make necessary preparations is provided for in the resolutions.

A communication was read from Clark Turner, who had been despatched to Mt. McGregor to confer with the family of General Grant in relation to his sepulchre in Central Park upon the city. It stated that it was likely the proposition would be accepted.

A resolution was adopted empowering the Mayor, in case the proposition is accepted, to appoint a committee to collect contributions from the people towards a national monument.

The Stock Exchange Committee to-day reported appropriate resolutions, a copy of which was ordered sent to the General's family.

THE TRUST FUND.

Status of the Old Movement for General Grant.

CHICAGO, July 24.—The Tribune will publish to-morrow a statement of the present status of the trust fund raised by citizens of New York, for General Grant, several years ago. After telling how at the suggestion of the late Governor Morgan, $180,000 of the fund was invested in Wabash railroad first-mortgage 7 per cent. bonds, which were then considered as good as government bonds, Governor Morgan guaranteeing them, and undertaking to make both principal and interest good out of his own private fortune in case the interest should be defaulted for six months, the Tribune says that just about the moment when an almost impossible contingency will probably become a fact within a few days. On account of the interest on the bonds in question will be six months in arrears, and it is probable that Governor Morgan's executors will, in accordance with his guarantee, pay over to the trustees of the fund the principal and interest. Only one question remains to be determined. It will be suggested that if the executors of the Morgan estate lend to the railroad the money wherewith to pay the interest on the bonds held in trust for General Grant and his family there would technically be no default, and therefore the Morgan estate would not be liable for the principal. Whatever course Governor

A Monument to General Grant.

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: The nation's cherished idol is dead. Now, while the body of General Grant, the Union's foremost soldier and first citizen, is lying mute, awaiting solemn sepulter at the hands of his grateful countrymen, should not the question of erecting a monument to commemorate his great virtues and achievements be considered and acted upon? Should not the matter be taken up at once? I think so. Let Los Angeles be not behind the rest of the country, which, without doubt, is already preparing to move in the matter, if we but knew it. Will you not give this suggestion the weight of your approval and suggest a plan of action? The Republic is not ungrateful: let us here on the Pacific Coast be ready to co-operate heartily in a patriotic task which the countryman of the illustrious soldier and citizen will be sure to take up and carry through to successful completion. Yours truly,

HENRY B. SARGENT.

We approve this excellent and timely suggestion, and propose that a popular subscription be started in Los Angeles, without delay, for the purpose indicated. Let the individual contributions be in small amounts, in order that the subscription shall be kept a truly popular one, in which the whole people may take part.

The TIMES will be glad to help forward the patriotic work here outlined. The movement, we have no doubt, will become national, if committed to the people's hands.

A Place of Sepulchre.

The honor of supplying a burial place for the remains of General Grant is coveted by three places—New York City, Washington and Springfield, Ill. Each has valid claims for the distinction, and each has made a tender to the family of the dead General. New York City offers a spot in any one of her public parks; but the difficulty in the way of accepting this offer is that a burial place for only the remains of General Grant is meant. One of the last wishes expressed by the dying soldier—and one which will stand as an enduring monument to his grandness of heart and his thoughtfulness for others—was that he should be buried where, in the course of nature, his wife might rest by his side. This request will undoubtedly be carried out, and, unless the New York tender is extended to comprehend also a place of sepulchre for Mrs. Grant, it will doubtless be declined.

Perhaps it is better, after all, that the nation's hero should be buried on national ground. The site in the grounds of the Soldiers' Home is the summit of a beautiful knoll which commands a view of Washington city, the Potomac river and the surrounding country. We are inclined to agree with General Sheridan in the hope that the family may accept the offer of the Soldiers' Home site, "so that General Grant's ashes may rest near the Capitol of the Nation, guarded by the veterans of the war, in which h's greatest honors were won." There is something democratic in the idea also, in burying the chieftain where his soldiers have already found sepulchre. Were the wishes of the dead General known, it seems as though, with his simple tastes and inclinations, he must have favored this place.

—Since the above was written, Central Park, New York, has been selected as the place of sepulture, Mayor Grace pledging himself to see that proper legislation is enacted to allow the interment of Mrs. Grant beside her husband. It remains to be seen whether the country at large will not experience a sense of disappointment in the place of burial selected.

"The question of a man's military service entered into the consideration of nearly every applicant for every office and was given much weight." So says President Cleveland in reply to General Burdette and a committee from the Grand Army of the Republic. Very true, Cleveland's administration has been very careful as to examining into applicant's military service, but it was to ascertain if he had served faithfully in the rebel ranks. In that case it "was given much weight," and the rebel soldier got the office, and the "offensive partisan," i. e., the Union soldier, had to vacate.

THE Kansas City Journal asserts that, as unseworthy as Secretary Whitney claims the Dolphin is, it is strongly suspected that he hopes to sail past Grover Cleveland in her in the race for the next Democratic nomination for President. As absurd as Mr. Whitney's aspiration or ambition may appear to be, it is emphatically asserted that no member of the administration hears the buzz of the presidential bee as strong as does the Secretary of the Navy.

THE long and hotly contested suit of Bettner vs. The City of Riverside has at last been decided by the San Bernardino Superior Court, affirming the validity of Riverside's incorporation. The orange-grove city can now, with full confidence, assert its claim to being one of the largest on the American continent. It is about two miles broad, and seventeen miles long.

THE VICTOR OF APPOMATTOX.

The Scene at Lee's Surrender—Jubal Early's Speech.

Springfield (Mass.) Republican.]

General Jubal A. Early has written a letter to deny that General Grant refused to receive the sword of General R. E. Lee at the surrender at Appomattox. He recalls the express terms of the capitulation, by which all officers of Lee's army were to retain their side arms, private horses, and other personal property. Early says the correspondence between Generals Grant and Lee "rebuts the idea that Lee ever contemplated the idea of making an unconditional surrender of his army, or that he was indebted to the magnanimity of General Grant for the terms of the surrender." This is extremely silly business for Early, who would have made a gratuitous ass of himself in writing of it at any time, but, writing at this particular time, makes himself something far lower. He knows that Lee would have been obliged to accept any terms Grant had chosen to propose, and that the notion he alleges Lee to have entertained of cutting his way through or perishing in the attempt belongs to dime-novel talk. Grant gave Lee honorable terms of surrender; it was wise and reasonable to do so, and if Early does not choose to consider it magnanimous, of what consequence is his opinion? As to the question of Lee tendering his sword and Grant's refusing to receive it—the story is probably an invention of some ornate letter-writer. General Grant's account of the meeting with Lee says nothing of it. He represents Lee as confronting him in a full suit of gray and all the insignia of his rank about him, "and at his side the splendid sword which had been given by him by the State of Virginia," while he himself was in his campaign clothes, covered with dust and mud. Early is really not worth considering.

Early Contradicted by a Southern Journal.

Charleston News and Courier.]

"We take issue with 'Old Jubal' when he asserts that the Grant-Lee correspondence rebuts the idea that Lee 'was indebted to the magnanimity of Grant in the terms of surrender.' There can be little question that Grant had the poor remnant of Confederate army absolutely in his power: there can be no question that Grant himself was convinced that such was the case. Even supposing that he knew everything that was passing in Lee's mind, and that he believed resistance or unconditional surrender would result in mad resistance on the part of the Confederates, even then the offer of honorable terms was an act of the greatest magnanimity. Grant recognized Lee as an honorable foe, and, the fight being over, like a true soldier, he sold out his right hand to him. If the whole North had been actuated by the spirit that actuated Grant at that moment, reconciliation would have come twenty years sooner. Yet, Grant was magnanimous, General Early to the contrary, notwithstanding. While the old soldier lies gasping in his last struggle with the foe who overcomes all, the South forgets many things. She remembers only Grant the Generous, Grant the Victor at Appomattox."

A Grand Natural Gentleman.

WHAT GEN. HENRY PIERCE SAYS—FALSE STATEMENTS CORRECTED.

To the Editor of the Evening Star.]

The interview of General Beale in the Star, correctly mentioning some qualifications of General Grant, brings to my recollection that, in shameless disregard of truth, my name has been used at dinner parties as authority for personal reminiscences of the General at times prior to the Rebellion. The only true part of what amused the tables is that I was of the Fourth Infantry when Grant joined it, and that we served together in that regiment till the close of the Mexican war in cordial friendship, and subsequently met in the street at St. Louis for only one moment, and that a very satisfactory one to remember. Nothing else in the anecdote which referred to the meeting in St. Louis had any foundation in fact or truth or utterance of mine. The part of it which I omit is too contemptible to repeat here, and though I have denied it as effectually as I could, otherwise, I have never done so in print. I should therefore, as it seems proper at this time, to give a reminiscence of the General in time prior to the Rebellion such as will be an effectual denial that I can be authority for anything inimical to him or disagreeable for his ear to hear.

In those days I met him at balls, parties, bouts, routs, dinners and suppers—public and private—drinking places, card parties, bull fights, horse races, theaters, balles, fandangos, churches, in peace, in war, in the industrious labor of preparation and the sanguine possession of the thickest of the fight. In all of them I saw but one kind of Grant. I saw him clated with success and festivity, downcast with disaster and regret, in the most engaging and fullest times the earth affords, under the influence of every human emotion. Every time I saw the same identity, everywhere the same characteristics. I never saw him but he was thoroughly, cleverly, entirely self-possessed and proper to himself in word, in act, in manner, in appearance. The effect of living in such association with him the length of time I did, was to give me the idea of a persistent tone of uniform self-management without even an interruption to an apparent singleness of purpose utterly devoid of guile; of one who never did anything low or small, or which, when correctly delineated, would not harmonize with the delineation of the most upright and honorable personal character of a gentleman of good taste. When I say gentleman, I do not mean a great Christian gentleman like Leo X, but a grand, natural gentleman like the Vicar of Wakefield. I conclude by saying that I would be most happy to be cross-questioned on this, under oath.

HENRY PIERCE,
Brigadier-General by Brevet U. S. Army.

Grant.

[Impromptu.]

Ah, why do not the wires break, and the very lightnings quiver,
With the sadness of the tidings that they bear—
With the sorrow of the message that they're flashing everywhere,
From sea to sea, from northern lake to river,
And to the sunny Southland, broad and fair?

Alas! how the Nation's heart bleeds, and its sons their heads are bowing,
As the saddened wail is echoed to the sky,
As from lip to lip the mournful tidings fly,
Like a crushing tidal billow flowing,
Or's sudden smiting arrow from the sky.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

[This is the TIMES-MIRROR'S Public Forum. Those who would stand thereon must first give the editor their real names and be responsible for their opinions and statements.]

That "Ohio Idea."

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: That "Ohio Idea," published in your editorial columns yesterday, must have been prompted by an Ohio brain, if not written by an Ohio hand. Why so? Because Ohioans are always to the front. If they do not push themselves forward somebody else is doing it for them. How else would the Buckeye State have had such an array of Presidents as Harrison, Hayes, Grant and Garfield, with the fair prospect for the next in the person of the great statesman, Sherman?

But politics aside, Ohio is a great State, and her people are intelligent enough, and shrewd enough, to be enterprising; hence they have found their way in large numbers to this far distant but prosperous State; and I find them here in Los Angeles at every turn of its many crooked streets. Although I have been here but a few weeks I have met a goodly number from my own city, and I have no doubt there are many others whom I would be glad to know. And, if they are like other Los Angeleños, I suspect they might like to know me, especially if they have any vacant lots to sell! It is not a little remarkable how eagerly, in this wide-awake city, acquaintanceship is cultivated on the part of all such! In this respect, as well as in other and more genial ways, a meeting and organization of late citizens of Ohio is desirable.

Bad Condition of Temple Street.

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: An item in your paper of to-day mentions the bad state of Main street between Wilmington and Jefferson. If it is worse than Temple street, then it must indeed be bad. The apologies for water pipes are in a chronic state of burst. And in consequence, from the school-house on the hill to the crossing of Alvarado street a pilot is necessary to insure a safe passage. I travel that street daily, and often at night, and find it difficult to remember the bearings of the different leaks and consequent mudholes. The water pipes I refer to are not those of the Boundry or city service, but private enterprise.

The Cajon Pass Murder.

San Bernardino Morning Hour.]

John Wilson, known among miners as "Quartz" Wilson, was arrested Tuesday on the Summit and is now in the county jail, charged as being one of the murderers of the boy Thomas Thompson. Sunday night, 12th instant, the boy, who is an adopted son of Coombs, was murdered while sleeping in a tent in the Cajon Pass. On the outside of the tent were traced imprints of American and of Chinese shoes. A suspected Chinaman was arrested. He was taken from the officers and hung up by the neck for a few moments, when he confessed that he and another Chinaman committed the murder. He was then placed in jail. The other Chinaman has not been found. Since then Deputy Wilsoy has been investigating the matter, and concluded that the circumstantial evidence warranted the arrest of Wilson.

It is said the Sheriff has found a pair of bloody pantaloons and a bloody shirt belonging to the prisoner, and that on the morning after the murder he wore new clothes; also, other circumstantial evidence pointing to his guilt.

Wilson maintains his innocence.

Ah Ohong, the Chinaman arrested, denies that he confessed the murder, as stated. He says that when the three men hung him up he said: "Me no killee boy; me good Chinaman; all Chinamen I know, wells good, but one. I show him to you." But when they searched, they could not find the "bad Chinaman." Chong's throat is still very sore from the effects of the hanging.

Stocks and Bonds.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Government bonds dull and strong for fours and steady for others.

Stocks were again very active. Prices were irregular at the opening and in early dealings the market was inclined to be weak, the pressure to sell by small operators, a pressure which was for only a time, was soon checked and the market was a rally which carried prices above all the best prices of the day. With few exceptions the rally was held near to the highest quotations of the day. With few exceptions the rally was held near to the highest quotations of the day. IN MEMORIAM.

Preparations for Fitting Observance of Grant's Funeral.

SPECIAL MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL.

The Mayor's Message—Resolutions to be Drafted The G. A. R.—Meeting of Colored Citizens—The Board of Trade, Etc.

Preparations for a general tribute of loving and sad respect to the great hero who has just passed away, are progressing here as rapidly as may be. Upon the appointed day, there should be such a demonstration by the people as befits the occasion—the death of the greatest American that this generation has been called upon to mourn. All business men will be requested to close their places of business—and with such a request patriotic citizens will gladly comply.

SPECIAL MEETING OF COUNCIL.

The following call was sent yesterday to each Councilman:

You are hereby notified to attend a special meeting of the Council of the city of Los Angeles on the 24th day of July, 1885, at 7 p. m., to consider and take action on the matter of the death and funeral of General U. S. Grant.

D. E. MILES,

The special meeting of Council was called to order at 7.35 last evening, President Miles in the chair, and present Councilmen Brown, Bullis, Hamilton, Sinsabaugh, Santee, Velsir and Day.

The following message from the Mayor was read:

To the Hon. the City Council of Los Angeles—GENTLEMEN: U. S. Grant is dead; the late General of the United States Army; the ex-President of the United States; the warrior who never surrendered; the hero of many a hard-fought battle; the soldier who extended the hand of charity and friendship to a fallen foe; the statesman actuated by the broad principles of a common humanity; the friend ever faithful and true; the sturdy citizen with a heart as warm and as tender as that of a noble woman; the American with a soul as broad as his own vast domain; the loving son, husband and father, the man Ulysses S. Grant possessed of these and many other numberless sterling qualities, has passed away from earth; a nation, aye, the civilized world, mourns to-day. Then it becomes us, in a proper and patriotic manner as a municipality to pay a fitting tribute to his memory. I would suggest the appointment of a committee by your honorable body, to confer with the various bodies of the city, military, civic, secret and social, to make arrangements for the due observance of a day hereafter to be designated, so that all, irrespective of party, class or section, may have an opportunity to contribute their mite of appreciation, in honor of their dead friend. Yours very respectfully,

E. F. SPENCE,
Mayor.

Mr. Hamilton moved to receive the message and carry out its recommendations. Carried.

Dr. French moved that the committee consist of five, one from each ward. Carried. Committee, Councilmen French, Hamilton, Day, Bullis and Sinsabaugh.

Dr. French moved that a committee of three be appointed to draft appropriate resolutions, to be read at the next meeting of Council. Carried. Committee, Councilmen French, McGarry and Santee.

On Dr. French's motion, the Mayor was requested to act with the Committee on Resolutions.

Mr. Hamilton moved that Council attend the funeral exercises in a body. Carried.

Adjourned at 7:50.

THE G. A. R.

The regular meeting of Stanion Post No. 55, G. A. R., was held at post headquarters last evening, the commander and several members of Frank Bartlett Post No. 6 being present. A joint committee, headed by Comrade Stoneman, was appointed on the part of the two posts to confer with the Council as to the arrangements for the proper observance of the day of burial. The committee went at once to the Council, which was sitting as a board of equalization. The Council promptly indicated its willingness to co-operate with the G. A. R., and courteously agreed to leave the direction of affairs in the hands of the veterans. The committee then returned to the post in waiting and reported. The joint committee already appointed by Commanders Wells and Bell was affirmed. Frank Bartlett Post, No. 6, will meet next Tuesday evening.

As will be seen by the dispatches, Saturday, August 8th, has been fixed as the date of the funeral.

THE BOARD OF TRADE AND PRODUCE EXCHANGE.

A joint meeting of the Board of Directors of the Board of Trade and Produce Exchange was held yesterday afternoon to discuss what action should be taken by the two bodies in respect to the memory of General Grant. A committee of three, consisting of General Mathews, J. H. Seymour and Major Bonebrake, was appointed to act in conjunction with the city and county authorities. A resolution was adopted requesting Governor Stoneman to make the day of the funeral a legal holiday, and further, more that the merchants be requested to suspend all business on that day. The secretary was authorized to drape the windows of the Board of Trade and Produce Exchange in mourning. A meeting of the Directors of the Los Angeles Manufacturing Association last evening, the resolutions adopted at the above joint meeting were concurred in.

MEETING OF COLORED CITIZENS.

The colored citizens of Los Angeles met in Judge Brunson's court room last evening to take appropriate action. Jacob Soares called the meeting to order and stated its object. Jacob Soares was chosen president of the meeting, James Marseilles vice president, Louis T. Jacobs secretary, Judson C. Taylor sergeant-at-arms. Mr. Soares spoke fittingly, urging the colored citizens to turn out for the procession, and it was unanimously voted to do so. A committee of eleven was appointed to confer with Major Bonebrake as to the necessary arrangements. They are as follows: J. H. Green, J. C. Taylor, J. W. Marseilles, Allen Smith, Samuel Jones, W. H. Harris, Harry Thomson, C. F. Carney, Samuel Phillips, Wm. Neal, Wm. Comer.

It was decided to turn out in full black, with the proper badge of mourning, the latter to be worn for thirty days. Messrs. Marseilles and Novell, who fought under Grant, spoke tenderly of the recollection. Speeches were also made by others.

The following resolutions were presented by the committee, Messrs. Jacob Soares, J. H. Green, L. T. Jacobs, J. W. Marseilles, Thos. Thompson, and were unanimously adopted;

Whereas, Our invincible General, Ulysses S. Grant, the nation's most illustrious citizen, has passed peacefully away, surrounded by his family, and revered by the civilized world.

Resolved, That we, the colored citizens of Los Angeles, mourn the loss not only of the great General, our honored fellow-citizen, but, most of all, one who, from the first day of his public service, has shown himself to be a firm friend of the colored people of the United States.

Resolved, That we shall ever cherish the memory of General Grant as the liberator of our race, for his record made possible what the great-hearted Lincoln planned and ordered.

Resolved, That the names Lincoln and Grant will forever be inseparably associated with the freedom of our race, and that we shall ever cherish and revere their tender memory while life shall last.

Resolved, That we shall take a sad pleasure in joining with other citizens of Los Angeles in paying the last earthly honors to our dead soldier.

Resolved, That we express deepest sympathy for the bereaved wife and children in their great loss. It is all we can do.

The draping of the city continues, and already includes a large proportion of the business houses of all descriptions. Besides those noted yesterday, the emblems of mourning are now hung upon the stores and offices of Niles, Pease & Co., Book & Gillmore, Humphreys & Biggin, Joseph Barnes, Mrs. Hammond, C. E. Day, O. T. Barker & Sons, Dr. Wills, W. F. Bull, Frank Shrier, Chas. H. McNelly, C. C. Bonnell, S. Cahen, Phil. Hirschfeld, L. Harris & Co., H. Wolfstein, C. L. Susand, Geo. Basserman, Capitol Mills, Southern California Insurance Company, De Turk's stable, M. Tomich & Co., Lewis Bros., C. W. Gibson, and many others. The French Hospital flies the tricolor at half-mast.

THE CABLE CARS.

Objects of Curiosity that Already Make Trouble.

"Get off that car, please," said a sandy-haired young man with a stick in his hand, as a member of the TIMES's smelling committee stepped upon the platform of one of the dummies standing on the track on Second street, near Fort. "Orders, you know," he added, half apologetically.

There are three dummies and three cars, which were hauled to the place Wednesday night, and which remain in unmoved procession, as idle as a painted ferry-boat in a marine landscape. The cars bear upon their sides the legends, "Second Street Cable Railroad" and "Spring, Diamond and Texas Streets."

"It will be about six weeks before they get the cars running," said the engaging young man. "Well, no; I shan't stay here six weeks to keep people off the cars. The company will haul them to the top of the hill to-night and to-morrow they are to be taken to the carhouses on the other side. A big sled has been made and the cars will be put on that, one at a time, and hauled over the fill west of Bunker Hill avenue and Hope streets."

"It is a good idea that the company is not expecting to keep the cars in their place under guard, for six weeks. There was trouble yesterday, resulting in the forcible ejection of an eastern visitor from one of the cars by a too-zealous guard. Subsequently a charge of battery was preferred in Justice Austin's court against the "bouncer." The case will probably come to a hearing to-day.

The Medical College.

The Calico Print says:

We have received a copy of the prospectus of the College of Medicine of the University of Southern California for 1885. This college is located in Los Angeles, and possesses all the facilities and requirements for graduation in medicine that can be found in any of the first-class colleges in the United States.

The Ventura Free Press says, editorially:

From Dr. J. P. Widney we have received a pamphlet relating to the College of Medicine of the University of Southern California. The college has been organized with a full faculty, which with other things insures its success. It will have for use for clinical purposes two hospitals containing 200 beds. The course of study has been adopted conforming in its requirements to that of leading colleges of medicine in this country. With such an institution at hand it is folly for students of medicine to go abroad for instruction.

Low Excursion Rates.

While excursion rates to Eastern cities from California points remain at $73 per head, the case when the passenger is worked and the ticket is quite different.

A. Phillips informed a TIMES reporter yesterday that he was able to obtain a rate of $48.50 per head from Boston to Los Angeles during his last trip, and that he is now for still lower westbound rates is good.

Carpenters' Union.

Union No. 56 of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners will hold its monthly open meeting this evening in Good Templars' Hall for the discussion of the labor question. Music, essays and recitations will help to enliven the occasion. Hon. R. F. Del Valle was expected to deliver an address, but unfortunately he has been called away.

BRIEFS.

Three arrests yesterday and three horses impounded by the police.

But one death in the city yesterday, and none reported from the country.

The Los Angeles brought down 35 passengers for the city yesterday. She goes north to-day.

The picnic of the Typographical Union, at the City Gardens to-morrow, promises to be a big demonstration.

The Santa Rosa took 147 passengers north yesterday, 89 for San Francisco, 15 for Port Harford, and 43 for Santa Barbara.

The scale-bugs which took refuge in the grass of the plaza must go. The surface has been covered with straw and burned over.

The fourth car and dummy for the Second street cable road arrived from San Francisco yesterday, and was hauled up onto Second street last evening.

Investigations are on foot to ferret out the person or persons who threw an explosive of some sort into Lieser's gun store, night before last, wrecking the show-case.

Officer Stoermer discovered a barley-sack saturated with kerosene, and in flames, in the macaroni factory on Upper Main street, at 12:45 this morning. He put out the fire.

A burglar complimented the house of Walter S. Moore, night before last, by giving it a thorough overhauling. The one-eyed Colonel was at Santa Monica. The burglar drank himself full and got away with a handsome brass fire-set.

The French and Spanish flags are flying at half-mast upon the buildings of such of our foreign-born population of those nationalities as possess flags. But no English flag is visible. Perque? We have a British Vice-Consul here, and two strong British societies.

Driver Fred C. Smith, of Confidence Engine Company, No. 3, is getting his department into real metropolitan shape. By a clever arrangement of ropes and pulleys, a single pull of a cord, when an alarm comes in, liberates the engine horses, drops a whip on each astern, and throws open the big doors.

Mr. Marasovich of Cahuenga, was in the city yesterday with several lumps chunks of coal-like mineral he had dug on his place. He states that it runs about $40 per ton in silver, and is in an immense vein, which he has already uncovered twenty feet wide. He is down fifteen feet, and can take out many tons of the soft stuff daily.

A VALUABLE TABLE.

Showing the Height of Portions of the City Above the Sea.

Colonel Howland, of the Electric Light Company, has kindly furnished the TIMES with the following table, showing the location of each electric light mast in the city, the height of each place above the datum plane, or plane of reference of our city grades, and the height of each light above the level of the sea. The place of reference or starting point for our city grades is located at the corner of Sixth and Main streets, and is 265 feet above the level of the sea, according to the Los Angeles and San Pedro railroad levels. The electric masts are each 150 feet in height. The table will be handy for reference, as a person can, by comparing the data, determine the height of one portion of the city above another. The data were procured at the request of Prof. Geo. Davidson, of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, to determine the distance the lights can be seen at sea.

BANNING COLONY.

Some Notes from a New Sad Berkeleian Settlement.

The annual meeting of the Banning Land Company was held at the company's office, in Riverside, July 20th. Directors elected: C. W. Filkins, G. W. Bryant, Riverside, Cal.; Wilson Hays, Colton, Cal.; Jacob Klein, T. R. Hofer, Carson City, Nev.

This colony is in a very flourishing condition, having some of the best lands and the best water in California, and having the advantage of being located on the main line of the Southern Pacific Railroad, in high altitude, where the air is pure, and where fruit trees and vines can be grown absolutely free from all of the tree and vine diseases which are so prevalent in some localities, makes it one of the most desirable localities for new settlers to locate in.

Mr. Sibley, the pioneer nurseryman of Orange, is about to move his nursery to Banning.

Manning's Confession.

In a reported interview with Secretary Manning that officer is quoted as saying: "I'm very much surprised to find so many bright, capable men in the Treasury Department. Why, I meet them by the score every day, sharp as briars, energetic, and with the details of their duties at their tongues' and fingers' ends. From what I have heard I really expected to see a great deal of incompetency and corruption in this place. It appears, however, that the efficiency of the service has been growing better and better every year, until it is astonishing how perfect the machinery is."

Whether the Secretary was accurately quoted or not, we cannot say, but we can say that his alleged utterances are closely true to the facts in the case. It has been the fashion for years among the Democrats to denounce the departments at Washington as corrupt and idle. No doubt the Albany Argus, Secretary Manning's own newspaper, has had columns on columns of eloquent denunciation of this sort. We have heard much of "official rottenness," of "Augean stables," and the like, all of which is very fine party rhetoric, but very false and absurd.

Secretary Manning's confession, which has been extorted from him by the evidence of his own senses and by a decent regard for the simple truth which he has been unable to suppress, even under party pressure, should be enough to put to the blush the reckless libelers of the Democratic press and party, whose unqualified denunciations of the Republican administration of the Government would, if true, be a lasting disgrace to the country and to humanity.

The Washington Star, an independent paper of high character and superior means of information, speaking of Manning's confession, says: "Not only is the civil service of this Government the most honest, most capable and most courteous of any public service in the world, but there is no private business of equal magnitude where the honesty and efficiency of the service is on such a high level. If the Democrats intend to upset the service, as a reward for political activity, let them say so, honestly. To mask a grab for salary under a lofty regard for "reform" is a very cowardly kind of cant. Of course, in such a great multitude there are some drones and some rascals, and they should be weeded out; but the charge that the service, as such, is on a low level is as false and almost as wicked a libel as that other which assails the character of the ladies who are in the employ of the Government."

Freight Rates Again.

On the 30th of June the TIMES published a statement of comparative freight rates of the Southern Pacific Railroad between San Francisco and Arizona and New Mexican points, and between Los Angeles and same points. That table showed that Los Angeles, enjoying the advantage of 482 miles in distance, was able to ship freight to Territorial points cheaper than San Francisco. Of course, there was nothing particularly astounding about that; albeit there was some satisfaction in knowing that our merchants were allowed their natural advantages of commercial position. A railroad company like the Southern Pacific, which has tried so hard to pervert the natural channels of trade, is perhaps entitled to some recognition when it lets nature alone. At the time these statistics were published we felt that it was not fair to dismiss the subject without again recurring to it, with figures readily deducible therefrom. While we are disposed to give the great corporation credit for all its fair actions, we are not willing to chalk up any white marks that are not its due. The Southern Pacific corporation, which began by grossly discriminating against Los Angeles, has modified its tariff measurably to our good, but it still stops short of doing us justice. Owing to the diversity in distance the only way to make a comparison between the rates charged Los Angeles and those charged San Francisco, is to reduce them to the common standard of "per ton per mile." By this process we arrive at the following:

	1st Class.	5th Class
San Francisco to Yuma.....	.03262	.01223
Los Angeles to Yuma.....	.057	.02625
San Francisco to Maricopa, Tucson and Casa Grande...	.03215	.00186
Los Angeles to Maricopa, Tucson and Casa Grande...	.06446	.00326
San Francisco to Benson.....	.03262	.00146
Los Angeles to Benson.....	.06443	.00277
San Francisco to Deming and El Paso.....	.00264	.00155
Los Angeles to Deming and El Paso.....	.00260	.00224

Thus it appears that, on Yuma freight, Los Angeles pays nearly or quite twice as much per ton per mile as San Francisco. On Maricopa, Tucson, Casa Grande and Benson freight, Los Angeles pays one-half more than San Francisco. On Deming and El Paso freight, Los Angeles pays nearly one-half more than San Francisco.

The principles of railroad traffic, of course, require that more should be charged proportionately for a short haul than for a long one. We do not seek to gainsay or belittle this law of transportation, but we hold that the railroad company makes too much of a discrimination against Los Angeles in charging us from fifty to one hundred per cent. more per ton per mile than it charges San Francisco.

In eastward traffic the discrimination is still more maked as the railroad company lays down eastern freight in San Francisco as cheap as in Los Angeles, hauling it 482 miles beyond this city for nothing.

We shall never be satisfied with the great aforetime monopoly until it concedes Los Angeles even-handed justice. Probably nothing will induce it to do that but business reasons; and business reasons depend on competition. When the Southern Pacific is obliged to do right it will do right as easily as though it were no task at all.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean has this comforting paragraph for our raisin men: "Not a box of Valencia oranges or Malaga raisins should be imported this year from the cholera districts. The California raisin is a superior article and can be furnished as cheaply. There is thus good reason to give home products a chance." Since Dr. Nixon made his visit to California, last winter, he has kept an intelligent eye out in this direction, and printed many a kindly word about the Golden Shore.

The editor of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette had just observed that his shaded thermometer was passing the line of 110, and his celluloid collar had a wrinkle on its front, when the old subscriber drifted in by mail with the query: "How can an ice-yacht sail faster than the wind?" That's why his answer was tinted with doubt and sarcasm: "We do not believe an ice yacht can sail faster than the wind. It is not the season of ice yachts. The topic is untimely."

Secretary Manning acquits himself of some vigorous special pleading, according to a Washington dispatch which we publish to-day. The three hundred and sixty men already dismissed in his department are not sufficient to render it in perfect harmony with his reform ideas, and he asks to be allowed a further swing of the axe. He is bound to have harmony, even though he is obliged to shed buckets of blood to get it.

The Board of Trade and Produce Exchange have elected A. M. Lawrence as their secretary, vice J. M. Davies, resigned. The change is a good one. Mr. Lawrence has been a resident of Los Angeles eleven years, most of the time in business. He is thoroughly familiar with the mercantile progress of the city, and appreciates its present requirements and future prospects. He ought make a good secretary.

The report on the "Mineral Resources of the United States," by Albert Williams, Jr., shows that the total value of coal mined in 1884 was $143,768,578, and of coke burned $7,242,878. The total value of crude petroleum for the year was $20,476,294, which was greatly increased by refining. The iron ore amounted to $22,550,000, and the pig iron to $73,761,624. Of copper there was taken out $17,789,567 worth.

Of the sixty-nine candidates before the County Board of Examiners last week, only twenty-two emerged from the ordeal with teachers' certificates. This is a veritable slaughter of the innocents. Yet the members of the Board claim that they made their questions as general as possible, avoiding technicalities when feasible. It is just to the profession, of course, that the standard should be high.

In the English House of Parliament on the 17th, Parnell denounced Bolton, Crown Solicitor of the late government, as a murderer who deserves to be tried and executed. Strong language from the Irish agitator! A few weeks ago he would not have dared to say that. As it was, Sir Michael Hicks Beach merely replied that the present government had no defense to make of the former government.

A sale of fifteen yearling colts of aristocratic lineage, which took place in Sacramento Wednesday, yielded an aggregate of $13,662.50—an average of $910 per head. The range of pacers was from $330 to $3625. Following the general sale, Captain A. J. Huchinson, of this county, sold a colt to John Mackey for $500.

Erastus Brooks says that he has seen 120 daily newspapers established in New York, and of these only six are now in existence. He estimates that $25,000,000 have been sunk during that time upon daily newspapers, and yet every other college graduate thinks he can run a newspaper.

Ex-Governor Perkins, who has just returned from the East, reports that the matter which impressed him most, was the general hard times. Markets are overstocked. American mill hands are being supplanted by cheap foreign labor. California fruits are creating a sensation.

The California Christian Advocate has an idea that it is possible to have too many religious journals, for it rises in meetin' to remark on the subject of starting r ligious papers: "Very few of them pay; therefore, start more. That seems to be the prevailing argument."

A simple plan of setting a broken bank upon its feet has been hatched out in Ireland in connection with the Munster smash-up. It is to borrow sufficient money to pay the bank's debts. The commercial world has been groping in darkness many a century.

The failure of the Munster Bank as precipitated a financial panic in Ireland. There is a run on the Hibernian Bank of Dublin, and the directors have taken advantage of the law to require thirty days' notice for the withdrawal of funds.

The Ameer of Afghanistan celebrates his decoration with the star of India. That is all right for a beginning. But wait till the Czar comes along with his broadsword and decorates him with the star of Russia.

China is about to borrow $100,000,000 from Germany with which to build railways, telegraphs and wharves. American engineers, mechanics and manufacturers ought to get some of that money.

There is a good deal of meaning in the brief assertion of the Chicago Tribune that "the most substantial item of improvement of business is the sentence of James D. Fish to ten years in prison."

The assessed valuation of taxable property in New York City is $1,175,052,885, which is about twenty times the total valuation of property in each of several of the smaller States.

The English government announces an Egyptian loan of $450,000,000, and Russia orders the permanent military occupation of Grodna. Put this and that together.

Long-range and Short-range Heats.

When the thermometer reaches 90 degrees above zero or a little more in New York, people begin to die of sunstroke and exhaustion, and some of those who don't die wish they could. In fact a world of suffering, besides some mortality, is entailed by this extreme temperature. In Southern California we are very slightly inconvenienced by a temperature of 90 degrees, and even when on rare occasions the thermometer climbs to 110 degrees, there is no such thing as sunstroke. On the Colorado desert it is possible to see trackmen working over the glaring sand when the thermometer in a shady place scores 130 degrees. There men do not die of sunstroke either. Occasionally one who injudiciously drinks ice water or brings about a sudden reaction of the system in some other way dies from the effect, but even these cases are rare. Why is it that the hot weather of New York kills at 90 degrees and the hot weather of the Colorado desert does not kill at 130 degrees? The answer is found in the difference in humidity between the two atmospheres. The atmosphere of New York is damp; that of the Colorado, and of Southern California, is dry.

The newly appointed Governor of New Mexico seems to be, as he himself avers that he is, "full of poetry and romance." In fact, he's "as full as a tick." He aroused the retiring Governor and the Judge before whom he was to take the oath of office before daylight, so as "to swear as the sun rose over the mountains." The great statesman explained it to an American citizen thus: "You know it is the custom among the Pueblo Indians to stand on the housetops at about this hour and watch for the coming of Montezuma, who is some day to appear at sunrise. I have thought that this would be an appropriate hour for the new Democratic Montezuma to take the oath of office." "Kansas" Ross in the role of Montezuma would be a grotesque spectacle, indeed.

People are dying from heat on the Atlantic seaboard. Five children perished from this cause in Jersey City yesterday.

THE SAUNTERER.

As an illustration of the logical tendencies of childhood let me cite an instance that came to my knowledge the other evening.

"Father," asked a small boy, "what makes it rain?"

"O," said the father, "God makes it rain in order to make the trees, the grain and the flowers grow."

"Well, does it rain up in heaven," pursued the child.

"I don't know whether it does or not. The Bible doesn't say anything about that. But I don't think it does."

After a thoughtful pause the child said: "But, I think it does, father."

"What makes you think so, my son?"

"Why, there are flowers there, ain't there?"

"Yes."

"Well, then it would have to rain to make them grow."

In talking with people I often hear this question asked: "Why can't our Library be made free, or else one dollar a year, as is the fee in some larger towns? Four bits a month is too much, and there are many who would gladly patronize the Library, but do not feel able to while the fee is so high?"

I would suggest that the changes be redressed in matter of public benefit. Santa Barbara, with one-sixth the population of Los Angeles, has her free library, and it is in a flourishing condition. The Bank of Brooklyn is also generous in that which tends to the advancement of community and the quickening of its intellectual life. A free library would be a great boon to Los Angeles and one that should be pushed on. Or, if that cannot be done at present, make the rates of subscription lower. The increased patronage will more than make amends for the reduction.

"My dear Saunterer," said an individual to me a short time ago, "won't you suggest that the sanitary condition of our dwellings and yards be looked into? There is much sickness about town, and East and West a thorough cleansing is going on as a preventative of epidemics. I went down town the other morning and passed a good many places where the odors were sickening, and where the yards at nightfall send out bad perfume. Please go for the health officers and stir them up."

The health officers will please consider themselves "gone for." It is a work that should not be neglected. The language of this hot weather is, "Keep clean! keep clean!"

I met recently a young lady who was formerly employed in one of the stores of this city. She is deeply interested in the success of the Home for Working Girls recently established here. For three years she was a member of a similar home in St. Louis. The home there has proved in every way a success. It was originally opened in a small building, with limited patronage, but from the outset it has been se lf-sustaining. At the expiration of three years it had eighty permanent guests, gathered from the ranks of school teachers, music teachers, type writers, shorthand reporters, sales women, milliners, dressmakers and others. It was the home of refinement and intelligence. It opened its doors, as it still does, to young women coming as strangers to the city to make purchases or in search of employment. All of the different churches are interested in the home, and here the young ladies have a home worthy of the name. They frequently give pleasant entertainments, musical and dramatic, and their social life is most highly appreciated and enjoyed by the favored inmates. There are now fifty rooms in this institution, and a movement is on foot to build an addition of twenty-five more. The Home stands high in the community as a centre of womanly intelligence and refinement, and is one of the institutions of which St. Louis is justly proud. It is to be desired that the future of our Los Angeles "Home" may be no less successful and no less a credit to our city than the one in St. Louis is to that city. More than this could not be desired.

FAMILIAR WAR TALKS.

I met, a few day since, a gentleman who was in the Confederate army during the war. He was a surgeon. He had a fund of incident to relate. Among other battles, he was in the terrible slaughter of Fort Donelson. He stated that the general impression that the rebels had a large force at command there is a mistaken one. That there were actually only about 18,000 Confederates in the vicinity, and in the fort proper but 1000. The remaining 12,000 were stretched out for a distance of three miles behind their hastily-constructed breastworks. The army was in poor condition for fortifying themselves against the Unionists. They were without shovels or spades, and the only implements they had for digging were the spades improvised from split canteens. The w rk of building the breastworks was done almost entirely in a single night. For four days and three nights these rebel soldiers fought against great odds with unconquerable determination. On the second day about sixty-one guns were brought to bear upon them by the Union forces, and they were mown down in heaps. The dead and the dying were everywhere. The surgeons were kept constantly employed. For four days and three nights this surgeon, among others, was without rest or sleep. On the last night of the battle exhausted nature demanded rest. He lay down, with many others, in the last line of rifle-pits, wrapped in his blankets. It had been raining and the floor of the pits was soft mud. During the night it turned exceedingly cold. The ground froze solid. When the surgeon was called, towards morning, he made the effort to get up, but found his blankets and his hair frozen fast in the thick mud. He could not move until his outer blanket was cut away from him, and his hair upon the side on which he had lain shaved off close to his head. It was a painful ordeal. Then, when he was placed upon his feet, he was so stiff and nearly frozen it was some time before he could walk.

"But, in spite of all this," said he "I was one of the fortunate ones."

"One of the fortunate ones," I exclaimed, "how's that?"

"Why," he replied, "a large number of soldiers had gone to sleep holding their guns with both hands, and their hands were frozen to them, so that when they took them away the skin peeled off—and there were over a thousand poor fellows with frozen feet, perfectly raw, so that they could not touch them to the ground. Later I saw many of them sitting propped up with rails under their knees, and their feet hanging over just clear of the ground,—and O, how they did suffer!"

As to the numbers engaged on the Confederate side in the battle of Fort Donelson, I believe that is a matter of history. Some 13,000 prisoners were taken, and a couple of thousand got away with Floyd.

"Something happened here," continued the surgeon, "that made me think a great deal of General Grant. We had got our poor fellows into the hospital after the battle was over, and fixed up as comfortably as we could, when a lot of stragglers, the roughs and offscouring from the Union army, came in and commenced tearing off the bandages from some of our wounded. This exasperated me, and as I could not get them to desist from their murderous work, I started up, determined to find General Grant. Instead of a gray uniform I met one in the dark blue of a Union officer. So I started out, and I was terribly excited. I met a Union officer and I asked him where General Grant's headquarters were. 'Down there on the boat,' he said. So I made my way there as quickly as possible, and sending a sentinel to say 'Where's Grant? I'm in a great hurry to see him on important business.' I suppose he thought me a Union officer and so he didn't challenge me, but said, 'It is in there,' pointing to the cabin where he was to be found. So I rushed on and met another soldier near his door to whom I put the same question. 'He's in there,' said he, pointing to the door. I rushed past him without his making any effort to stop me, and entered the room. General Grant was sitting before a small table, busy with some papers. As I hastily approached him he looked up at me in great surprise, and exclaimed: 'Who in hell are you?' 'I'm a Confederate surgeon sir.' 'What do you want?' 'There are a lot of soldiers from your army, sir, who have entered our hospital and are tearing off the bandages from our wounded, and they are now bleeding to death, and I've come here to protest against it!' I never saw a man more indignant in my life than Grant was at this. He wheeled around, called an officer, and sent him at once with a squad of soldiers, ordering him to clean out every one of the intruders, and by the time I got back to the hospital (I walked slowly, for I was pretty nearly used up) I found the ground cleared, and General's orders being most promptly carried into execution. Of course I understood that, made up as our armies on both sides were from every class and rank in life, there must be some lawless and undisciplined ones among them, but General Grant was indignant enough over the outrage to content me, and to show summarily that bottom of the kind would have his sanction."

I suspect my Confederate friend's rather hard story about the alleged inhuman action of Union soldiers will meet with denial from our side. As to General Grant's swearing, it is the popular belief that he was always free from that habit, though it is possible that the exigencies of war provoked him, sometimes, to pass the limit.

"And now I want to tell you," continued the gentleman, "about a colored boy who went with me all through the war. I speak of him as an example of the self-sacrificing devotion that need sometimes to be manifested by the slave for his master."

"Was the boy one raised on your father's plantation?" I inquired.

"No, but he belonged to an intimate friend of mine, who was into the army, and I, of course, disagreed with him, so we could find no trace of him. So the boy came to me as the friend of his master and staid with me as if he belonged to me. Well, after the battle of Donelson, I was a prisoner of war, and was taken with others to Indianapolis. The private soldiers were here sent to Camp Morton, while a temporary prison was fitted up in a new building for the officers, among whom were General Buckner and his staff. As I entered my temporary prison, my colored boy essayed to go in with me, but was stopped by an officer, who said: 'Here you can't go in here. This place is for officers only. You need not be held as a prisoner, you better go,' &c.

"'But mass'r going in here, and I want to go with him.'

"'But you don't want to be a prisoner,' said the other. 'You don't know what it means. They'll have a hard time, and they don't know how long they'll be kept as prisoners. You better go while you have your freedom.'

"'No, I want to go with mass'r. If he's going to hab a hard time he needs me all de mo'.'

"'Well, you can't go with him here. If you are determined to be a prisoner you must go down to camp there with the soldiers.'

"'Berry well, mass'r, I'll go,'" said the faithful black, and go he did. The Confederate officers were sent on to Camp Chase, Columbus, and the colored boy was left behind at Indianapolis, where he remained for some months. Finally, hearing that there was to be an exchange of officers, and that those of the Confederates thus exchanged would be sent to City Point, he made his way thither, and was there in waiting to give his master welcome upon his arrival. Such instances of devotion redeem humanity.

A Summer Song in Sections.

Jull at It Is.

Now the wealthy merchant weareth
On his head a common straw,
While his junior clerk appeareth
In a nobby Macintaw.

Hit Him with a Brick.

Now the sun his furnace feeds,
Causing human flesh to stew,
And the summer fiend inquireth,
"Is this hot enough for you?"

"Sons of the Same Old Brand."

Now the customer who winketh,
As the druggist's eye meets his,
Shows he something stronger drinketh
Than the ordinary ass.

He Never Sleeps.

Now the pate at mover waketh
Sleepers from their peaceful rest,
Ere the golden morning breaketh
Or the robin leaves his nest.

The Deceitful Husband.

Now the festive husband sendeth
To the beach his trusting wife;
While she's absent he pretendeth
His will be a lonely life.
Tearfully with her he parteth,
Gladly he would go but can't—
When she's gone he gaily starteth
Out to see the elephant.

The Hose Pipe.

Now the idiot who getteth
Twenty feet of garden hose,
Squirts from morn till night and wetteth
Skillfully each passer's clothes.

SUMMER FASHIONS.

The Jersey is now worn for demi-toilet only.

In some very stylish costumes gray is blended with yellow, the effect being very soft and pleasing.

Mitts are rigidly excluded from dressy toilets this summer. They are worn only with house or negligee toilets.

The Charlotte Corday dress is made with a full skirt that opens in front, displaying a petticoat of harmonizing color. These dresses reach to the ground.

Dust cloaks are made of mohair or ponges. Redingotes of light weight navy blue woolen material have the hood lined with red silk.

Girls' and children's costumes are trimmed with elegant but ons, buckles and embroidery. The skirts of all dresses for young children are made full and pretty long, which is a most sensible mode, as it enables the little wearers to move freely without catching cold.

At garden parties and out-door fetes it is very usual now to see hats and bonnets trimmed with bouquets of real flowers, generally nature's field favorites, while another fastens the collar, fichu or plastron, or even corsage together, and a third is attached to the tip and handle of the parasol.

Tan colored kid gloves, a rough-and-ready hat or bonnet trimmed with a canvas scarf striped in Roman colors, a parasol large enough to do duty as an umbrella and devoid of fripperies, an inexpensive chatelaine watch, a gauze or silk grenadine veil, long enough to cover the face, cross in the back and tie in front in short ends, a closing straw fan, which can be slipped into the pocket, are the proper accessories to a lady's traveling outfit.

Folds of canvas are basted in the neck and sleeves of traveling dresses. Any color may be used that best suits the wearer's complexion. Cotton canvas can be bought at forty cents the yard, and these folds can be made at home at very small expense. The fold should be cut a true bias, about an inch wide, one fold being usually enough, although some ladies prefer two. The rough edges should be bound with thin silk ribbon.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

Aimee sailed for Paris on the 16th. She will return in September.

Maggie Mitchell begins her new season at the Grand Opera House, New York, September 17.

Theodore Thomas's orchestra has just closed a three months' traveling season, during which seventy-five concerts were given. The only bad business was in San Francisco.

M. Cooper, of the Paris Varieties, has signed a contract in Paris with M. Maurice Grau to come to this country with Mme. Judic. They will sail on August 30. Cooper will play the parts of M. Dupuis. He returns next year to the Varieties.

Offenbach's "Robinson Crusoe" was produced for the first time in the United States at the Tivoli Opera House, San Francisco, on June 29.

Miss Mary Anderson is ruralizing at Stratford upon-Avon with Mr. William Winter and other friends, and is studying the part of "Rosalind" in As You Like It.

One of Bret Harte's sons, Francis B. Harte, named for his father, is an actor of great promise, and has taken Dion Boucicault's place in his most famous Irish parts with success. His father, and elder, is in business, and prefers its comparatively sure methods of success to the precarious ways of literature and the drama.

Minnie Hauk has been granted by Emperor William the honorary title of "imperial chamber singer," a distinction shared by only three other foreign prima donnas—Adelina Patti, Madame Jenny Lind Goldschmidt and Artot Padilla.

Clara Morris has a beautiful home on the Hudson within a short distance of Greystone, Mr. Tilden's residence. She still uses the copy of Shakespeare which she bought and studied when she played minor parts at $5 per week. Miss Morris is said to be one of the most rapid of readers, having in a day read, as that much was remembered, the "Life and Letters of George Eliot."

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

The revival at Rome, Ga., is still in progress, and over one hundred accessions are reported at the Methodist and Baptist churches.

The American Sunday School Union, in its sixty years' history, has distributed of religious literature.

Rev. Dr. S. Irenæus Prime, of the New York Observer, who was ordained to the ministry at Ballston Spa Presbyterian church on June 3, 1835, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination by preaching there.

The Princess of Wales has sent an "altar cross" to St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal church, St. Louis, Mo. It was interpreted by the Secretary of the Navy, for the construction of three steel cruisers, known, respectively, as the Boston, Atlanta and Chicago, and the dispatch boat Dolphin, and the lawful claims of the estate of Levi Kerr against assignor.

A River Convention Called.

St. Paul, July 18.—A call for a river convention of unusual magnitude to be held at St. Paul, September 8d, was issued by a day addressed by the Governor of Minnesota to the Governors of Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Wisconsin, Dakota and Montana. The document declares that people of the Upper Mississippi and Missouri are in need of immediate relief from exorbitant transportation charges. A congressional appropriation that will open water ways to the sea is the object of the convention. The Governor, Congressmen and ten delegates-at-large from each State and Territory mentioned are invited, with three delegates for each of their Congressional Districts, five from each commercial organization and five from each municipality.

All Quiet at Cleveland.

Cleveland, July 18.—All is quiet at the scene of the strike to-day. The day has been devoted to the payment of the strikers' wages—an event anxiously looked forward to in some quarters; but there are no indications of trouble. The men began to assemble early, but have indulged in no warlike demonstrations. Those employed at the wire-mill, about 1500 in number, are being paid their stipends at the mill office.

The Cheyennes in Check.

Fort Reno, July 17.—Nothing of especial interest has developed here. General Sheridan talked with a number of Indians, including Stone Calf, one of the leading dissatisfied chiefs. They are divided on the question of lease to cattlemen. The Indians appear to realize that if the Government undertakes to disarm them they must submit, and all danger of an outbreak is practically ended.

Albert Bierstadt, the artist, will sail for Europe in a few days to make studies in Switzerland. He has several large commissions to execute for wealthy patrons.

Governor Hoadley has rented the finest residence in Columbus, Ohio, and will take possession October 1. This indicates that the Governor is figuring for a re-election.

Joseph Tulvar, Chief Clerk in the New York Custom House, although a Democrat, has held his office continuously for thirty-two years and has survived twelve changes of Collectors. His salary is $5,000 per year.

Ex-President Hayes has written a letter to the mother of R. E. Odlum, who recently was killed in jumping from the Brooklyn bridge, expressing the regrets of himself, Mrs. Hayes, and the children. Odlum taught the Hayes children, and the ex-President says he was a most excellent teacher, to whom the children were warmly attached.

FRESH LITERATURE.

Personal Memoirs of U. S. Grant.—An inspection of a canvasser's copy of this eagerly-expected work does little more than give an idea of the style of binding, the text and illustrations. It is enough, however, to show that in mechanical execution the work will be first-class. In the cloth and morocco binding the outsides of the cover are decorated with gilt illustrations of the medal voted to General Grant by Congress on December 17th, 1863, in recognition of his Mississippi river campaign. A picture of Grant as Brevet Second Lieutenant of the Fourth Infantry at the age of twenty-one occupies the place of frontispiece in the first volume. The second volume presents a portrait taken in maturer life, and with which the public is more familiar. There are many other illustrations of a most interesting character. The little that is given of the text in the canvasser's copy shows it to be written in a clear, incisive style and without attempt at rhetorical effect; in fact, like General Grant himself, with no nonsense about it. The book will find an immense sale. (J. C. Oliver is the canvassing agent for Los Angeles.)

The Southern Bivouac, a literary and historical magazine, is published at Louisville, Kentucky, and has much to commend it, in its literary excellence, to public favor. It is published by B. F. Avery & Sons, and conducted by Basil W. Duke and Richard W. Knott. Of course it reflects Southern sentiment in matters relating to the war. Among the contents of the July number is a pleasant article entitled "Custer at the Surrender," by a Confederate Soldier; "Our Heroic Birds;" "What American Art Exhibitions are Doing;" "More of General Morgan's Escape;" "Some Generals I Have Known," etc. It is beautifully printed and its illustrations are good.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S VISIT.

A Scrap of Family History, and an Explanation.

San Francisco Chronicle, July 16.]

Yesterday's issue of the Chronicle contained a dispatch from Chicago announcing Arthur Sullivan's passage through that city on his way to Los Angeles, where, to quote his own words, he is about "to pay a sad visit." The visit referred to involves a little family history. In December, 1883, the passenger list of the Cunard steamship Pavonia included the names of Captain and Mrs. Hutchinson and the Sullivan family to the number of eight. It soon became known that Mrs. Hutchinson and her family were relatives of the composer of "Pinafore," and the musical ability of his nephews and nieces and their mother not only entertained the passengers, but very much contributed considerably to the cause of charity. Mrs. Hutchinson sang many of her brother-in-law's songs; one only she invariably declined to sing, the pathetic ballad, "Thou Art Passing Hence, Brother," was too closely associated with her personal feelings, for the inspiration of the composer of that song was drawn from the deathbed of his brother, Mrs. Hutchinson's husband.

During the journey the prospective visit of Sir Arthur to the new home of the emigrants was often referred to with great pleasure, he having been, in England, a constant visitor at his sister-in-law's house. Captain Hutchinson had bought a share in an extensive business in Los Angeles, and accompanied by his wife and step-children, had determined to pass his life among the orange groves.

Everything went well with the Hutchinson party until the time of Arthur Sullivan's visit was rapidly approaching, when the drop of gall fell into the cup of joy, and the anticipated visit was clouded with sorrow. Only four weeks ago the mother passed away with painful suddenness, and the absence of that expected welcome is what caused the composer to state that he was about "to pay a sad visit."

JOHN ROACH.

The Great Shipbuilder, Makes an Assignment.

New York, July 18.—John Roach, the ship builder who built the dispatch boat Dolphin, and who has been doing business under the name of John Roach & Son, made an assignment to George W. Quintard of this city, and George L. Weed of Stanford, Conn. The assignor first directs that the wages and salaries of all employes be paid and then he prefers Wm. Rowland of New Brunswick, N. J., for money loaned, work and labor done and material furnished $62,217, for a part of which he holds four promissory notes made by Mr. Roach. The promissory note made by the assignor, bearing date of June 10th, 1885, and payable in three months for $30,000, which was discounted by the Mechanics' and Traders' Bank of Brooklyn is also preferred. P. W. Gallaudet & Company for money loaned and advanced, are also preferred to the extent of $30,000. The assignment then directs the payment of all other debts and liabilities due or to become due, together with all interest on money due, including all lawful claims against John Roach by W. R. Pitney, Thos. Frowland, James E. Ward, George W. Quintard and Wm. Rowland for indemnity against expenses and liabilities incurred by them by reason of their having become sureties and having executed bonds in the instance of assignor, and for his benefit, upon certain contracts entered into by assignor, on or about the month of July, 1883, with the United States, represented by the Secretary of the Navy, for the construction of three steel cruisers, known, respectively, as the Boston, Atlanta and Chicago, and the dispatch boat Dolphin, and the lawful claims of the estate of Levi Kerr against assignor.

ENGLAND.

More Gossip About War Prospects.

ANXIOUS ABOUT ENGLAND'S DEFENSES.

The Government Promises to Look into the Navy — Russians Occupying Disputed Territory—Hot Words of Parnell.

New York, July 17.—The Sun's London special says: Few believe that there is any serious cause for alarm in the new phase of the Afghan boundary question. The special Russian commission in London expresses confidence that Salisbury would never fight for the miserable strip of territory now in dispute.

Military experts declare that the territory will give absolute command of Zulfikar Pass and thence of Herat. These officers insist that a conflict is inevitable, but the war talk is almost wholly confined to army circles, and their wish is understood to be father to the thought. It is noticed that naval officers are less belligerent in their talk, and it is suggested that the change of tone may be due to recent exposures of defective armor on war vessels, the proved inefficiency of torpedo boats and the practical failure of ordnance.

AN EGYPTIAN LOAN.

London, July 17.—The Standard believes that the government has received such assurances from European powers as to the probability of the Egyptian loan immediately. Germany is desirous that one-third of the loan be raised in that country.

THE EGYPTIAN LOAN ANNOUNCED.

London, July 17.—Robert Bourke, Under Foreign Secretary, stated in the Commons this afternoon that the Government would do its best to obtain an early issue of an Egyptian loan of $450,000,000. Negotiations with interested powers are being carried on with that end in view now, Mr. Bourke said, and the Government is unable to make any further statement at present.

WHAT THE RUSSIANS SAY.

St. Petersburg, July 17.—The Journal de St. Petersburg comments on the erroneous views held by the British press on the Zulfikar Pass question. It says that Russia understood that England had pledged to the Ameer the Zulfikar valley between Heri-Rud and the mountains, and agreed on the principle of leaving the position to him. It is not supposable that England has also promised to the Ameer the easterly mountain passes which are now the subject of negotiation between that country and Russia.

THE EMPIRE DEFENSE LEAGUE ANXIOUS.

London, July 17.—A conference of the Empire Defence League was held this morning in the Mansion House. Lord Lennox presided. The mayors of many provincial towns were present. Resolutions were adopted declaring that the defensive resources of the empire were inadequate, and urge the government to strengthen the navy for the purpose of protection to the coast, and to fortify colonial ports and coaling stations, and appoint a commission to inquire into the relative strength of the British and foreign navies.

Under the strengthening of the Nile, London, July 17.—A deputation of important citizens, headed by the Lord Mayor, called upon Lord George Hamilton, First Lord of the Admiralty, to-day and urged the necessity of strengthening the British navy. Lord George, in reply, said that the government intended to secure the best professional opinion as to the actual situation of the navy. If the advisers judged that the navy was at present efficient, the government would state that assurance to the public to allay alarm. If, on the other hand, it should be found by the advisers that the navy was in efficiency and that active steps were necessary to strengthen it, the government would not hesitate to ask Parliament for funds necessary to place England foremost among maritime powers.

NO FURTHER INFORMATION.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach stated that the government had no further information from the Afghan frontier than that made public yesterday.

THE PARNELL SPECIAL INQUIRY.

London, July 17.—Parnell moved this afternoon in the Commons that the government order a special inquiry into the Maamstrasna murder case.

A COMPACT.

London, July 17.—The News, in a leading editorial to-day, says the signs of an alliance between the Marqu's of Salisbury and Parnell are obvious. "We know of no compact," continues the News, "but a schism between the orthodox saints and Dollar Mormons, as men of this class are called, will be almost inevitable. If they decide to fight, it will signify that the church is still solid and will back its fight against the wars with all the money the Mormons have.

A PROPHETESS.

A Suspected Murder to Maintain Her Reputation.

Modesto, July 17.—Mariana Muriata, prophetess and leader of the bandit Joaquin, who created so much excitement last year among the Spanish residents of this county, causing them to assemble at her rendezvous in the mountains to await the judgment day, which, according to her prophecies, was close at hand, has turned up again, and in a manner that seems likely to bring her before the courts as defendant in a criminal suit. News reaches here to the effect that Dolphino Carona was on a visit to the rocks with his wife and children, and during their stay Mariana made a prophecy that they would start home and come back crying. They started home shortly afterwards, but they had proceeded only a short distance on their journey when a child was taken violently ill and they returned, truly enough in tears, for the child died half an hour afterwards. Those who learned of the matter at once assumed that Mariana had poisoned the child, in order to establish her reputation as a prophetess among ignorant people. This afternoon Coroner King, N. F. Duncan and Detective Fanning went from Fresno to Cambria to hold a post-mortem examination of the body.

SHOCKING.

A House and Six Children Burned —Incendiarism.

Pittsburg, July 17.—Last night the residence of Josiah Evans, a two-story log hut, three miles from Grahampton, Clearfield County, was destroyed by fire, and six of his children, ranging in age from six to fifteen years, were cremated. Evans was awakened by strange noises, and, under the impression that burglars were about, took his gun and went outside. To his horror he discovered the dwelling in flames. Before he could reach the children, who were sleeping on the second floor, the roof fell in, and in a few minutes the building was all ablaze. Mrs. Evans, wife and three younger children, sleeping on the lower floor were taken out safely, but the parents were forced to see their children perish in the flames. This morning hundreds of people were drawn to the scene. The remains of the four children, charred and unrecognizable, were found this day and buried in one coffin. The other two were apparently reduced to ashes, as no trace of them was found. The parents are prostrated with grief, and the whole community is exercised over the horror. The father insists that the fire was the work of an incendiary, and in this opinion others share.

IN HOT WATER.

Prominent Mormons who Must Plead in Court.

Salt Lake, July 18. — On Monday Bishop John Sharp, one of the Union Pacific Directors, Bishop H. B. Clawson, Brigham's double son-in-law, and Henry Dinwood, a leading Mormon merchant, will all be brought into court to plead to indictments charging unlawful cohabitation. The two first named were arrested some time ago; the latter only to-day, though he had been under indictment several months. The Federal authorities have not forced these men to plead, because the Mormons are influential, and are understood to be anxious to have this church come within the law to avoid conflict. They were given time and opportunity to use their influence to that end. It is not known how they will plead, but whatever plea may be entered will be unanimous. If they plead guilty and promise to obey the law in future, a schism between the orthodox saints

Weekly Mirror.

Coast Development—A Sound View.

The San Francisco Chronicle prints an editorial of which the following is the closing paragraph:

It is a fact, and a very curious one, that the Oregonian Pacific road by the completion of the Northern Pacific and by the competition of Los Angeles for the trade of the South; but the latter has built up the cities of Portland and Los Angeles, and we can-not help sharing their prosperity. Whatever benefits them must benefit us in one way or another; there can be no reform on the Pacific coast in which the great city of the coast will not participate. The Oregonian will profit if it patiently examines the press of the day, that the dullness of trade and merchants complain is not peculiar to San Francisco, but is common, not only to all the cities of the East, but to the great centers of European trade as well. All over the world money is low, labor is cheap, profits are small, the rate of interest is nominal, and working people are underselling more privileged. This condition of things comes every few years, with curious regularity, and lasts until new outlets for industry or new opportunities for enterprise are discovered.

This is an exceptionally candid utterance for a San Francisco paper to make, and it is true as it is candid. It is in harmony, however, with preceding utterances of the same journal on kindred topics. The idea of the Chronicle, that building up the various parts of the Pacific Coast is the most effective way of building up San Francisco, the great metropolis, is one idea, and the carrying out of it to its logical conclusion will surely be great fruits for the Bay City. For San Francisco journals, merchants or citizens to entertain jealousy of Los Angeles, Portland or any other coast town, lest them as "dangerous rivals," and such their injury instead of their advancement, is narrow, selfish and unwise. San Francisco occupies a commanding commercial position on the western shore—a position which can never be taken away or eclipsed by any rival—and she can afford to pursue a liberal policy towards the whole country that is tributary to her, from Alaska to Panama. In fact, it would be stupid not to pursue any other policy, commercially. Her merchants, however, do not all appreciate this truth, as witness the occasion when they formally and strenuously sought to induce the railroad company to adopt a policy of discrimination against Los Angeles in the matter of overland freights, for the benefit of San Francisco. The railroad company had intelligent self interest enough to refuse the demand, and the narrow-contracted merchants have been dissatisfied ever since.

So, the larger and general interests of the coast are one; we are all in the same boat, and must sail or sink together.

It is a grand thing to know that Call fornia is a country where great vices are prohibited as well as punished. The following statement, taken from the San José Mercury, while a little on the Pantheistic, hither-than-thou order, is yet gratifying to State pride. Of course the accuracy of the declaration cannot be questioned. The Mercury says:

"California is in advance of England and is respect of laws protecting the virtue of young girls. The evils for which the laws of England have as yet made no provision constitute felony under the statute of this State. The age of female maturity and consent is 18 years in California and 13 in England. The crimes committed in London with impunity would land wealthy debauchees in the State prison in this portion of the wild and unistured West."

Now we wonder what Senator Sharon and Lesky Baldwin think, looking through the grated windows of their prison cells and reading these emblazoned truths upon the pages of the Mercury!

Rheumatics have exceptional freaks of not being suggestful, as the following case goes to show: In the late war, Charles S. Kingsley, a Union soldier from Mansfield, Pa., was so badly wounded that his head had to be patched up with silver plates. He became insane and was sent to the government asylum in Washington. After twenty years one of the plates was readjusted and the man's reason returned like a flash. But he had no recollection of what had occurred since the day when he was wounded in battle. He was released, and steps were taken to secure for him the $20,000 back pension to which he is entitled. In addition to that he will draw $73 a month as long as he lives. The veteran found his family all right at Mansfield, but in destitute circumstances. The restoration of the husband and father in his right mind and with a snug little fortune, must have made that family one of the happiest in the land.

A prominent Democrat of Los Angeles, who is much interested in the affairs of Uncle Asa Ellis, and who naturally applies to his local organ, the TIMES, wants to know, you know, why Uncle Asa has not appointed as one of his deputies the brother of Judge Wallace, who is now in Los Angeles. This inquiring Democrat says that as Uncle Asa owes his own appointment to Judge Wallace, he ought to reciprocate by helping out his patron's poor relatives wherever found. This is a lovely problem, which we feel hardly authorized to answer for Uncle Asa, and we must beg our Democratic applicant to hold his horses till we refer the matter to headquarters. The Monte ezuma is going up in a week or two to dine with Uncle Asa and Judge Wallace at the Baldwin Hotel, as announced in the authentic interview which the TIMES published yesterday, and he can then submit this important question.

It is a pretty thing to see and hear and read the sentimental and pointed paragraph: "It has been announced, in the name of reform, that the system of bookkeeping in the Navy Department is to be patterned hereafter on that in use in the English Admiralty. Rather awkwardly for this scheme, however, it has just been discovered that by a series of blunders in the Admiralty accounts the English fund is in error to the extent of $3,-000,000, and explanations from the late government are in request. Without wishing to be dogmatic on a technical question, we have a belief that American systems of bookkeeping are quite as modern and scientific as any employed in the English circumlocution office."

Saint Thomas Porcher, of Utah, did not stop at polygamy alone, but committed incest as well, by taking a niece for one of his plural wives. There is no law against incest in Utah. But what the laws of men overlooked, the laws of nature punished. Of ten children born of this unholy alliance all are dead.

Health and Population Statistics.

The Sacramento Record-Union prints a leading editorial, from which we extract the following:

The monthly circular of the State Board of Health for June, for cities and towns, contains a tabulated mortality statement. This is made up from reports furnished to the secretary, who gives the name of his authority in each case. There are in the table some figures that we consider grave errors. Thus the aggregate deaths in Sacramento for June give the figure 30. The rate of mortality for each 1,000 is arrived at, of course, upon the basis of total population. This is given as 25,-000. It is a fair figure, since we had, by the census report in 1880, 21,340, and it is notorious that the local marshals took the census indifferently. Twenty-five thousand is a fair figure, we say, but the true figure is probably higher, as is derivable from our school census and our voting strength. However, at 25,000, the rate of mortality for June was 1 1-5 for each 1,000 of people, or 1 death in every 833⅓ population. But in Los Angeles given a population of 35,000, and a death total of 32, or but two more than in Sacramento, while the claim is made for 10,000 more population. This is simply absurd. It gives but one death in 1,097⅕ for Los Angeles, or but 32 35 for each 1000. In 1880 the census report gave Los Angeles 11,183 of population. She has multiplied in less than five years, though she has largely increased her population. We do not believe she has doubled in number of people. But if there is allowed her even an equal population to Sacramento city, she has then a higher mortality rate.

The TIMES is not inclined, in this sultry weather, to argue very hotly with its Sacramento colleague over the questions here raised. We do not care to go into a discussion of the above statistics further than to maintain—which we can do successfully, we think—that our population is in fact not less than 30,000. (We do not stand for the figures 35,000, and never have, nor do our best-informed and more conservative authorities, though some of our enthusiastic people stick for the higher figure.) In the absence of any exact census since 1880, the basis upon which our later calculations have been made are the Great Register of voters, the school census and the water company's registration; and these fairly bear out our claim to the possession of not less than 30,000 population. Our growth within the last five years has been really remarkable—greater, indeed, than some rival cities are willing to acknowledge.

Touching the question of the relative death-rate, as compared with Sacramento, for instance, we think the claim of superior healthfulness can be set up in behalf of Los Angeles with good reason, and without necessarily involving anything in the nature of invidious comparison. The reasons are obvious. Los Angeles is nearer both the mountains and the sea than Sacramento, and has a more saline and salubrious atmosphere than the Capital City. The weather is cooler here than there. The conditions producing malaria are not present here in the same degree as in the moist and hot climate of the Sacramento valley. It is not strange, therefore that the health reports should be comparatively favorably to Los Angeles. The conditions as well as the records justify such a conclusion.

An Ohio Idea.

Several sons of the Buckeye State, resident in Los Angeles, have been quietly and informally discussing among themselves the expediency of forming an Ohio association here. Considering the large number of Ohio men and women who now count Los Angeles county as their home, the idea suggested is perfectly feasible, and such an association could be made to possess undoubted advantages. The central idea and chief aim would probably be social, but in addition to this feature it would be easy to incorporate other features, as might be found desirable, from time to time. The pleasant task of meeting, greeting and looking after newcomers from the old State, upon their arrival here, would doubtless be one of the works of the association. The dissemination of reliable information about their new home among their friends left behind them would be another. A monthly social could be held and made a nice affair. And so forth.

The suggestion is made that Ohio people talk the matter over when they meet, and then, if they agree to go ahead with an organization, call a meeting for that purpose. The TIMES approves the suggestion, and will report progress.

The Santa Barbara Press, with more candor and less jealousy than have been manifested by some of our "esteemed contrumperies" of the outside bailiwicks, when speaking of Los Angeles, prints the following open-handed editorial paragraph:

Los Angeles transfers of real estate for the past six months, according to an item made by the TIMES, have amounted to the enormous sum of four millions three hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Figures cannot lie, and that amount of money or property does not change hands in any new district without signifying progress of the solid kind, especially when more than one item of that size is reported in a single week. Los Angeles, and indeed the whole of Southern California, is certainly passing through a remarkable era of growth and improvement.

* We expect to see, after the present temporary dull season has retired into the limbo of things past, a revival of immigration, business, and development in Southern California beyond precedent—a movement that will send the whole country booming forward on the road of prosperity, which has no such word as fail in the bright lexicon of its signboards.

The boisterous proceedings reported in St. Mary's Episcopal church at Kansas City last Sunday amounted to a travesty on religion. Of course if this supposably "Reverend" Mr. Jardine had any respect for the cause of Christ, he would not attempt to conduct his services before such a howling mob. This is the same dominie with whom the Kansas City Times had a tilt not long ago. Jardine sued the Times for libel, laying heavy damages, and the Times, in maintaining its case, delved into the preacher's early history, showing that he had served a term in the New York State Prison. More recent moral lapses—some of them with women—are set down as the immediate causes of the Rector's unpopularity. He had better be born again, and, meantime, quit preaching.

The Mexican editors left Boston impressed with the importance of baked beans as a source of eloquence. It will not be strange if Mexico should turn out a great bean-growing district when the returning editors get a chance to properly lay their merits before their constituents.

The Boston Traveler scents danger in a coalition between free-traders and silverites in Congress to push a tariff reduction through next winter. It says: "It would seem as if the two years or more of business depression, directly traceable in large measure to tariff agitation, should have made even the most reckless of the free-traders hesitate, but, on the contrary, it seems to have inspired them with greater determination, and it may be with perfect safety predicted that every influence hostile to the American tariff system will be rallied for a herculean assault at Washington."

Some highly important and strictly accurate information concerning the Honorable Asa Ellis and "one of them offices"—the one that he has got his gigantic grangef grip onto in San Francisco—appears on the local page of today's issue. It was procured from a special commissioner of the TIMES, a kid Democrat, at enormous expense, and is published exclusively in the Honorable Asa's home organ.

Barnum, the great showman, gets in his usually able puff this time by the slaughter of a ten thousand dollar elephant. Fifteen members of the Keene Life Guards pour a volley of bullets into the animal's heart, and the Associated Press tells the story. Barnum could afford to sacrifice an elephant each summer, or fall, with such recognition.

M. Lesbar, a Russian authority, now says openly that the possession of Herat has become a necessity to Russia, and the taking of it by that power ought not to cause war. It seems like a well-defined case of "Fifty-four forty or fight."

One of the most deplorable results of John Roach's failure is the throwing of twenty-four hundred workmen out of employment. All were paid off, however, before operations were curtailed.

Twenty-five thousand cotton operatives at Oldham, England, are on a strike.

THE WORM.

An Enemy Which Destroys in Sericulture.

Sacramento Record-Union.]

The friends of silk culture in California will very likely feel that they have been injured in the eyes of their friends by an assault from an American writer upon the business of raising silkworms. The New York Tribune denominates that business as petty, degrading and "fit only for persons of half-animal peasants," it simply speaks from the volume of its ignorance of the subject. A very large number of families are engaged in that business in California, and do not find it to be a degrading labor. Ladies of culture and refinement, rich and poor, have been and for years cultivated the silk-worm without losing caste. Wonderful processes of evolution by which the silk thread is produced, from the hatching of the egg, to the worm through its five ages, to the spinning period, to the cocoon, to the formation of the chrysalid, the birth of the moth, and finally the reproduction of the egg. Silk culture is taught in all the schools of France, from the primary to the grammar grades, and in the private and convent schools. The question of its profitableness is as yet not settled in America, but a writer in the Tribune charges that the labor involved is "degrading." It speaks, we repeat, either from the wealth of its ignorance of the subject, or in the interest of foreign silk culturists, who view the establishment of filatures here with great jealousy. We are not ready to believe that the Tribune is under any such influence, and therefore charitably ascribe its singular position to the lack of correct information. Provided silk can be made sufficiently remunerative, we in California think the raising of silk-worms will be a specially appropriate industry for the home, to employ the labors of children and the members of the household without serious interference with their other domestic duties. We agree with Rossiter that "there are hundreds of thousands of families in the United States to-day who would be materially helped to add a few dollars to their annual income by giving light and easy employment for a few months each year to the more aged, to the young, and more especially to the women of the family, who may have no other means of profitably employing their time."

Orange Crop.

Santa Ana Herald.]

Since the commencement of the shipping season there have been forwarded to market from the Santa Ana depot 53,703 boxes of oranges. It is estimated that an equal number of boxes have been shipped from the Orange depot. If this is so the shipments from the valley would foot up the handsome total of 107,406 boxes. The Herald estimated, before shipping commenced, that the orange crop of the Santa Ana valley would foot up 50,000 boxes, which was considered too high by many. The bulk of the crop has been marketed in the East. Some of the growers have received very fair prices, a few good prices and some lost money. The fruit that shipped before it was in good condition, poured into the Chicago market instead of being properly distributed throughout the numerous towns of the great West. The sawdust barrel proved also caused a heavy loss, much of the fruit spoiling. The vigorous rubbing and scrubbing process will also, especially where oranges are sent to market three thousand miles distant. The experience gained this year will prove valuable.

Oilvenhain Colony.

Union, July 16.]

President York, of Oilvenhain, reports the affairs of the colony as taking a better shape since their land troubles were adjusted. All the indebtedness of the colony has been settled, either by payment in full or by payment in part and provision for paying the residue at future times. A few, perhaps a dozen, have left the colony and settled upon government land. Efforts will be at once directed to getting a proper water supply for the colony lands. Some are selling their small tracts to members who are able to buy, as they have discovered that it is folly to think of making a living from five acres of land in this section. The colony will reorganize and abandon the co-operative. Each land owner will operate for himself.

Thrown From His Buggy.

San Leandro, Cal., July 21.—W. P. McCoy, a contractor and builder of San Lorenzo, was thrown from his buggy in this place this morning by his horse shying. He struck the curbing with his head, making two very deep wounds at the back of the head, producing concussion of the brain. He was also injured very badly internally. At this hour, 8 P. m., he has not recovered consciousness, and small hopes are entertained of his recovery.

ROACH'S FAILURE.

His Physical Condition Considered Precarious.

THE SMASH-UP A NATIONAL CALAMITY,

But Some People Call it a Blind, and Say It Is Intended to "Head Off" the Government.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

New York, July 20.—The Tribune prints a long interview with John Roach, in reference to his failure. After denying the correctness of statements previously published, he says: "Now, as to the cause which led up to my assignment: Strictly speaking, it is not a failure; that is to say, my solvency will be able to pay two dollars for every one dollar of liabilities if they realize anything like the real value of my property. I cannot now say what the exact amount of my liabilities is, nor what the sum of my assets will be. But if I were not so old a man, and I could have my health a while longer, I could pull things straight again. If people understood the matter—if the associations free-trade press had not so extensively deceived them—the failure of John Roach would be recognized from ocean to ocean as a national calamity. Twenty-four hundred workmen—800 in the Morgan Iron Works and twice that number at Chester—went out of my shops on Saturday night, who will not be back to-morrow. In those hard times that is a serious matter. This is not a party question. I have been a Republican, but ahead of that I have first, last and ever been an American."

THE WORKMEN PAID.

New York, July 20.—The workmen employed at John Roach's shop in this city were to-day paid off in full the wages due them. Until the present financial troubles of Roach are settled, only sufficient force will be retained to complete existing contracts.

SYMPATHY FOR ROACH.

New York, July 20.—The Sun says: Roach has received telegrams from prominent Republicans in different parts of the country, offering sympathy and financial assistance. His physician said yesterday: "You may say as emphatically as you please that Roach is in a broken-down condition. He is suffering from great mental and physical prostration, and his family are in great anxiety about him. His case is not absolutely instance of the overthrow of health by care and worry. Roach is in no condition to attend to business, and I have advised his family to keep him from all excitement. I have suggested to him the advisability of going away for a while for rest."

IN IT A RUSH?

Washington, July 20.—Fifty for Roach is in a measure suspended, still it appears more clearly whether it is a strategic movement engineered by Chandler or a bona fide failure. It is generally thought that the government will be embarrassed by the failure of the master will be that it will take the Dolphin as the easiest disposition of the matter.

AT THE SHIP YARDS.

Chester, Pa., July 20.—The workmen at Roach's ship yard are feeling about the same as they were when the news of the failure of the firm first reached them. All of the 1,322 were given employment. About 200, employed in the engineering department, had to go home. Most of these retained were sent to the steamer Comal. It is the intention of the firm to finish the Comal by August 15th, as she is expected to go to New York at that time. The yard will close down. The government cruisers look deserted and not a sound of a hammer is heard about them. Roach says that work will not be resumed on the vessels ordered by the government. It is stated that men who went to work this morning did so with the understanding that they would submit to a reduction of wages. All who were laid off were paid in full this afternoon. The streets all day have been crowded with idle people discussing the gloomy outlook.

THE SACK-DOOR OPEN.

How the Chinese Swarm in From British Columbia—Leaders Waking Up.

La Francisco, July 20.—N. Shakespeare, representative of the city of Victoria in the Dominion Parliament, who is at present in San Francisco, on his way home from Ottawa, was interviewed on the subject of the passage of the Chinese from British Columbia into the United States territory. He said that immigration across the border is constantly increasing. There are men who own sloops and make a regular and profitable business of taking loads of coolies from Victoria territory to New Dungeness Spit, Fort Discovery or San Juan. Numbers of Chinese also secrete themselves on steamers and slip ashore at Fort Townsend, or, of course, being detected, but not many. He thinks concerted action, if it is possible between both governments, is the best way. People in Canada, he states, are finally awaking to the matter of Chinese immigration. The completion of the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway will open a thoroughfare over which Chinese immigrants can travel direct to the eastern provinces without letting the inhabitants to consider ing what will be the effect on the condition of a large number of boys and girls now employed there in factories and other work, which the Chinese will undoubtedly take out of their hands. Mr. Shakespeare and others have need every opportunity to bring these facts before their fellow-citizens, and these meetings are being held, and a general agitation has been inaugurated.

TWELVE HUNDRED MORE CHINESE.

San Francisco, July 20.—The steamer Arabic, which arrived yesterday from Hong Kong, brought 1200 Chinese passengers.

A REGATTA.

Some Good Sculling at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, July 20.—Seven thousand people assembled at McKee's Rocks this afternoon to witness the final heats in the Tourney regatta. The weather was oppressively hot, but the water as smooth as glass. The event was a three-mile professional scull for a purse of $800. The entries were Teemer, Gaudaur, Teemyer, McKay, Hamm and Hosmer. As the word go all took water together, but Teemer, with the fastest stroke, quickly went to the front. Before the contestants had gone thirty yards, however, Gaudaur drew up to Teemer and passed him at the end of the first mile, turning the buoy three lengths in the lead with Teemer second, Teemyer third, Hamm and McKay a tie for fourth, and Hosmer bringing up the rear. On the home-stretch Teemer made an effort to close the gap, but Gaudaur pulled away from him and finished the four lengths in the lead; time, 19:32; Teemer second in 19:35, and Teemyer third in 19:54.

In the double scull, Gaudaur and Hosmer against Hamm and McKay, Gaudaur and Hosmer took the lead at the start and maintained it till the finish in 18:41½, Teemyer in the professional single race is the fastest ever made, beating Teemer's record of 20:01½ made on New Orleans last year. At the conclusion of the contests the police raided the gamblers, who were operating all kinds of games along the course. Their goods were seized and a large number were arrested.

A SAGACIOUS DOG.

He Shows Where His Master Lost His Life.

Truckee, July 20.—Last Friday night M. Houlihan, a well-known saloon-keeper, mysteriously disappeared. Houlihan had been drinking freely of late, and it was supposed that he had gone away from town for a few days. His favorite dog acted so strangely yesterday that universal attention was attracted to him. The dog would go to a bridge and whine and look into the water and then return, making the trip several times. As Houlihan did not return, a force of men turned out to-day and searched the Truckee River, influenced by the dog's conduct, when his body was found about three hundred yards below the bridge. He had $114 in coin in his pocket and no marks of violence on his person. The Coroner's jury returned a verdict of death from drowning.

A HIGH OLD TIME.

How Rector Jardine Preached to a Demonstrative Congregation.

Kansas City, July 21.—A most extraordinary and dramatic scene was enacted at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, one of the oldest and formerly the most fashionable in the city, Sunday, when the Rector, the Rev. Henry D. Jardine, attempted to conduct the services. He has been rector of St. Mary's for the past six years and has been one of the most advanced men in the Episcopal church. Public sentiment has been immensely wrought up against Jardine, owing to charges made against him of immoral practices. But for the presence of policemen in large numbers in the church, he would undoubtedly have been dragged from the pulpit and tarred and feathered. When Jardine appeared at the altar, the congregation became a howling mob. In repeating the decalogue he read the seventh commandment, when he was greeted with a storm of derisive laughter, the stamping of feet and cries of "Rats!" "Rats!" As soon as quiet had been in a measure restored he proceeded in a firm voice and read, "Thou shalt not bear false witness." This did not have the desired effect and was received with hisses. The commandment, "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife," called forth thunderous applause, which exceeded in volume the demonstration which had preceded it. As the rector ceased speaking and turned to the altar, another demonstration was made by the audience. All through the sermon the speaker was constantly interrupted by stamping and shouting. The exhibitions of disapproval being most pronounced when those present who believed him guilty as "ignorant, prejudiced louts," and when he posed as a martyr in a good cause. Scenes of the wildest confusion were kept up until the close of the services. At the evening services the same riotous conduct was repealed. Indignation is widespread and trouble is feared.

RACING.

Great Preparations for the Saratoga Affair.

New York, July 20.—Dispatches received from Saratoga say that no previous meeting of the Saratoga Association ever began under such favorable promises as that beginning to-morrow. Over four hundred head of horses are stabled at the track and vicinity. The programme for the first day begins with an introductory scramble of five furlongs, for which Jim Berwick, Jim Douglass, Mono and others will start, and a great race between the California pair, Jim is expected. The second race is Wheatley's first steeplechase, the distance being one mile at weight for age, with allowances. Among the probable starters is Volante. The third race is Travers' stakes for three-year-olds, mile and three-quarters, $100 entrance each; $1000 added by the Association and elegant punch-bowl by W. R. Travers. The World announces that Bison, Tyrant, Hidalgo and Volante are already entered. Fifteen others are expected.

BRIGHTON BEACH, July 20.—Attendance good. Track fast. In the three-quarter mile for two-year-olds, Frank Ward won, Lulu second, Beadle B. third. Time 1:17¾. In the mile and an eighth, Nimblefoot won, Miss Daly third. Time 1:58. In the mile and a quarter, for all ages, Ella Wren won, Brewster second, Islette third. Time 2:15¾. In the prize mile and a quarter for maiden two-year-olds, Tar Heel won, Unique second, Lizzie Walter third. Time 1:18¾. In the mile, for all ages, Frankie B. won, Perides second, Lucy Lewis third. Time 1:45. In the mile and eighths of a mile, Judge Griffith won, Wellington second, Hazard third. Time 1:33.

HOPS OR NO HOPS.

An Interesting Discussion as to What Makes the Beer.

New York, July 20.—The statement recently made by some hop-growers that the present glut in their market was owing in part to the use of substitutes for hops by brewers, is emphatically denied by those gentlemen. Hop dealers now show by statistics that if there were the same amount of hops put in each barrel of beer as formerly—namely, one and a half pounds—the entire crop of the world would not have been sufficient for the amount of beer that has been brewed in recent years. A well-known brewer denied this, saying, "A few years ago this firm used nearly all the hops that were raised in this country. The growers were comparatively few in number and had a regular monopoly of the business. They dictated prices and we had to conform to them, for, owing to the heavy tariff, the importations of them were too high for the higher grades of beer, was out of the question. But now immense crops are raised in California, Oregon and Washington Territory, and owing to the greater fertility of soil on the Pacific coast they can be produced much cheaper there than in the East, and will stand the use of a fine quality in every respect. It is that this makes them so cheap at present; not because we use any less of them, for we do not. There are too many rivals in the brewery business for a man to put an inferior article on the market, and he dare not make anything deleterious to health, even if he be so disposed.

WASHINGTON.

Sheridan Ordered to Keep the Trail Open—Appointments.

Washington, July 20.—The President to-day appointed to be special agents for the General Land Office James A. Munday, of Kentucky, and Clay Taylor, of Missouri.

DECREASE IN IMMIGRATION.

The Chief of the Bureau of Statistics reports the number of immigrants who arrived in the United States, during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1885, as 327,621, being 123,018 less than the immigration during the preceding fiscal year, and 401,171 less than during the fiscal year June 30, 1882.

KEEP THE TRAIL OPEN.

The following is a copy of the telegram in relation to the opening of the cattle trail in the Indian territory, which was sent from the War Department: "You are instructed by the Secretary of War to keep by such means as will carry out the decision of the Secretary of the Interior to open and keep open the cattle trail and highways leading into Indian Territory and Southern to and upon public lands, for the purpose of unobstructed passage of cattle and other purposes of interstate commerce."

WHISKY DID IT.

The Awful Death of a Drunkard—Sad Consequences.

Pittsburg, July 20.—At 1:30 o'clock this morning, Patrick Flaherty, residing on Diamond street, McKeesport, after drinking to excess with several companions, started for home. Entering the house, he took a lighted lamp from the table and started up stairs. In some manner the lamp was knocked from his hand and exploded, saturating his clothes with oil and setting them on fire. He started out of the house and ran up the street for several blocks, when he fell exhausted and was slowly roasted to death. His screams for help being unheard owing to the deserted neighborhood. His body was found at daylight with it burned to a crisp. News of his death was sent to Mrs. Flaherty and her five children and they ran immediately to the spot where he was lying. When Mrs. Flaherty beheld her husband she gave one piercing scream and fell prostrate across his body. When lifted up life had gone. The scene presented by the five orphaned children weeping at the side of their dead parents was heartrending.

THE BOLDEST YET.

A Street Car Conductor Garroted in Broad Daylight.

San Francisco, July 20.—A surprisingly bold outrage occurred here yesterday afternoon, when four hoodlums garroted and robbed Conductor Hearne while riding in one of the cars of the Union street cable line. There were a number of passengers in the car, but no interference with the robbers' work was attempted. Several ladies fainted. About $15 in small change was obtained. As the thieves left the car one of the male passengers yelled to the bystanders, "Stop the fleeing villains!" One of them was captured, and from information obtained from him two others were arrested. Hearne was severely injured in the attack made on him and was carried to the company's engine house, where he was given medical attention.

An Egyptian Rebellion.

Cairo, July 21.—News has reached here from Kassala to the effect that a large force of rebels attacked that place and made several desperate attempts to carry it by assault. They were finally repulsed, and the garrison at Kassala, following up their victory, captured the rebel camp, with 2000 oxen and sheep and 700 rifles. The enemy lost 800 men killed and wounded, while the garrison's casualties were small.

A Long Sentence.

Sterling, Ky., July 20.—Mrs. Strickline, charged with complicity in the murder of her husband, has been sentenced to the penitentiary for ninety-nine years. Floyd Williams, who committed the crime, is here awaiting execution.

FOREIGN TRADE.

The San Francisco Chamber of Commerce Speaks Up,

AND READS THE GOVERNMENT A LECTURE

What the Trade with Australia and New Zealand Amounts to—What the Trade with South America Might Be.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

San Francisco, July 21.—At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to-day a resolution was adopted favoring the payment of subsidies to American steamship companies for carrying mail, and protesting against the action of Postmaster-General Vilas in withholding the payment of subsidies from money appropriated for that purpose by Congress, which action may cause the withdrawal of the steamers plying between San Francisco and Australia.

Following is the full text of the resolutions:

That the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco respectfully urges upon the Postmaster-General the desirability of immediate settlement of the question as to the proportion of the appropriation for the maintenance of American steam mail service that can be devoted to the continuance of the New Zealand and Australian line, which has been running for fourteen years as a mail line of the New South Wales and New Zealand governments, and during the current year at the expense of the New Zealand government, at a cost of $120,000 per annum.

Col. Bee, Chinese Consul, when interviewed on the subject, said that since the establishment of the Pacific Mail line, exports from the United States have exceeded imports by two hundred and fifty per cent., and that, of this percentage, the great bulk of profit has gone to Pacific Coast traders. Consul Bee said that the abandonment of the Pacific Mail steamers to Australia would be one of the greatest misfortunes that could happen to the Pacific Coast.

The report of the committee stated that during the period under review, business between Australia, New Zealand and the United States, promoted by this service, has increased 50 per cent., and in exports 240 per cent., exclusive of specie. We do not find such a rate of increase in our domestic exports to any of the rest of the world during ten years. The exports of these countries are of a nature that comprises very articles manufactured in America. The commission appointed by Congress is now working up statistics and visiting the countries of Central and South America, and in their preliminary report they show that, while manufacturers of the United States have been compelled to work on half time or shut down entirely, England is selling millions of dollars' worth of goods (that we can produce quite as cheaply) under our very noses. The same goods, the report says, are nearly always better in quality, might have been made in the United States, were it not for the fact that the carrying trade has been in the hands of Englishmen who have brought raw products of South America to ports of the United States to sell for gold, and have gone to Liverpool to buy a return cargo. This unfair trade has resulted in a balance against the United States during the last twenty years equal to almost the entire of our national debt. The commission has been, giving the trade for Independent nations of Central and South America, and have shown that the excess of imports has been nearly $600,000,000 during that time. Last year the Government "encouraged" commerce in this direction to the extent of $1,000,000, in the form of compensation for the transportation of mails to Central and South America, stating St. Thomas. The Commissioners are of opinion that this Economy goes a great way toward an explanation of the $600,000,000 excess of imports, contrasting this state of affairs with New Zealand and Australian colonies, we find that the balances of trade are continually and increasingly in our favor, in spite of the wealthiest and most populous of the seaboard cities on the face of the earth, speaking our own language and rapidly assimilating to us in the mode of government and social institutions, and by geographical position and ties of blood, France and Germany have recently established a mail line between European points and Adelaid, Australia, and that Sydney. The consequence has been a direct line between these continental nations and colonies of 6000 miles, and, as an instance of the avalanche of trade and facilities for trade, French steamers during the present war are carried large amounts of specie thence to the United Kingdom via Marseilles. In April last, when imminent between Russia and England, the English steamer Zealandia was then leaving Sydney for San Francisco with many passengers intending to come to the United States waited until next month to avail themselves of the next American steamer City of Sydney, and at the end of March, or in the early part of May last, a number of through passengers by the Zealandia left her to follow by the American steamer Mariposa, fearing the consequences of traveling on a British steamer if war were declared. Some days ago an English war ship departed from this city to the assistance of certain Australian colonies for the establishment of steam communication between that country and Fiji. The result was the granting of a subsidy to the following under the American flag, which has been in operation from that time until now. The proposed line is to be established at once on the old lines of the New Zealand government, at a cost of $120,000 per annum.

The report of the committee stated that during the period under review, business between Australia, New Zealand and the United States, promoted by this service, has increased 50 per cent., and in exports 240 per cent., exclusive of specie. We do not find such a rate of increase in our domestic exports to any of the rest of the world during ten years. The exports of these countries are of a nature that comprises very articles manufactured in America. The commission appointed by Congress is now working up statistics and visiting the countries of Central and South America, and in their preliminary report they show that, while manufacturers of the United States have been compelled to work on half time or shut down entirely, England is selling millions of dollars' worth of goods (that we can produce quite as cheaply) under our very noses. The same goods, the report says, are nearly always better in quality, might have been made in the United States, were it not for the fact that the carrying trade has been in the hands of Englishmen who have brought raw products of South America to ports of the United States to sell for gold, and have gone to Liverpool to buy a return cargo. This unfair trade has resulted in a balance against the United States during the last twenty years equal to almost the entire of our national debt. The commission has been, giving the trade for Independent nations of Central and South America, and have shown that the excess of imports has been nearly $600,000,000 during that time. Last year the Government "encouraged" commerce in this direction to the extent of $1,000,000, in the form of compensation for the transportation of mails to Central and South America, stating St. Thomas. The Commissioners are of opinion that this Economy goes a great way toward an explanation of the $600,000,000 excess of imports, contrasting this state of affairs with New Zealand and Australian colonies, we find that the balances of trade are continually and increasingly in our favor, in spite of the wealthiest and most populous of the seaboard cities on the face of the earth, speaking our own language and rapidly assimilating to us in the mode of government and social institutions, and by geographical position and ties of blood, France and Germany have recently established a mail line between European points and Adelaid, Australia, and that Sydney. The consequence has been a direct line between these continental nations and colonies of 6000 miles, and, as an instance of the avalanche of trade and facilities for trade, French steamers during the present war are carried large amounts of specie thence to the United Kingdom via Marseilles. In April last, when imminent between Russia and England, the English steamer Zealandia was then leaving Sydney for San Francisco with many passengers intending to come to the United States waited until next month to avail themselves of the next American steamer City of Sydney, and at the end of March, or in the early part of May last, a number of through passengers by the Zealandia left

Ulysses S. Grant.

With bated breath and with millions of loyal hearts throbbing as one in their sympathy for the great, heroic, silent sufferer, the nation has watched and waited through these last days for every word that should reach it from the chamber of the dauntless, yet dying, hero. Through all the long and painful struggle with his insidious disease, General Grant was not deceived. He knew what the end would be. But with a courage and determination characteristic of himself, an unyielding fortitude that gave to him the mastery of himself while standing face to face with the inevitable which was so near, he worked calmly, patiently and unfalteringly to finish the task which he had set himself to do. The world never witnessed a more pathetic spectacle than that of the great General whose invincible courage, calm foresight and matchless military skill had led our armies on to victory, financially overwhelmed himself at last—by no fault of his own, but through the criminal treachery of one whom he had trusted—stricken by mortal disease, yet bravely, uncomplainingly and steadfastly from day to day toiling through the long and painful hours, silent and uncomplaining to the end.

The nation's heart was touched by this as it could have been in no other way. It took a new measure of its hero. It read the man as it had never read him before. It went back with an added feeling of tenderness and of reverence to the battlefields of Shiloh, Fort Henry, Fort Donelson and Big Black, to The Wilderness, Cold Harbor and Petersburg, to Richmond and to Appomattox, which shed their splendid and undying lustre upon the arms of the Republic and the name of Grant, the victorious General. It pondered anew the debt of gratitude that not only the nation itself owed, but which freedom through all coming ages will owe to the conquering leader of our loyal armies.

But while the Nation's heart was stirred by these memories, the feeling grew to be almost universal that in the splendor of those achievements the grandeur of the man was not more fully unfolded and understood than in the darker and later hours when he, though fully conscious of the swift, inexorable ebbing of his life's tide, left no duty undone, enduring without a murmur his burden of suffering, and with a calmness that was without fear awaited the end.

But still again, and yet again we turn backward to the hour of our nation's peril, when defeat and disaster attended our arms in the East; when the confidence of loyal hearts had begun to falter, and men were almost ready to despair, when the command of all our armies was given to the silent soldier whose signal successes in the West had already given him national renown. It was at the very consummation of that struggle when the responsibility of command was assumed by Grant. On that great theater of action, where the war surged around the Nation's capital, disaster had followed disaster; defeat had succeeded defeat. No plan was successful. The anxious, careworn face of our great-hearted President became seamed more deeply, from day to day, with its pathetic lines of sorrowful anxiety as the ranks of the Union soldiers were thinned and no decided advantage to our arms was achieved.

Then came the great leader for whom the nation had unknowingly waited. With a foresight remarkable for its clearness and wisdom he planned his campaigns. With characteristic self-reliance and determination he arranged his plans. In the face of opposition, jealousy and disapproval he adhered to them and won. He was the nation's military head, and his courage, his self-reliance and his sagacity were commensurate with his devotion to the country's cause. There were no more drawn battles; no more uncertain victories or defeats. A new era had commenced. The man for the hour had arrived. He built on no man's foundation. He carved his own way to success. With a steady and immovable determination he adhered to his own plans in spite of all hindrances, marked out the great campaigns of the war; directed, guided and controlled the vast armies of the Republic until the rebellion was crushed and the Union restored.

Remembering the magnanimity shown by the great commander to his fallen foe at Appomattox in his terms of surrender—terms so honorable and humane that they touched to the quick the hearts of all appreciative Southern soldiers—the South, too, will deeply mourn our common country's great loss. Over the open grave of General Grant, the first soldier of the Republic, and twice its President, the once divided, discordant, belligerent sections may mourn sincerely and with mutual sorrow.

And as the years go by, and party and sectional animosities are forgotten, the greatness of his deeds will be the pride of the whole country and the whole people, for these immortal deeds will shed a growing luster upon the history of this Republic. He will be remembered as one of the greatest military leaders of modern times—renowned not alone for his marvelous military success and skill, but for the beautiful simplicity of his character, his magnanimity as a conqueror, his unswerving devotion to his country, and his uncomplaining, patient endurance.

Noble soldier! Matchless leader! Patient sufferer, pass on! The gates have swung open wide for thee! Immortality is before thee, while behind thee Freedom shall keep thy imperishable deeds crowned with the bay and laurel of unfading memory.

The Custody of the Grant Valuables.

In another part of the TIMES we print a list of General Grant's trophies which were turned over to the United States Government by Mrs. Grant, under an arrangement made with Vanderbilt, with which the public is already familiar. Now that these valuables are in possession of the Government there will be a large demand for their exhibition at the earliest moment practicable. We indorse the suggestion of a correspondent who asks: "Why not have a room set apart for the collection in the National Museum immediately, the presumption being that the articles will be exhibited in that establishment in accordance with the law establishing the Smithsonian Institution— that " " all objects of art and of foreign and curious research belonging or hereafter to belong to the United States which may be in the city of Washington, in whose soever custody they may be, shall be delivered to such persons as may be authorized by the Board of Regents (of the Smithsonian Institution) to receive them, and shall be arranged in such order and so classed as best to facilitate the examination and study of them in the building " " " to be erected for the institution," &c. Professor Baird is the Curator of the National Museum as well as Director (or Secretary) of the Smithsonian Institution, and it is to be presumed that he would do everything in his power to make the exhibition of the Grant relics as attractive as possible. Of course, greater facilities than the Museum now possesses would be required to insure the safety of the articles; but Congress would doubtless gladly vote the appropriation necessary for fire and burglar-proof cases for this interesting and valuable exhibit.

Grant & Ward.

Behind the deadly disease to which General Grant finally succumbed was another enemy hardly less terrible. That enemy was the penury of man. The fact that the General's financial troubles, brought upon him by the dishonesty and treachery of others, had much to do with bringing him down to the grave, is now admitted. General Badeau, in a recent interview upon the causes of the General's prostration, said: "I consider Ferdinand Ward morally responsible for this. He is a murderer. Had he not trapped the General into his financial peculations, and thus brought upon his old shoulders the only sorrow and shame of his life, he would be as well as I am to-day. The local trouble would have been held in abeyance for years yet. This is the saddest chapter in the sad history of the firm of Grant & Ward."

An intimate friend of the Grant family who was a constant visitor at the house for years, said, in talking of the same topic: "General Grant's weakness and inability to stand the pressure attack undoubtedly came from the shock which the humiliating failure of Grant & Ward caused him. He is not a demonstrative man, and at the time did not show the grief and worry which it caused him. In this respect he is like Horace Greeley. The secret grief has borne him down. Shortly after the failure he told General Frye that he had not slept for a month, and I myself have seen him sitting in his parlor with his head sunk on his breast, a picture of despondency and despair."

First in the Nation's Heart.

In the affections of his countrymen General Grant has occupied the first place since the beginning of his fatal illness. At times the attention of the people has been temporarily attracted from the sick man's bed by the exciting events transpiring in the old world, but when the news of a relapse came, how quickly was all else forgotten and the name of Grant replaced at the headings of the telegraphic columns of every paper in the country, so giving sure proof that he was the idol of his country! When General Grant's condition was so critical last Spring, the Boston Herald indicated this sentiment by relating a trifling incident:

It was painful yesterday when Grant's life was hanging by a thread to see what the fire alarm from box 52 caused. Rough, plain men, pretty much such men as Grant himself was, not so many years ago, started out of shops and basements and engine rooms. "Is Grant dead?" was the question. No. It was only a fire alarm. Let it burn. What cared they? If Grant could have known how many men were waiting, some with tears in their eyes, to see whether the bells were tolling for him, the abuse under which he suffered for so many years would all have been forgotten.

It is announced in a Washington dispatch that the Secretary of the Interior has determined to turn over to the War Department the complete control of the Cheyenne-Arrapahoe reservation. This is a step that General Sheridan has long advised. If it works well in the present instance the Indians may all be commended to the tender mercies of the army. If the Indian agents were generally eliminated it would probably be a good thing.

THE Chicago Inter-Ocean has the following: "In the LOS ANGELES TIMES we notice a mortage of $600,000 upon the Los Angeles and San Gabriel Valley Railroad. This will place the road in funds, and the beautiful valley will soon have quick transportation. Much of the expensive work has been done. It will open up for residence one of the most beautiful valleys in the world."

The Blue, the Gray, and Grant.

BY T. C. HARBAUGH.

They sat together side by side
In the shade of an orange tree;
One had followed the flag of Grant,
The other had fought with Lee.

The boy in blue had an empty sleeve,
A crutch had the boy in gray;
They talked of the long and dreary march,
They talked of the bloody fray.

"My chief is dead," the Johnny said,
"A leader brave was he;
And shouted forth at Lexington,
Doth hang the sword of Lee."

"My leader lives"—the boy in blue
Spoke low and with a sigh—
"But all the country safe in fear
That he to-day may die."

"God bless our Grant!" the veteran said,
And dropped a tear, and then
In heartfelt tones the answer came,
For the rebel said—"Amen!"

GEN. GRANT IS DEAD!

The Grand Old Hero's Sufferings Ended at Last.

A NATION'S GREAT LOSS.

Last Sad Scenes at Mount McGregor—The Group About the Death-Bed.

A FEW MOMENTS OF SUSPENSE

Then He Passed Away with a Deep Breath, Like One Relieved from Long and Anxious Tension.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

MOUNT MCGREGOR, Wednesday, July 22, 1885.—During the evening the extremities of the sick man have been cold, and in the visible symptoms are the signs that nature puts out when death is chilling the powers. The General, as the night passes, seems suffering no pain, though the lines of his face are intensely drawn and the furrows of the brow are knitted as he lies upon the cot, beside which the family are constantly waiting.

THE CRISIS EXPECTED.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 22.—At 11 o'clock the General was not asleep. The hands and forearms were colder than two hours before, but the feet not so much so. The pulse and respiration had not changed. The patient's mind was clear and comprehensive of events and utterances about him. Between 10 and 11 Dr. Shrady accosted the General and he answered in a husky voice but promptly. Stimulants were being used but sparingly and there was an opinion by a medical authority about 11 o'clock that the closing crisis might occur either at one or four o'clock to-night.

AT MIDNIGHT.

At midnight the General remains quiet though not asleep. The coming hour is being anticipated with great anxiety. Bottles of hot water are being placed at the General's feet to induce warmth. A mustard draughts applied to the stomach and breast to preserve the flagging circulation. Dr. Sands is resting at the hotel and Dr. Douglas and Shrady are at the cottage.

AT ONE O'CLOCK.

MOUNT MCGREGOR, July 23, 1 a. m.—The General remains in the same quiet condition, pulse and respiration unchanged, and there is a feeling that he may tide over the midnight season of weakness and until 4 a. m. Hypodermics of brandy are being used.

AT TWO O'CLOCK.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 23, 2 a. m.—The family is astir at the cottage though there are no visible indications that point to other conditions than at the time of the last bulletin.

AT 3 O'CLOCK.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 23, 3 a. m.—Grant is in a somnolent condition. Respirations have been growing shallow and the General is no longer able to expectorate because of the weakness which is increasing. There seems little possibility that the patient will survive the night.

4 O'CLOCK.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 23—4 a. m.—Respirations 30. The pulse is so rapid as not to be counted, and hypodermics, which have been quite freely administered through the night, have no longer any marked effect. The family are still astir.

5:25 A. M.—THE DEATH RATTLE.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 23.—The respirations have increased to 60, and the death rattle, occasioned by the filling of the lungs and throat with mucus, is heard. He now recognizes his friends by opening his eyes.

"IT IS ALL OVER."

General Grant Dies Peacefully and Without Pain.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 23. — General Grant died at 8 minutes past 8 this morning, surrounded by all his family. He passed out of life peacefully and without evident pain.

DISSOLUTION.

MOUNT MCGREGOR, July 23.—A few minutes before 8 o'clock Doctors Douglas, Shrady and Sands stood on the cottage veranda conversing on the condition of General Grant and discussing the probabilities of his death and the limit of life left the sick man. Mrs. Sartoris and Stenographer Dawson were conversing at a little distance away, when Henry, the nurse, stepped hastily upon the piazza and spoke quietly to the physicians. He told them he thought the General was very near to death. The medical men hastily entered the room and approached the bedside. Instantly upon scanning the patient's face, Dr. Douglas ordered that the family be summoned to the bedside. Haste was made, and Mrs. Grant, Mr. Jesse Grant and wife, U. S. Grant, Jr., and wife and Mrs. Colonel Grant were quickly beside the doctors at the sick man's cot. Mrs. Sartoris and Mr. Dawson had followed the doctors in from the piazza, and the entire family was present, except Colonel Grant. A hasty summons was sent for him, but he entered the sick room while the messenger was searching for him.

ABOUT THE DEATH-BED.

The Colonel seated himself at the head of the bed, with his left arm resting on the pillow above the head of General Grant, who was breathing rapidly and with slightly gasping respirations. Mrs. Grant, calm, but with intense agitation bravely suppressed, took a seat close by the bedside. She leaned slightly upon the cot, resting upon her right elbow, and gazed with tear-blinded eyes into the General's face. She found there, however, no token of recognition from the sick man, who was peacefully and painlessly passing into another life. Mrs. Sartoris came behind her mother, and leaning over her shoulder, so witnessed the close of a life in which she had constituted a strong element of pride. Directly behind Mrs. Grant and Mrs. Sartoris, and a little distance removed, stood Drs. Douglas, Shrady and Sands, specially on the closing of the life their efforts and counsel had so prolonged.

THE LAST SYMPTOMS.

The doctors had noticed, on entering the room and proceeding to the bedside, that already the purplish tinge which is one of nature's signals of final dissolution had settled beneath the finger nails. The hand that Dr. Douglas lifted was fast growing colder than it had been through the night. The pulse had fluttered beyond a point where the physician could distinguish it from the pulse-beats in his own finger-tips. Respiration was very rapid, and was a succession of shallow, panting inhalations. As the respirations grew quicker at the close, they also became less labored and almost noiseless.

At times a passionate longing to prevent the event so near would rise within Mrs. Grant, who pressed both his hands, and leaning forward tenderly kissed the face of the sinking man. On the opposite side of the bed from his mother, and directly before her, stood Jesse Grant and U. S. Grant, Jr., and near the corner of the bed on the same side as Jesse, and next to each, was Mr. N. E. Dawson, the General's stenographer and confidential secretary. At the foot of the bed and gazing directly down into the General's face was Mrs. Colonel Fred. Grant, Mrs. U. S. Grant, Jr., and Mrs. Jesse Grant, while somewhat removed from the family circle, Henry, the nurse, and Harrison Tyssell, the General's body-servant, were watching the closing life of their patient master.

Dr. Newman had repaired to the hotel for breakfast and was not present. The General's little grandchildren, U. S. Grant, Jr., and Nellie, were sleeping in the nursery room above. Of the family the entire family and household were gathered at the bedside of the dying man.

NOT A MOMENT TOO SOON.

The members of the group had been summoned not a moment sooner than was prudent.

Colonel Fred Grant sat silently, but with evident feeling, though his bearing was that of a soldierly son at the deathbed of a hero father. U. S. Grant, Jr., was deeply moved. Jesse Grant sat there steadily, and the ladies, while watching with wet cheeks, were silent.

The morning had passed to five minutes beyond 8 o'clock, and there was not one of the strained and waiting watchers but who could mark the nearness of this mortality's final ebbing. Dr. Douglas noted the nearness of the supreme moment, and quietly approached the bedside and bent above it, and while he did so the sorrow of the gray-haired physician seemed closely allied with that of the family. Dr. Shrady also drew near.

THE CLOSING MOMENTS.

It was seven minutes after eight o'clock, and the eyes of the General were closing. His breathing grew more labored. The last functions of the heart and lungs were hastened to the closing of the ex-President's life. The General's expression seemed to be deepening in the firm and strong-lined face. A minute more passed and was closing as the General drew a deep breath, like one relieved from long and anxious tension. The members of the group were impelled each a step nearer the bed, and each wanted to note the next respiration, but it did not come then; it never came.

There was absolute stillness in the room and no sound broke the silence save the singing of birds in the pines outside the cottage and the muffled throbbing of the engine that all night had waited by the mountain depot.

"IT IS ALL OVER."

quietly spoke Dr. Douglas, and there came then heartily to each witness the realization that General Grant was dead.

Then the doctors withdrew. Jesse closed the eyelids and composed the dead General's head, after which each one of the family group present in the room, one after the other and touched their lips upon the quiet face so lately still.

Dr. Shrady passed out upon the piazza, and as he did so he met Dr. Newman, hastening up stairs. "He is dead," remarked Dr. Shrady, quietly.

The fact of having been absent from the dying man and his family at the last was the cause of sorrow and regret to the clergyman, who had waited all night at the cottage. He had arrived an unnecessary moment too late and reached the cottage only in time to minister to the family sorrowing, and gain entrance to the closely hushed lips of the dead general, to whom Dr. Newman's love had bound him in such close ties.

DISCUSSING HIS LAST HOURS.

Soon after Doctors Douglas and Shrady left the death-bed they conversed feelingly of the later hours of General Grant's life. The pulse had first indicated failure; the intellect was the last to succumb with its clearness and comprehensiveness, and that, after midnight last night, though a circumstance at 3 o'clock indicated cognizance: "Do you want anything, father?" questioned Colonel Fred, at that hour. "Water," whispered the General, huskily, but when offered water and milk they gurgled in his throat and were ejected, and that word of response was the last utterance of General Grant. Dr. Douglas remarked that the peculiarity of General Grant's death was explained by the remarkable vitality that seemed to present an obstacle to the speedy approach of death. It was prolonging away of the vital forces, and a reflex consciousness, the Doctor thought, was retained to the last. The General died of exhaustion and in a perfectly painless, sinking way.

HIS LAST DAYS PAINLESS.

"Yes," interjected Dr. Shrady, quietly, "the General dreaded pain when he felt that he had begun sinking, and he asked that he should not be permitted to suffer. The promise was made and faithfully kept. Since he commenced to sink, Tuesday night, he has been free from pain. Toward the last at no time was there, when a wet cloth was pressed to his lips he would suck from it water to moisten his mouth." During the General's last night, Dr. Shrady was constantly within call. Dr. Douglas was all night at the cottage, and Dr. Sands slept at the hotel after midnight. Within twenty minutes after the death of General Grant, Kerr Gerhardt, a Hartford sculptor, who had been making a study here of the General, was summoned to the cottage at the suggestion of Dr. Newman, to make a plaster mask of the dead man's face. He was highly successful.

Within half an hour after the General's decease a waiting engine at the Mountain Depot was on its way to Saratoga to bring an undertaker, who will place the remains on ice to-day, to await the arrival of a New York undertaker who has been summoned.

AN EMBALMER CALLED.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 23.—An embalmer from New York will be summoned to prepare for General Grant's remains, but the undertakers will undoubtedly conduct the immediate details and convey the remains to New York. When the body shall have reached New York the question of a post-mortem will be considered and determined upon by the family. Before his death General Grant left the choice of a burial place entirely to Colonel Fred, imposing only a condition that the spot selected should be such as that Mrs. Grant might rest by his side. His remains will be removed to New York by special train and there prepared for burial.

AFTER DEATH.

The Quiet that Fell Upon Mount McGregor.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 23.—Quietude pervaded the mountain this morning, when it was announced that General Grant had ceased his long struggle. This feeling, however, gave place later to a sense of relief that the struggle was ended and the tired mind and body was at rest. While there was no heart that warmed not in sympathy towards the General's family, yet there was a strong feeling of gratitude that the man who had suffered so gravely and so patiently had earned the quiet of a long rest.

Late in the afternoon a squad of uniformed men from Wheeler Post, G. A. R., Saratoga, came up the mountain to guard the cottage. A tent was pitched on the needles beneath a pine tree, where last night the anxious correspondents bivouacked. Guard lines were soon established, and at dusk a patrol of the beats was begun. The guard will be temporarily maintained, and thus morbidly curious people will be kept from the cottage.

AN AUTOPSY DISCUSSED.

Dr. Shrady remained here to-day in order that Dr. Douglas and himself might, after order had been restored in the house, converse with Colonel Grant on the subject of a post-mortem examination of the remains. The physicians, therefore, this evening repaired to the cottage and met the Colonel with a formal preference of the request that an autopsy might be held. They stated that their purpose was not in the least to confirm their opinion of the disease, for they had at all times been united in their diagnosis of the case as one of cancer, but the time had come when the medical staff might step aside from the patient, and invite any other medical or surgical authority to conduct the examination, which would speak for itself. This both Doctors Duglas and Shrady urged, as far as their professional and personal dignity could permit. Colonel Grant replied that the entire family were so thoroughly united in their confidence in the diagnosis and treatment of the physicians that they could not condeive the necessity for an autopsy. Grant was Commander at the time of his death, telegraphed from Mt. McGregor at his afternoon to General A. Carleton, Recorder of the Commandery, as follows: "General Grant's body will remain here certainly for ten days. It is very desirable to have a guard here while the body remains; say a lieutenant and thirteen men. Will you ask General Hancock about it? Tents and meals will be furnished by the hotel company. The family desire the guard. Telegraph General Hancock's decision."

In accordance with the above, General Carleton telegraphed to General Hancock this afternoon, asking if such a guard could be furnished, and, if so, when it would start, and requesting him to telegraph his decision to the family at Mt. McGregor.

THE SAD NEWS

Borne to the Country and the World.

DEMONSTRATIONS OF SORROW FROM ALL

Bells Tolled and Houses Draped—Proclamation by the President—Tributes Commanded from the Army and Navy

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

NEW YORK, July 23.—8:30 a. m.—The news of General Grant's death had been received but a few moments before the bells upon Trinity and St. John's churches began to toll, and in a few moments the solemn tones were caught up in all parts of the city and conveyed the news of the General's death to the people of this city and Brooklyn.

PROCLAMATION FROM GOVERNOR HILL.

Governor Hill has issued a proclamation in view of the death of General Grant, in which he directs that flags on all public buildings of the State be placed at half-mast until his burial, and on that day, yet to be appointed, all ordinary business in the executive chamber and departments of State government be suspended. The people of the State are called upon to display, until the funeral, emblems of mourning, and it is requested that at that hour they will cease from their business and pay respect to the distinguished dead.

STOCK EXCHANGE TO CLOSE.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The Governing Committee of the Stock Exchange has just resolved to close the Exchange on the day of General Grant's funeral.

IN CHICAGO.

CHICAGO, July 23.—The Board of Trade unanimously voted to adjourn at 12 o'clock to-day as a mark of respect to the memory of General Grant.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 23.—The Produce Board adjourned at noon as a mark of respect to the memory of General Grant.

IN CINCINNATI.

CINCINNATI, July 23.—The bells of the Fire Department began tolling all over the city at 8 o'clock this morning of the news of General Grant's death. Flags are displayed at half mast on all the government buildings.

IN GALENA.

GALENA, Ill., July 23.—The announcement of the death of General Grant was received in Galena, his old home, from whence he went to the war, with most profound sorrow. On receipt of the news the church bells tolled. On the custom house and all public buildings flags were flying at half-mast, and public buildings, stores and residences of private residences were draped in emblems of mourning. General W. R. Rowley, a staff officer and member of the old commander's staff, and now the only survivor of the great military family circle, and whose wife died but a few days ago, is prostrated with grief. Business in the city is practically suspended. Mayor Barrett has called a meeting of the City Council to make arrangements for proper memorial services, to take place at the time of the funeral.

IN DENVER.

DENVER, Col., July 23.—The city is draped in mourning and steps have already been taken looking to a proper observance of the funeral. Reports from the interior of the State are to the effect that people everywhere profoundly feel the national loss. Ex-Senator Chaffee, father of Mrs. U. S. Grant, jr., left for New York this evening.

IN LOUISIANA.

BATON ROUGE, July 23.—Immediately on receipt of the news of the death of Grant, Governor McEnery issued a proclamation ordering flags placed at half-mast and the State capitol draped in mourning.

IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Tolling Bells Tell the Story—Action of Public Bodies.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—Arrangements had been made that, as soon as news of the death of General Grant was received in this city, a signal should be communicated to the city fire alarm department, which would announce the fact to the inhabitants of the city by tolling the bells. This was done as announced. Within a few minutes of the receipt of the first bulletin announcing the death, the fire-alarm bell had tolled out sixty-four times, being once for every year of the old hero's life. Minute guns were fired from all of the Government forts and flags were raised at half-mast on all public buildings, as also on all private dwellings whose owners possessed a flag. Expressions of sympathy for Mrs. Grant, in her great affliction, are heard on all sides. Arrangements for the funeral of the General are meeting with a great sale.

RECOGNITION FROM PUBLIC BODIES.

The Chamber of Commerce, Manufacturers' Association, Board of Trade and Produce Exchange held a meeting at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, when resolutions of action should be taken to show proper marks of respect to the memory of General Grant. A committee was also appointed, to act in conjunction with the Board of Supervisors' committee. The committee is composed of the presidents and vice-presidents of the several associations, with three other members from each. It was decided to await news from the East, to see what action would be taken there. A resolution was adopted that all business on the day of the funeral be suspended.

PRODUCE EXCHANGE.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—The Produce Exchange adjourned over to-day as a mark of respect to General Grant.

G. A. R.

Department Commander Warfield, of the G. A. R., has issued a general order that the flags of the several posts shall be draped in mourning for thirty days, out of respect to the memory of Grant.

A meeting of members of the Grand Army of the Republic was called this morning to take action for the arrangement of appropriate ceremonies in this city as a token of respect to General Grant. A committee of three was appointed to confer with the Mayor and Board of Supervisors; and another meeting will be held this evening. Instructions were received in Galena, his old home, from whence he went to the war, with most profound sorrow. On receipt of the news the church bells tolled. On the custom house and all public buildings flags were flying at half-mast, and public buildings, stores and residences of private residences were draped in emblems of mourning. General W. R. Rowley, a staff officer and member of the old commander's staff, and now the only survivor of the great military family circle, and whose wife died but a few days ago, is prostrated with grief. Grant, jr., left for New York this evening.

IN LOUISIANA.

BATON ROUGE, July 23.—Immediately on receipt of the news of the death of Grant, Governor McEnery issued a proclamation ordering flags placed at half-mast and the State capitol draped in mourning.

IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Tolling Bells Tell the Story—Action of Public Bodies.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—Arrangements had been made that, as soon as news of the death of General Grant was received in this city, a signal should be communicated to the city fire alarm department, which would announce the fact to the inhabitants of the city by tolling the bells. This was done as announced. Within a few minutes of the receipt of the first bulletin announcing the death, the fire-alarm bell had tolled out sixty-four times, being once for every year of the old hero's life. Minute guns were fired from all of the Government forts and flags were raised at half-mast on all public buildings, as also on all private dwellings whose owners possessed a flag. Expressions of sympathy for Mrs. Grant, in her great affliction, are heard on all sides. Arrangements for the funeral of the General are meeting with a great sale.

RECOGNITION FROM PUBLIC BODIES.

The Chamber of Commerce, Manufacturers' Association, Board of Trade and Produce Exchange held a meeting at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, when resolutions of action should be taken to show proper marks of respect to the memory of General Grant. A committee was also appointed, to act in conjunction with the Board of Supervisors' committee. The committee is composed of the presidents and vice-presidents of the several associations, with three other members from each. It was decided to await news from the East, to see what action would be taken there. A resolution was adopted that all business on the day of the funeral be suspended.

PRODUCE EXCHANGE.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23.—The Produce Exchange adjourned over to-day as a mark of respect to General Grant.

G. A. R.

Department Commander Warfield, of the G. A. R., has issued a general order that the flags of the several posts shall be draped in mourning for thirty days, out of respect to the memory of Grant.

A meeting of members of the Grand Army of the Republic was called this morning to take action for the arrangement of appropriate ceremonies in this city as a token of respect to General Grant. A committee of three was appointed to confer with the Mayor and Board of Supervisors; and another meeting will be held this evening. It was decided to suggest that Governor Stoneman be requested to make the day of the funeral a legal holiday.

IN WASHINGTON.

Reception of the News — Offers of Orders — Proclamation by the President.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Shortly after eight o'clock this morning the President was informed of the death of General Grant. He immediately directed that the flag on the White House be placed at half-mast. The lowering of the flag was the first intimation that the citizens of Washington had of the death, although they had been anticipating it throughout the night. A few minutes after the White House flag had been placed at half-mast, flags on all of the public buildings, and on many private ones, were placed in like position. The bells of the city were tolled, and citizens who heard them readily recognized their meaning. Business men immediately began draping their houses with mourning and residences were draped in a similar manner.

THE CABINET CALLED.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—A meeting of the Cabinet has been called for 11 o'clock, instead of 12, the usual hour, to take action on the death of ex-President Grant.

TO CLOSE THE DEPARTMENTS.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The President has issued an order directing that all Executive Departments of the Government be closed at 1 o'clock this afternoon, as a mark of respect to the memory of General Grant.

AN ORDER TO THE NAVY.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Secretary Whitney has issued an order directing that the ensigns at each naval station, of each vessel of the United States navy in commission, be hoisted at half-mast, and guns be fired at intervals of every half hour from sunrise to sunset on the day of the funeral. The day is to be thus observed or where this order may be received in time; otherwise, on the day after its reception. Officers of the navy and marine corps will wear the usual badge of mourning attached to the sword hilt and on the left arm, for the period of thirty days.

THE CABINET MEETING.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—With the exception of Secretary Endicott, all members of the Cabinet were present at the meeting to-day. The President informed them of General Grant's death, he having been officially informed of the demise by a telegram from Colonel Fred. Grant. President Cleveland has instructed Adjutant-General Drum to go to New York to represent him, and to consult with Mrs. Grant relative to the funeral of the ex-President.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND'S PROCLAMATION.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The following proclamation was issued by the President: The President of the United States has just received the sad tidings of the death of that illustrious citizen and ex-President of the United States, General Ulysses S. Grant, at Mount McGregor in the State of New York, to which place he had lately been removed in the endeavor to prolong his life. In making this announcement to the people of the United States the President is impressed with the magnitude of the public loss of a great military leader, who was in the hour of victory magnanimous, and amid disaster serene and self-sustained; who in every station, whether as a soldier or as a Chief magistrate, twice called to power by his fellow-countrymen; trod unswervingly the pathway of duty, undeterred by doubt, single-minded and straightforward. The entire country has witnessed with deep emotion his prolonged and patient struggle with a painful disease and has watched by his couch of suffering with tearful sympathy. The destined end has come at last, and his spirit has returned to the Creator who sent it forth. The great heart of the nation that followed him in life with love and pride, bows now in sorrow above him dead, tenderly mindful of his virtues, his great patriotic services and of the loss occasioned by his death. In testimony of respect to the memory of General Grant, it is ordered that the Executive Mansion and the several departments in Washington be draped in mourning for the period of thirty days, and that all public business be suspended on the day of the funeral. The Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy will cause orders to be issued for appropriate military and naval honors to be rendered on that day.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the city of Washington, this twenty-third day of July, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and tenth.

(Signed) GROVER CLEVELAND.

By the President:

T. F. BAYARD,
Secretary of State.

ORDER FROM ADJUTANT-GENERAL DRUM.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Adjutant-General Drum, by command of Lieutenant-General Sheridan, has issued the following order: In compliance with instructions of the President, on the day of the funeral, at each military post, troops will be paraded and this order read to them, after which all labors for the day will cease. The national flag will be displayed at half-mast. At the dawn of day thirteen guns will be fired, and afterward, at intervals of thirty minutes, between the rising and setting of the sun, a single gun, and at the close of day a national salute of forty-six guns. Officers of the army will wear crape on the left arm and on their swords, and the colors of the battalion of engineers, of the several regiments, and of the United States Corps of Cadets will be put in mourning for the period of six months. The date and hour of funeral will be communicated to department commanders by telegraph, and by them to their subordinate commanders.

THE WHITE HOUSE DRAPED.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The White House has been handsomely draped, the emblems of mourning being equal to those on the building at the time of the funeral of President Garfield. They are over and around the windows and doors facing north, and the great pillars of the portico and north entrance are also covered with black.

CONDOLENCE

Messages Sent From Many Prominent People.

MT. MCGREGOR, N. Y., July 23.—The following are among the thousands of telegrams received from all parts of the world by members of the Grant family:

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Colonel Fred. Grant: The Board of Commissioners of the United States Soldiers' Home are unanimous in their desire that the remains of General Grant may be buried within the grounds of that institution. The commissioners have selected, subject to the approval of the family, the most appropriate and commanding eminence, overlooking the city and surrounding country, as appropriate place of sepulchre. Letter by mail.

A. MACFEELY,
In the absence and by authority of Lieutenant-General Sheridan, President of the Board.

"BERWYN, Pa., July 23.—Mrs. Gen. Grant:—I have heard with great sorrow of General Grant's death. I offer a full measure of sympathy."

(Signed) SAM'L J. RANDALL.

FROM LOGAN.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Colonel Fred. Grant: The painful news to me of your father's death has just been received. The sympathy of myself and family goes out from the depths of our hearts to you, mother and all of you in your great bereavement. The country is filled with sympathy and grief at this news, but its saddest grief must be its future unfolds the coming years.

(Signed) JOHN A. LOGAN.

CONDOLENCE FROM THE PRESIDENT.

President Cleveland sent the following dispatch to Mt. McGregor:

"Accept this expression of my heartfelt sympathy in this hour of your great affliction. The people of this nation mourn with you and would reach, if they could, with kindly comfort the depths of the sorrow which is yours alone, and which only the pity of God can heal."

A MESSAGE FROM EX-PRESIDENT HAYES.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 23.—The following message was received from ex-President Hayes:

"FREMONT, Ohio, July 23.

Please assure Mrs. Grant and the sorrowing family that we share the deepest sympathy of Mrs. Hayes and myself."

(Signed) R. B. HAYES.

CONDOLENCE FROM BLAINE.

MT. MCGREGOR, July 23.—The following were among the telegrams received by the family.

"AUGUSTA, Me., July 23.—Mrs. U. S. Grant:—Please accept my profoundest sympathy in your great bereavement. The entire nation mourns the loss of its first soldier and first citizen."

(Signed) JAS. G. BLAINE.

THE NEWS REACHES SHERIDAN.

FORT RENO, I. T., July 23.—News of the death of General Grant reached General Sheridan this morning by means of a dispatch sent from the office of the Associated Press in Chicago. In response to inquiries concerning arrangements for the funeral, General Sheridan said: "I am so far away from Washington that I will have to depend on those in charge there to carry out any orders that the President may give the army relative to General Grant's funeral. During his critical illness last March, and on intimation from personal friends of the family that it would be agreeable, the Commissioners of the Soldiers' Home requested the privilege of having the General's remains interred at the Home. It is hoped that the family will grant it," continued General Sheridan, "so that its ashes may rest near the Capitol of the Nation, guarded by the veterans of the war in which his greatest honors were won." General Sheridan sent the following telegram:

To Col. F. D. Grant, Mt. McGregor, N. Y.—Will you please express to Mrs. Grant my grief at the loss of my dearest friend and comrade, and my sincere sympathy and condolence with her in this hour of her great distress.

(Signed) P. H. SHERIDAN,
Lieut.-General.

FORT RENO, I. T., July 23.—General Sheridan also sent the following:

To Gen. R. C. Drum, Washington: My duties here will not permit my return in time for the funeral of my dearest friend and comrade, General U. S. Grant. Lieutenant-Colonel G. W. Davis, of my staff, knows my wishes in reference to the obsequies. Have them carried out as far as they do not conflict with the directions of the President. I want to be named as one of the pall-bearers.

P. H. SHERIDAN,
Lieutenant-General.

Among the many others who sent dispatches were Col. Thos. F. Oehiltree, Hon. Wm. M. Evarts, the Japanese Minister at Washington, Potter Palmer, of Chicago, James Tyner, of Washington, Geo. W. Childs, of Philadelphia, Mayor Grace, of New York, Ex-Premier Gladstone and Secretary Endicott.

THE OLD VETERANS.

DAYTON, July 23.—The old veterans at the National Soldiers' Home will wear a badge of mourning 30 days in memory of General Grant.

General Sherman

MINNITONKA, Minn., July 23.—General Sherman will start east to-morrow morning to attend the funeral of General Grant.

A Monument Fund.

SANTA FE, N. M., July 23.—The Daily New Mexican to-night proposes a national monument to the "Silent Hero," and has opened a subscription list.

THE OBSEQUIES.

Unsettled State of the Arrangements.

WHERE SHALL THE GRAVE BE MADE?

Many Places Contesting for the Honor—The Body to Remain on Mount McGregor for Ten Days.

*Associ

Grant was Commander at the time of his death, telegraphed from Mt. McGregor this afternoon to General A. Carleton, Recorder of the Commandery, as follows: "General Grant's body will remain here certainly for ten days. It is very desirable to have a guard here while the body remains; say a lieutenant and thirteen men. Will you see General Hancock about it? Tents and meals will be furnished by the hotel company. The family desire the guard. Telegraph General Hancock's decision."

In accordance with the above, General Carleton telegraphed to General Hancock this afternoon, asking if such a guard could be furnished, and, if so, when it would start, and requesting him to telegraph his decision to the family at Mt. McGregor.

GOLD.

A Hint That It May Jump to a Premium.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Senator John Sherman, in an interview on the financial condition of the country, was asked if he thought there was danger of gold obtaining a premium and the business of the country dropping to an exclusively silver basis, as had been represented. "That depends entirely upon the way in which the finances are managed," was the reply. "I have grave doubts whether Congress will consent immediately to a suspension of silver coinage. It is possible, however, that Congress may agree upon some measure that will render the repeal of the coinage act unnecessary. If the silver dollar could be made of the value of the gold dollar, there would be no necessity for repealing the present law. Now in fact the intrinsic weight of the silver dollar from 413¼ grains to 412½ grains. It would thus circulate on a parity, so far as actual value is concerned, with gold and silver certificates, and would be of the same value as gold certificates. If gold once attains a premium of 1 per cent., it will not reach the same premium that represents the exact difference in value between the silver and gold dollar, or about 15 per cent."

MUST ABOLISH SILVER COINAGE.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The Herald publishes interviews with several business men on the coinage of silver dollars. The Herald says: The result shows that Congress should promptly pass a law repealing the law for silver coinage, as the continuance of the law causes alarm in financial and business circles. But one opinion was expressed and everybody agreed with such unanimity that it was remarked that people must speak out in such tones that Congress must grant the popular demand.

ABOUT ADVANCING GOLD.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The Clearing House Committee met yesterday, but took no formal action on the subject of advancing gold to the government in case of need. The general impression is that there will be no necessity for such action, and possibly it would be illegal, if desirable.

A SOLID LOAN POSSIBLE.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The Post's Washington special says: "The Treasury officials think that the difficulties in the way of a gold loan from New York banks will be overcome and a loan of $3,000,000 $4,000,000 will be made probably at an early day.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC

Making a Very Fancy Face Over Its Balance Sheet.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—The annual report of the Central Pacific Railroad Company for 1884 has been issued. The total capital stock and indebtedness has been put at $153,860,000; total assets, $194,598,000. The gross earnings for last year were $23,251,000, being nearly two and a half millions less than for the year previous. The expenditures, on the other hand, are over a million dollars greater. The decrease in earnings is explained by the heavy storms during the first half of the year. The balance sheet shows a deficit of $114,260, which, added to $1,778,-000 previously existing, makes a total deficit of $1,892,545. The directors claim that there is due the company from the government $1,970,332, which is held without mention of law by the United States Treasury Department. The directors remark: "This treatment by the government of the just claims in the unstinting efforts of the company to perform fully every duty to the United States."

PERISHED ON THE DESERT.

Horrible Fate of a German Prospector Geary.

WILLIAMSON, Nev., July 21.—A shepherder in R. L. reported at Leviathan that there was a man on the Stillwater desert dying. Officers started and found the body of a man who had perished from thirst on the desert. The ground near the body was torn up, showing that the deceased had suffered much. His coat and vest were found six miles from the body. Papers in his clothing showed that his name was Walter Gabriel, a native of Germany, aged 35 years.

Last night he heard a man who had been dead four or five days was found on the road between the Humboldt House and Golconda Springs. The cause of death is unknown. The Coroner has just left to hold an inquest.

A NEW RAILROAD POOL.

The Colorado and California Association Formed.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Representatives of lines belonging to the Colorado Railway Association held a meeting to-day and took the first step in the formation of a new pool. It was agreed to form an association pooling all business between Colorado and California, and covering all revenues between Ogden, Deming and Albuquerque in the west and Colorado in the east, the same to be called the Colorado and California Railway Association. The lines represented in the new pool will include the Union Pacific, Denver and Rio Grande and Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe. It is expected that to-morrow the organization will be perfected and its duration determined.

SAN FRANCISCO.

Some Local Happenings in the Metropolis.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—Maurice Conrad, one of the survivors of the Greely expedition, delivered a lecture before the Geographical Society of the Pacific last evening on "American Arctic Explorations." Referring to General Hazen, the speaker thought he did all he could for the survivors of the Greely expedition, and that the criticism of his act on by the papers was unjustful. In conclusion, he said that he thought that it would be possible to reach the North Pole, and re-echoed the German expedition soon to be fitted out, and by which a different course will be taken.

Southern Pacific Balance Sheet.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The Times says the official statement of the earnings and expenses of the Pacific system of railroads controlled by the Southern Pacific Company for May, has just been issued. This is the first financial statement issued from that source since the consolidation of all of the Huntington roads under the control of the Southern Pacific Company. It shows that the gross earnings of the system during May were $1,682,685, and the operating expenses were $814,952.

An Editorial Suicide.

SANTA ROSA, July 23.—Coroner King held an inquest to-day over the remains of Louis Costelli, found three miles north of Healdsburg yesterday. He had loaded his shotgun, attached a string to the trigger and then to his foot; placed the muzzle of the gun right over his heart, raised his clothing and fired. Some matches in his vest pocket, ignited by the explosion, set his clothes on fire and charred the body horribly. The verdict was suicide in accordance with the above facts.

The Processed Meat.

NEW YORK, July 22.—At 1 p. m. the thermometer registered 89 degrees. Six cases of death from heat were reported in the morning. In the afternoon ten more cases of sunstroke were reported, eight of them fatal.

Gambling Indians.

BOULDER, A. T., July 22.—A. MENZIES, who has just arrived from the Cheyenne mines, reports fifty Indians in the mountains near there. They killed one American and two Mexicans and took some stock.

Sugar Up.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23d.—The California sugar refinery advanced prices a quarter of a cent all around to-day.

TRIBUTES FROM MANY PENS.

How He Entered the Army—His Simplicity, Purity and Strength of Character—Anecdotes.

An elaborate and comprehensive sketch of General Grant, his military and civil career, his life and employments since retiring from public office, and his sickness and sufferings, was printed in the TIMES a short while since, upon one of the occasions when his malady had assumed an unusually dangerous phase. With the great military and civic events in General Grant's noble life the American people are closely familiar, and we therefore, upon the sad occasion of his death, give some attention to other and less familiar phases of his grand character, which are set out graphically in the series of timely sketches printed below, embracing anecdotes, reminiscences, personal recollections and personal tributes—a series of wide scope and great variety, and coming from a score of pens, all possessing interest at this time.

Beneath the Flag.

I.

Our country's hero lies beneath her flag to-day.
Come ye who wore the blue, and ye who wore the gray,
With arms reversed, with cadenced step, take final march
With him, who led beneath the great tri-unphal arch.
The victors, when earth's greatest, grandest war was o'er,
When victory had crowned the flag our fathers bore.

II.

A nation weeps to-day beside a nation's child,
The world is here, to join and share in bitter grief;
And Liberty, a mourner, walks beside his bier,
And with her gallant sons, shall pay her tribute tear
To him, her loyal, able, faithful, noble son,
Who filled in war, in peace, the place of Washington.

III.

Fair Freedom's sons shall follow in the steps of Grant,
And high her beautiful, her starry banner plant,
Among the flags that lead the nations of the earth;
The peer of any in its symbolism, its worth;
A flag that's honored as it flies half-mast to-day,
And as it folds around our hero chieftain's clay.

Farewell!

(To the dead of Mt. McGregor, July 23, 1885.)

Farewell, thou noble heart!
Weep, Nation thou bereft!
Of him whose loyal part
Shall not by time be cleft
From the world's history!

Farewell, O soul serene!
Float thou in azure space,
Systems and spheres between,
'Till in God's chosen place
Solved is His mystery!

HIS LAST LOOK.

General Grant's Last View of West Point.

General Grant looked upon West Point for the last time when en route to Mount McGregor a month ago. He nudged the doctor as the swiftly moving train unfolded the beauty of West Point, to "look." The old Commander's mind was thrilled with happy thoughts of his boyhood days on the Hudson. Hon. Thomas L. Hamer sent him there in 1839. Graduating in 1843, young Grant served in Missouri until he went to Texas in 1845. He was under fire in the battles of Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma, Monterey, Vera Cruz, Molino del Rey, Chapultepec and at the capture of the City of Mexico. Returning from Mexico he was stationed at Detroit, Sackett's Harbor, and in California and Oregon until 1854, from which time until 1861 he was in civil life. Coming back to the profession of arms, he seized Paducah and Smithland, had a horse shot under him at Belmont, captured Fort Henry and Fort Donelson, was slightly wounded and narrowly escaped defeat at Pittsburgh Landing, conducted the siege of Corinth and commanded at Iuka, Raymond, Jackson, Champion's Hill and Big Black, and on the Fourth of July, 1863, took the "Gibraltar of the Mississippi," Vicksburg, with about 27,000 prisoners. From thence he went to command at Missionary Ridge and Lookout Mountain. Having been called to the command of all the armies of the Union, Grant assumed direct control of the Army of the Potomac, conducting affairs elsewhere by telegraph, and participating in person in the battles of the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, before the absolutely impregnable rifle pits of Cold Harbor, and in the bloody contests about Petersburg, closing an unbroken record of military career at the surrender of Lee at Appomattox.

Mayor Gus Gutzeit, of Cincinnati (Ohio) Dispatch: "General Grant's body will remain here certainly for ten days. It is very desirable to have a guard here while the body remains; say a lieutenant and thirteen men. Will you see General Hancock about it? Tents and meals will be furnished by the hotel company. The family desire the guard. Telegraph General Hancock's decision."

In accordance with the above, General Carleton telegraphed to General Hancock this afternoon, asking if such a guard could be furnished, and, if so, when it would start, and requesting him to telegraph his decision to the family at Mt. McGregor.

STORIES OF GRANT.

Incidents Which Illustrate His Characteristic Traits.

Many stories are told of Grant's boyhood, illustrative of the characteristics which he afterward exhibited. His father at one time had seen a horse which he wished to purchase, but could not agree with the owner about the price. Finally he concluded he must have it, and sent Ulysses after it with instructions to offer fifty dollars for it, and if the man would not take that sum, offer him fifty-five and at last sixty. With these instructions the boy departed on his mission. On telling the owner of the horse his errand, the man asked him how much his father said he would give for the horse. The lad frankly told his instructions. The owner doubted at the greenness of the boy, and, of course, told him very emphatically that he could not have the horse for one cent less than sixty dollars. He had reckoned on the simplicity of the unsophisticated diplomatist a little too much, for the latter replied th-t, though his father had instructed him respecting the price as he had told him, yet he, Ulysses, had a mind of his own, and seeing the horse, that he was not worth over fifty, and would give but that amount. The astonished owner seeing that the boy had made up his mind and was going away without the horse, actually put it to him for fifty dollars.

HIS SELF RELIANCE AS A BOY.

The same gives the following anecdote that illustrates strikingly that only boy's ability, but the father's confidence in it, to take care of himself when twelve years old. He says:

"It was necessary for me to have a span of horses once, to be used in a mill in which I was engaged. I had written more than once about it to my brothers, but could not get the business done. 'I can do it,' said Ulysses. So I put him on the errand alone. Before he started I gave him an open letter, to be might show the captain of the boat, stating that he was my son and was going down to Louisville on my business. Going down he happened to meet a neighbor with whom he was acquainted, so he had no occasion for the letter. But when he came on board a boat to return, the captain asked him who he was. He told him, but the captain answered, 'I cannot take you, you may be running away.' Ulysses then produced my letter, which put everything right, and the captain not only treated him with great kindness, but took so much interest in him as to invite him to go as far as Maysville with him, where he had relatives living, free of expense. He bought both the deposition with him, and that satisfied me, and I received in exchange a satisfactory adjustment of my affairs."

It would seem very extraordinary to most a lad only twelve years of age on both occasions as this, but to send Master Hiram to another State, to find his way by rail-road and steamboat, as best he could, would be foolhardiness under any circumstances, except in case the boy had previously shown himself to be an uncommon child.

HIS PHRENOLOGICAL "BUMPS."

Again the father says: "I will relate another circumstance which I have never mentioned before, which you may use as you think proper. He was always regarded as extremely apt in figures. When he was ten years old a distinguished phrenologist came along and stayed several days in the place. He was frequently asked to examine heads and give his opinion. Among others, Ulysses was placed in the chair. The phrenologist felt his head for several minutes without saying anything. At length a noted doctor asked him if the boy had a capacity for mathematics. The phrenologist, after further examination, said: 'You need not be surprised if you see this boy fill the Presidential chair.'"

AN EARLY EVIDENCE OF OBSTINATE DETERMINATION.

In those early days he exhibited another trait, which shone out most conspicuously in his public career as a general, viz: The apparent unconcernment that he was unable to do anything he once set about. To begin a thing with him makes sure the end. He exhibited that trait at Shiloh, and again terribly beaten the first day, he blundered, even if Buell had not arrived, to fight the victorious army the next. Losing but his total destruction would secure the defeat. This peculiarity was exhibited in early life. His father sent him one day with a team to the woods to bring back some pieces of timber, suppose there were men at work who would help him load. But, no, he would help him load. But, no, they were gone. The natural course would have been to return and report the state of the case. But having been sent for the timber, he never occurred to him that he was to go back without it. So after contemplating the job for awhile, he at about, accomplishing it. A half fallen tree lay near, making an inclined plane. Up this he succeeded in rolling the heavy sticks, leaving the ends projecting over. Backing his team up under these, he fastened them with a chain to the wagon, and so hauled them on it, one by one, and returned home with his load.

MORE THAN 10,000 TO CARRY OVER.

After the battle of Shiloh and even up to the present day, there has been a good deal of discussion as to whether Grant was justified in selecting his position with the river in the rear. It is reported that Grant when asked the question, what would he have done had he been forced to cross the stream, replied:

"We would have used the gunboats."

"But," continued his questioner, "the gunboats could have carried over only 10,000 men at most."

"Well," said Grant, "there would not have been more than 10,000 men to carry over."

"UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER" GRANT.

General Grant has had a great many sobriquets applied to him, both during and since the war. One of the earliest, after he had became known to the country, was that of "Unconditional Surrender" Grant. It arose in this way: After the attack upon Fort Donelson, General Buckner wrote to General Grant proposing an armistice in order to agree upon the terms of capitulation. He received the following characteristic reply: "Yours of this date, proposing an armistice and appointment of commissioners to settle terms of capitulation, is just received. No terms other than an unconditional and immediate surrender can be accepted. I propose to move immediately upon your works." The "unconditional surrender" at once followed."

AN HAPPY DAYS WHEN HAULING WOOD.

The following anecdote illustrates Grant's mode of life after he resigned from the army in 1854, and resided on a farm near St. Louis. It is related by one familiar with it. The writer says:

"It is well known that when he resided in Missouri he was very poor, and lived in a small, uncomfortable house, cultivating a farm of a few acres. His chief income was derived by hauling wood to the city of St. Louis. He used to supply Hon. Henry T. Blow, of that city, with his fuel. Mr. Blow was elected to the Thirty-fourth Congress, and on one occasion went with his wife to one of General Grant's popular receptions. Mrs. Blow wondered if General Grant would recognize her as an old friend or acquaintance under the different circumstances of their relative positions in life. Well, Mrs. Blow had not been long at the General's before he came to her and said, "Mrs. Blow, I remember you well. What great changes have taken place since last we met!' 'Yes, General,' said Mrs. B., 'the war is over.' 'I do not mean that,' he replied, 'I mean with myself. Do you recollect when I used to supply your husband with wood, and pile it myself, and measure it too, and go to his office for my pay?' 'Oh, yes, General, your face was familiar in those days.' 'Mrs. Blow, those were happy days; for I was doing the best I could to support my family.'"

GRANT WAS RIGHT AND LINCOLN WRONG.

The country was roused to a high pitch of enthusiasm by the news of Grant's operations about Vicksburg, the occupation of Jackson, Miss., and then the capture of Vicksburg. When the news of the surrender reached President Lincoln officially, he wrote the following autograph letter to Grant:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington, July 13, 1863.

To Major-General Grant—MY DEAR GENERAL:—I do not remember that you and I ever met personally. I write this now as a grateful acknowledgment for the almost inestimable service you have done the country. I wish to say a word further. When you first reached the vicinity of Vicksburg, I thought you should do what you finally did—march the troops across the neck, run the batteries with the transports, and thus go below. And I never had any faith, except a general hope that you knew better than I, that the Yazoo pass expedition, and the like could succeed. When you got below and took Port Gibson, Grand Gulf and vicinity, I thought you should go down the river and join General Banks, and when you turned northward, east of the Big Black, I feared it was a mistake. I now wish to make a personal acknowledgment that you were right and I was wrong.

YOURS, very truly,
A. LINCOLN.

GRANT AS A WEST POINT CADET.

Henry Coppee, Esq., who was with Grant at West Point for two years, gives the following account of him while there:

"I remember him as a plain, commonsense, straightforward youth, quiet, rather of the old-head-on-young-shoulders order; steady, unassuming; quite contented, while others were grumbling, to bring to his military duties in a very business-like manner; not a prominent man in the class, but respected by all, and very popular with his friends. His sobriquet of Uncle Sam was given to him long before any very good fellow has a nickname, from these very qualities, indeed, he was a very uncle-like sort of a youth. He was then and always an excellent horseman, and all his pictures before me as I write, in the old, torn coat, obsolete sent leather gig-top, loose riding pantaloons, with spurs buckled over them, going with his shoulders well back in the hall. He exhibited but little enthusiasm in anything; his best standing was in the mathematical branches, and also in application to tactics and military engineering.

"If we again dwell upon the fact that no one, even of his most intimate friends, dreamed of a great future for him, it is to add that, looking back now, we must confess that the possession of many excellent qualities, and the entire absence of all low and mean ones, establish a logical sequence from first to last, and illustrated, in a novel manner, the poet's fancy about

"The baby figures of the giant mass

HIS SIMPLICITY OF DRESS.

The plainness of dress of both Lincoln and Grant harmonized. In February, 1865, when Grant came to Washington he called at the Capitol and paid his respects to the Senate in session. That body was so scandalized by the carelessness of his attire, that after he had gone one of the Senators actually arose and moved consideration of the Senate on the matter.

"It is evident," said the fine-spun Senator, "that a gross mistake has been made in appointing Grant Lieutenant-General. He'll pass, he'll pass, and lieutenant of the home guard in my State that does not cut a bigger swell than this man who has just left our presence."

CURRSTONE CRAYONS.

A Volley of Anecdotes About the Silent Man.

From the Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

"Everybody is telling stories about Grant," said an old man to me on Friday, "but in some way they have failed to bring out just right one very important trait of character. There never was anything very picturesque about the old man, but he always surprised the boys on the home stretch. He could not be impressive to save him-self, and I believe if the boys had one grievance against General Grant which they cling to it is that he never made a good use of his opportunities.

"I remember when he rode along the lines at Shiloh with Buell and Nelson and the others on the second day of the battle that failed to come up to the expectations of the men in the way of taking his proper place. Looking at the men on the galloping horses one would naturally have supposed that Buell, stately and forgetful, or Nelson, pompous and full of the war spirit, was the leader, and that the watchful, quiet, modest Grant was the subordinate.

"Of course this impression was dispelled the moment Grant spoke, but he did not seem to care to have anybody to know that he was in command of the army, while the other men were a little anxious that it should be understood that they were commanders of divisions or of armies. The boys thought Grant ought to be kicked for not putting on more style. They thought he was not good enough of either his army or what it was doing.

"It was always this way. When he took command of the armies in the West he went slipping into Chattanooga as quietly as though he had been under arrest. The morning after his arrival I was one of a band of soldiers engaged in tumbling boxes of crackers into the wagons of a supply train. We did not like the work; we were not taking much pains to place the boxes right in the wagon; we wanted to get them in and go.

"As I dropped one box in a little recklessly, a quiet, shrinking sort of a man, who had been roaming aimlessly about the platform, said with incisive firmness, 'That won't do, men. These crackers are going to men who are starving. Every cracker is precious, and the more boxes you get into that wagon the more hungry men you will feed to-night.' I looked up with the idea of telling the speaker to go to blazes, when my eye caught sight of two stars on his shoulder.

"I then looked closely at the face and the figure, and I knew that I stood in the presence of General Grant. I climbed into the wagon without a word, rearranged all the boxes while the General stood there making suggestions and pointing out with his cane little changes that could be made in arrangement. The clerk who was superintending the loading of the wagons was a more impressive figure as he strode in his autocratic way up and down the platform than was the commander of the armies of the West; but I tell you the boys froze to Grant.

"That night our division left their shelter tents at midnight and took the initiative in the movement that culminated in the battle of Mission Ridge. The day that General Thomas's army went up the ridge in a grand cyclonic sweep I stood within ten paces of Grant and I could have shaken him because he allowed subordinates to become the impressive figures in the grandest battle scene I ever saw. There he stood, watchful, but as careless in the matter of making a good impression as any man could be."

"Grant always vexed me," said an old political speaker, "when he appeared before large audiences. He did not seem to know how to make a good impression. He was certainly disinclined to try. When he began his speech-making in 1880 I did think he would make more effort to make a good impression, but he didn't. At the great Warren meeting in Ohio he was on the platform with Conkling and other splendid political speakers, but when he rose to speak the crowd went off its feet in a storm of continuous cheers. Conkling would not have spoken one word until the storm had been quieted, but when Grant saw that the cheering was likely to continue he proceeded to make his speech, and he made it and concluded before the cr wd had done cheering over his appearance."

"It was the same way at the dinner that evening at General Garfield's. Grant, of course, was the distinguished guest. He came to that table with a prestige that threw every other man in the shade; but he allowed Conkling and others to do the talking, and he sat reserved and quiet, not because he had nothing to say, but because he knew that it was all-important that Conkling and Garfield should do the talking. I remember that one of his long-time friends who sat opposite to him at the table said in a burst of indignation after dinner, 'I was so mad at the old man that I hoped at one time that the chicken salad would choke him.' But at that dinner Grant did what he always did—the right thing at the right time."

"When Grant was in Chicago three or four years ago," an army officer told me, "he lounged about Sheridan's headquarters a good deal. His son Fred was at that time on Sheridan's staff, but was absent one day, and Grant took his place at Fred's desk and looked after his business. A nervous, fidgety, irritable old fellow came in to inquire for some paper that he had left with Fred. When he stated his case Gra t took up the matter in a sympathetic way and proceeded after the manner of an overanxious clerk to look the paper up."

"The document could not be found, and Grant, apologizing, walked with the old gentleman to the door. As I walked down the stairs with the mollified visitor he turned and asked, 'Who is that old codger? He is the politest clerk I ever saw at military headquarters. I hope Sheridan will keep him.'

I answered quietly, 'That is General Grant.' The fidgety old gentleman, after sitting at me for a full minute, said with considerable terror, 'I will give you fifty cents if you will kick me downstairs.'

"It was always so with Grant, but the people understood him as well as they understood him now. In 1863 crowds gathered by the 50,000 to look at him, or shake hands with him. He seemed to shrink away from them, to be pained by the attentions that were paid him, but the people liked him better for it. When he made the tour with President Johnson and Cabinet he kept in the background, was the last man to come on the platform, and generally took a rear seat, but the people always found him and always called him to the front."

"That," said a man with snow-white hair, "is Grant's strong point. He always has come where the people called him—always came whether it suited him to come or not. He never rode at the front like a conqueror, but he always conquered. He never pleaded with men to do their duty, but they always did it. However he began he always satisfied the soldiers, and when he went abroad and when he came home he so completely met the expectations of the people that not even his enemies have cared to find fault with anything he has done since that time."

GOT A CIGAR FROM GRANT.

The Adventure of Two Washington Urchins.

General Grant, when President, used to walk out every evening for a smoke. Just as dusk he would come out of the north gate of the White House alone, with a cigar in his mouth, his head bent down just a little, and his left hand behind him holding a cane. That was his favorite attitude, and the striking figure was familiar to everybody. The hackmen on the streets would take off their hats as he went by and he always returned their salutes. He would walk down past the Treasury Department, down Fifteenth to the avenue; thence past Willard's and the Metropolitan, and up Thirteenth towards New York avenue. All the newsboys, bootblacks and street arabs generally, knew him and would follow him in his walk, waiting for him to throw his cigar stumps away. There was always a scramble after his stumps, either because they were better than those ordinarily found or because he had smoked them, and there was some dignity attached to smoking after him. The urchin who got the stump would put it between his lips and stand with his back up against the door post of the National "peanut gallery" with his thumbs in the armholes of his vest, and puff away with a dignity that was the envy of all his admiring associates. Two little urchins who had been following him very assiduously for several squares, watching his cigar very eagerly, and asked them what he could do for them.

"Pleash, shishter," one of them replied, snatching his ragged cap off and holding it with both hands in front of him, while his companion got close behind; "pleesh, mishter, we only wanted a shmoke what the President has had."

The General smiled good-humoredly, and taking an expensive cigar from his pocket—the only one he had left—he cut it in two and gave each of them half. The two little rascals ran off with their hearts in their throats, and for many weeks were held in awe and reverence by the whole of urchindom.

Grant and the Reporters.

New York Times.

When Garfield lay dead at Elberon, and Mrs. Garfield was beginning to realize the sorrow that had come upon her, there went down from Jersey City, with a distinguished party, Chester A. Arthur, become the President; Police Commissioner French, Colonel George Bliss, and General Grant and his son Fred. When the special train rolled back to Jersey City the gentlemen on the inside waited patiently until they might get into their carriages to cross the ferry and rattle away up town. One personage in fine attire also waited with the party, standing for the time on a rear platform. This watcher's manner was haughty, and the lofty poise of his head seemed to imply that he felt very much at ease with this world. A New York newspaper reporter, assigned to meet the train, approached this gentleman with a casual inquiry and was most pronouncedly snubbed. "We don't propose to be bothered by a lot of buzzard reporters," quoth the gentleman, with an extraordinary emphasis on the "we." After disposing of this nice little sentiment, the gentleman's haughtiness increased visibly. He wasn't quite satisfied with the gentlemanly exhibition he had made of himself, but broke out again with, "We don't want you around here, anyway. Skip."

Just at this moment the car door was thrown open, a compact figure stepped on the platform on his way to the ferry-boat. He heard the agreeable remarks of the austere gentleman, and he turned around half in surprise, half in shame, and then, as he recognized the reporter, he genially extended his hand toward him and cried out, "Come along with me, my boy, and I'll tell you all about it."

The friend in need was Ulysses S. Grant; the distinguished gentleman on the rear platform was a private secretary.

President Grant and the Kentucky Ladies.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

The Kentucky women are as enthusiastic about horses as the men. They unhesitatingly place the horses before themselves as the great attractions of the State. I remember hearing a conversation between General Grant and a Kentucky girl at the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange in 1875, when President Grant was visiting the St. Louis fair. A number of ladies were introduced to the President, whereupon he spoke in very high terms of St. Louis, the fair, etc. "You are mistaken, Mr. President; we are not from St. Louis," laughingly said one of the girls, "we are from Kentucky, a very fine State, you know, which possesses three things all men of taste must appreciate." Smilingly, the President asked her what they were. She answered, "We have the fastest horses, the prettiest women and the finest whisky in the world." The President replied, "Your horses are certainly justly renowned. I have some on my farm near here. Yourself and party prove the correctness of your second observation, but whisky is one of the things that requires age, and your men consume it so fast that it rarely has a fair chance to become good." The girls thought that, if General Grant could not make a long speech, he was apt at repartee.

GENERAL GRANT'S TROPHIES.

List of the Articles Presented to the Government.

The following is a list of the articles turned over in June last to Colonel R. N. Batchelder, who was sent by the War Department to New York to receive the swords and tokens of honor belonging to General Grant and ship them to Washington:

The list concludes with sixty-seven papers and mementoes, comprising addresses, honorary society commissions and recognitions of respect, as well as the freedom of cities presented abroad.

CITY AND COUNTRY

PERSONAL.

Sunday, July 19.

Joseph Wolfskill and family went down to the Salt Works, between Wilmington and Santa Monica, yesterday, for a three weeks' sojourn.

C. J. M. Minick, of Carmi, Ills., arrived here with his family yesterday. Dr. Minick served with credit during the war in the Forty-second Illinois Regiment, and comes here to stay.

Gov. D. Whitcomb, a prominent business man of Chicago, who spent the winter here with his family, and left them here and went East the 1st of June, is expected back by to-day's train. Mr. Whitcomb while here was so delighted with the country and climate that he purchased a ranch at the Azusa and made quite extensive water developments, also set out an orange grove of choice budded Washington Navels and Mediterranean Sweets. While East, Mr. Whitcomb visited Powell Bros'. stock farm and purchased blooded cattle and horses, to be sent out this fall. He will continue the improvements on the ranch, and his family will probably spend the coming winter on it.

Tuesday, July 21.

H. C. Sigler, the excursion manager, went to Santa Barbara yesterday on the Eureka.

L. W. Wilhelm, special agent of the Labor Bureau, has gone on to San Francisco.

Miss Nellie Gray, who has been visiting relatives here for some months past, returned to her home in Santa Barbara Sunday.

F. B. Fanning, of the County Clerk's office, spends his leisure at Santa Monica. He dotes on the place, and can hardly be torn away from it.

James L. De Force and W. H. Fillmore, San Francisco; L. W. Beach, San Diego, and E. Clark and family, Iowa City, arrived at the Depot Hotel Sunday.

Wednesday, July 22.

Chief of Police Horner is again on duty, but still bashful about sitting down.

C. F. Butan, the shorthand reporter of Judge Brunson's court, has returned from his vacation at San Gorgonio.

John Boyer, the druggist at Long Beach, returned to this city yesterday, very ill. He has been suffering from liver complaint for some time, and it is feared that he will not recover.

F. Jordan, of Santa Fé, who was here on a prospecting trip last spring, and was charmed with this city, has come back here to stay. He is fresh from the Apache country, having held a command under Colonel Fred. Mormon, who leads the well-organized battalion composed of Pueblo "Indians" of Laguna. They had a 1000 mile chase, up and down, after the savages, but were unable to come up with them.

Thursday, July 23.

Will Hammel, who accompanied Sheriff Gard north, returned yesterday.

Wm. Banning, of Wilmington, will come in on this noon's South-bound train.

Charles H. Tully, editor of La Colonia Mexicana, Tucson, is at the St. Charles.

Hon. H. H. Markham and party have returned from a fortnight's camping on Catalina Island.

Hon. Add. C. Hinkson, a leading lawyer of Sacramento, came down yesterday in search of cool weather.

Mrs. George C. Knox, wife of the City Engineer, went down to Anaheim yesterday to visit her parents.

Judge James A. Gibson, of the Superior Court of San Bernardino county, came in yesterday with his family.

Hon. H. G. Bollins, formerly Surveyor-General of California and now of Tucson, was in the city yesterday.

Peter Kitchen, one of Arizona's oldest pioneers, and now a big cattle man, is in from Tucson, and taking his rations at the Depot Hotel.

Coroner McFarland, having held an inquest at the Sisters' Hospital and another at Duarte yesterday, tarried in town over night.

Ben W. Edelman, wife and child, and Miss Eva Prager left on the Santa Rosa yesterday for an extended visit to San Diego and the Southern country in general.

Spurgeon Riley and Edwin Clark, teachers of this county, who made a bicycle trip to San Diego during the Christmas holidays, have just returned from a two-weeks' ride on their wheels to Ventura, Santa Barbara and other interesting points up the coast.

H. S. Millett, one of the proprietors and publishers of the Live Stock Record, Kansas City, is in the city. To-day he goes to Pasadena. Mr. Millett is a long-time newspaper man of Kansas City. He was city editor of the Journal of Commerce away back in '67-70. Subsequently he became a member of the printing and lithographing house of Ramsey, Millett & Hudson, and assisted in building up an immense business. The Live Stock Record is owned and published by this house.

Friday, July 24.

Superior Judge Gibson, of San Bernardino county, is tenting with his family at Santa Monica.

In consequence of the serious illness of Mrs. Huskins, Dr. Huskins will be absent from his office and will not attend to professional calls until further notice.

Mr. N. P. Austin and wife, of Santa Barbara, now visiting friends in Vermont, will sail from Boston, for Europe, on the 15th of August, to be gone from one to three years.

County Surveyor E. T. Wright, who has been detained at Santa Barbara for some time under circumstances which he could not control—principally rheumatism—has returned to his native heath. He was on the streets yesterday, looking as though entirely restored to health.

BRIEFS.

Friday, July 24.

Grapes are becoming very abundant in the market.

No deaths in the city yesterday, and none reported from the country.

The notorious Anita Sanchez has disappointed the city by returning to it.

A San Fernando street fruit man showed a sixty-pound watermelon yesterday.

A TIMES reporter noted 54 vegetable-wagons hitched in Chinatown yesterday afternoon.

The carpenters are laying the floor timbers of the new city market on Main street.

Passenger travel is picking up a little, and the hotels feel happier than for some weeks.

The masons are actively at work on the foundations of the huge addition to the Capitol Mills.

Walter S. Maxwell has secured the Aliron ship Kistna, and will load it with 3500 tons of Los Angeles county products for England.

Silas Ellsworth and Miss Ella Patterson, of Artesia, were wedded on Sunday by Rev. Bailey. After a banquet at the home of the bride's parents, the happy pair started on a short tour.

The Barnard and Benedict Fruit Crystallizing Company has filed articles of incorporation. Principal place of business, Los Angeles. Capital stock, $200,000, in 2000 shares, all subscribed by the directors—William H. Barnard, Charles E. Benedict, Charles Z. Culver, Abel W. Poter, Los Angeles; and Bernard A. Cohn, Buffalo, N. Y.

Thursday, July 23.

Baron Boquiat has received the first "bus" tricycle (for two riders) in this city.

Two miles of steel rails arrived for the L. A. & S. W. Wednesday. Work goes on rapidly.

Fourteen more carloads of ties for the A. & P. extension have been forwar

UNCLE ASA.

He Says the Pen is Mightier than the Plow,

AND AN EXCEPTIONALLY SOFT THING.

Glimpse into the Collector's Inner Office—An Old Friend Who was Mystified—Distinguished Callers.

"Ostray!" shouted Uncle Asa, in response to a knock at the door of his private office in San Francisco—the office of the Internal Revenue Collector of the First District of California.

"Ostray; come in!"

Uncle Asa utilitizes his knowledge of Spanish more or less now-a-days, because, for one reason, it is familiar and natural to him, and for another—well, it sounds foreign. It has been reported by some of the snobs of the Field wing of the Democracy that Uncle Asa is not exactly what he ought to be in the way of of classical learning and society polish; and when one of those fellows comes around now, smiling and rubbing his hands as though to wash them of any anti-Ellis dabbling that he was ever engaged in, Uncle Asa likes to transfix the dude with language that he can't understand.

On this particular occasion Uncle Asa uttered the word "Ostray" in his roughest and most sinister tones, with the sly purpose of leaving the newcomer in doubt whether he had been bidden to come in or go to the devil.

It was a 'Monte man who had knocked;—one to the manner born, so to speak, and a long-time neighbor to Uncle Asa. So he pushed in and returned the salutation in kind "Como stamus, Uncle Asa; howdy!"

But the 'Monte man, who was advancing with outstretched hand, wavered when half way to the Collector's desk; then halted; then seemed to be divided between two opinions;—whether he should retire or apologize. At the desk was seated a man whom he did not know;—a man dressed in the latest cut of fashion; with "dude" pantaloons, immaculate vest and shirt front, cut-away coat, white necktie, boots polished, eyebrows neatly trimmed and moustache done in wax.

The new-comer was embarrassed, and, like Dr. Holmes's "Zekel,

> He stood awhile on one foot fust
> And then he stood on t'other,
> And on which one he hit the wust,
> He couldn't a-told you, nuther.

Noticing the man's quandary, Uncle Asa—for it was Uncle Asa all the time—spoke to him in his gruff, familiar, reassuring voice and said,

"Hello, Bill!"

If the man was irresolute before, he was positively shaky now. It seemed to "strike him all of a heap," as the saying goes, and he had just strength enough to seize the outstretched hand of the dapper official and then sink into a chair, gasping, "Well, I'm Billy b' gol durned!"

"Didn't know me, eh!" said Uncle Asa, as a picturesque 'Monte sunrise illumined the brown landscape of his face. "Didn't s'pose— But say; shut that there door; bang it hard and it'll latch itself. Now we can talk. Got any tobacker?"

The 'Monte man returning from the closed door tendered his plug, now for the first time feeling perfectly reassured.

Uncle Asa drew from his pocket a neat little pearl-handled penknife, but he did not open it. Balancing the plug of tobacco in one hand and the knife in the other for an instant, he seemed to be struck with the eternal unfitness and inadequacy of the gewgaw, and he returned it to his pocket. Then, inserting a corner of the plug between his teeth, he "came down hard" upon it, and with a vigorous twist of the hand and, detatched a sizable section. "Ugh," he said, with unfeigned satisfaction, "there's taste in that! Ain't had a chaw since Sunday."

Ignoring the remark offered by the 'Monte man as to the comparative merits of Nigger Heel, Virginia Twist and the new-fangled kinds, Uncle Asa plunged immediately into the subject uppermost in his thoughts.

"Ain't it a lark, though?" he said. "Ain't it a go—lorious new constitutional lark? Ole Baldwin Hotel—style ye can't sleep nights—champagne, two-bit cigars with the boys—whoop 'er up Lizy Jane!"

"Like it!" queried the 'Monte man.

"Daily!" said Uncle Asa. "Bullier nor anything I ever struck. Bang-up nice office—brass spittoons, shandyleers —big desk—clerks and a porter. What more d'ye want of a Democratic administration?"

"Tol'able smooth," said the 'Monte man.

"Smooth? Well, if it aint greased the hull length I don't know ham fat." "Got the hang of things so-so I reck'n?"

"Oh hell, yes! I don't have to do nothin' but sign papers; and that's a dum sight easier than plowin' down in the Monte, yo betcher—"

At this point there came a knock at the door, and Uncle Asa, after taking a peek through a scratched place on the frosted window, said:

"It's Barclay Henley; I don't owe a dam for him! He is a Paisano, anyhow. Let him knock till he gets tired and then he can come around and knock again. Judge Wallace 'll be back from Washington in a few weeks and me and him 's going to have a big blowout. If you're in the city, Bill, don't fail to come down to the Baldwin and dine with us. Here, you can go out this here side door. I reckon I'll let Henley in. He wants to see me on particickler business."

And as the 'Monte man was making his way out through the side passage, he heard in the stentorian tones of the Collector within, the summons,

"Ostray!"

LONG BEACH.

The Attractions and Demands of this Growing Resort.

This pleasant new watering place of whose future such bright hopes are entertained, is showing a remarkable growth. Very noticeable, also, is the quality of the improvements that have been and are being made. Nearly all the buildings are of far more than average attractiveness, and shantyism is practically unknown there. The beach is superb, and for bathing and driving has certainly no superior among the famous watering places of the East. The hotel is decidedly pleasant and well arranged; and the large $10,000 addition now under roof will greatly increase the attractions, and about double the capacity of the hostelry. It is a pity, however, that it was not built last winter, for use the present season. Guests were turned away, Sunday, for want of room. The addition is 60x100 feet, three stories high, with thirty-five rooms, forty-two bath-rooms in the basement, and a handsome dining-hall, to seat 175 people. Numerous other buildings—mostly pleasant cottages—are also going up. No saloons are tolerated in town, which is an admirable regulation; but there is also a little disposition to go to the extreme of interfering with the private affairs of citizens in the matter of home beverages. All this, however, the town will soon outgrow. The present great need of Long Beach is an adequate water supply. The reservoir back of town is not a monument of efficient management. It has been tinkered and retinkered, and even now is a partial failure. A four-inch iron pipe is relied upon to supply the whole town, and of course does not do it. When the two-inch sprinkling hydrant at the lower end of Front street is opened, no house along the entire street can get water; and at best the slight pressure afforded will lift a stream but six feet from a garden hose. There is immediate and pressing need of a reformed water service. A railroad is to be pushed at once to Wilmington; but on the present plan will be of slight benefit compared with what it should be. It is proposed to run it from Wilmington to a point on Sixth street, five squares from the hotel and from any other place to which visitors would wish to go. This will necessitate taking a horse car from the terminus to Front street, thus making two changes between Los Angeles and the Beach. That sort of engineering would militate greatly against the prosperity of Long Beach. The journey from this city to Wilmington is tedious enough at best; and there is no reason for making the rest of the way still worse. The new railroad could be run from Wilmington along a natural grade plumb up to the Long Beach hotel. With its delightful beach and climate, good water but more of it, its handsome cottages, good class of citizens and absence of rowdyism, and convenience of access, Long Beach should be one of the most popular resorts in Southern California. It should be, by proper railroad arrangements, a summer home for a great number of the best families of Los Angeles, whose heads should be able to come up to their business in this city and return at night; and it will be, under wise management, all these things.

UNDER THE BRAKEBEAM.

A German Killed Near San Fernando, Yesterday.

Tuesday, July 21.]

At three o'clock yesterday morning, freight train No. 23 came to a sudden stop three miles this side of San Fernando. Brakemen who went to see what was the trouble, found that a tramp who had been riding on the deadwoods had fallen, being dragged under the brakebeam till dead. In his fall he had broken the air-brake connection, which caused the stoppage. The unfortunate's remains were brought to this city, and an inquest was held at Brown's morgue yesterday afternoon, by Coroner McFarland and the following jury: W. F. Griggs, S. E. Reese, W. Tucker, H. Wilfret, E. A. Coburn and J. D. Williamson. The name of the deceased was fixed as Charles Sims, his age as 27 or 28 years, and his nationality as German. Nothing was developed as to his home or place of last occupation. A letter in German was found upon him, a translation of which is as follows:

DEAR AUGUST: I wish to inform you that I have found work up a farm, and have been here for three weeks. If you receive any letters for me, kindly send them to my address.

I will pay what I owe you when I visit you next fall.

I have not heard of Gustoff Sorga until now. Yours truly,

HERMAN MULLER.

Address, Herman Muller, Newhall Ranch.

The verdict was in accordance with the facts above stated, and absolved the railroad company from blame.

BRITISH BENEVOLENT SOCIETY.

A Pleasant Musical and Literary Entertainment Last Night.

Tuesday, July 21.]

The British Benevolent Society is getting a considerable local reputation for pleasant, unstilted entertainments. The sample in Y. M. C. A. hall last night was no exception to the rule, and the musical and literary exercises were amply appreciated by the audience. The following programme was well carried out:

PART I.

Pianoforte solo—"Fantasie da Norma," ..... Appreverdi.

Song—"A Leaf from the Spray"..... Miss Tingley.

Song—"I'm as happy as the day is long," ..... Mr. James Booth.

Recitation—Scene from "Henry V"..... Shakespeare Miss Lydia Bell.

Song—"Bird Carol"..... Knapp Miss Bertie Bush.

Violin solo..... Miss Leonora Hamley.

PART II.

Song—"She wore a wreath of roses"..... Knight Mrs. L. Reese.

Pianoforte solo—Selections from Faust ..... Miss Pomfret.

Song—"When an aroll and parrot"..... Dolby Professor J. E. Fiske.

Recitation—"How Ruby played"..... Bagley Miss Lydia Bell.

Song—"Kathleen Mavourneen"..... Crouch Mrs. Oswald Petre.

Song—"Roast beef of old England".. Mr. James Booth.

Hereafter the society's entertainments will be held every two months.

Another Reminiscence of Kit Carson.

In the interview with Samuel C. Carson, son of old Kit Carson, which appeared in the SUNDAY TIMES, Carson stated that his father was, when young, apprenticed to a saddler in Howard county, Missouri. Mr. W. H. Workman informed a TIMES reporter Monday that the saddler referred to was his father, David Workman, who at that time resided in Howard county, Missouri. Kit was bound to him for a team of years, but not liking the trade, ran away. Mr. Workman, in order to complete the time which compelled masters of apprentices to offer a reward for the capture and return of runaways, advertised that he would pay five cents for the return of Kit, but the boy escaped and was not heard of until in after years he became famous.

A Successful Smoke Consumer.

Of interest in connection with the question of fuel, now being agitated by the Manufacturing Association of Los Angeles, is the announcement by the Stove and Hardware Reporter, of St. Louis, that a successful smoke consumer has been devised and put in operation by a resident of that city. It is claimed to effect a saving of 30 per cent. in fuel, and is very practically constructible. Its principle is the introduction of jets of heated air into the boiler back of the point of combustion and just before the escape-flue. The same idea has been tried before, but failed, owing to the fact that the air-pipes would soon warp, crack, or burn out. It is said that Mr. Boileau, the inventor, has overcome this difficulty.

A Libel Suit.

Eugene Day, a compositor on the Porcupine, has been arrested on a charge of criminal libel, preferred by F. Endel, proprietor of the Hotel de Strasbourg, Alameda street. Day has been released on $500 bail. His offense consisted of writing a communication stating that a gang of loafers frequent the front of the hotel, and make it so "loud" that ladies are obliged to take the middle of the street to get by.

Fine Nectarines.

Some large, highly colored and fine flavored nectarines were left at the TIMES office Monday by Henry Elms, of Pasadena Highlands. Mr. Elms's trees are loaded with fruit of this kind. The Highlands are 500 feet higher than the Sierra Madre Villa, and fully 2000 feet above sea level. The locality is well suited to apricots, peaches, nectarines and citrus fruits. Water is obtained from four tunnels into the mountain.

Identified.

The Chinaman who died upon reaching this city, a few days ago, from the heat and fatigue of tramping in the Yuma desert, has been identified by his cousin, Tong Gay. Deceased was named Chang Ping Eye, was 40 years of age, and had been sent out from San Francisco by the Hop Wo Chinese company to work on the railroad. He worked two days, and then succumbed to the terrible heat of the desert.

A. O. U. W. Installation at Newhall

The following officers were installed in Newhall Lodge, No. 218, A. O. U. W., on Saturday evening, July 18, by D. D. G. M. W., James Booth: P. M. W., C. D. Reynolds; M. W., H. B. Proudfit; F., J. H. Whitney; L. W. G. Lorbeer; Recorder, J. J. Morrison; Fin., J. W. Meyers; Recv., C. A. Minary; G., W. N. Forker; I. W., W. E. Pardee; O. W., S. H. Drew.

The White Scale.

After all is said and done, it may be conceded that the best and quickest mode of removing this scale or other tree and plant pests is by the free and repeated use of the proper product of petroleum. Such a coal oil is sold at 12½ cents per gallon by the Oil Barning and Supply Company, 111 West First street, Los Angeles.

COUNCIL.

The Three Hours' Work of the City Paps Tuesday.

SPECIAL BOND ELECTION APPOINTED.

The Half-mile Anti-Chinese Petition Wanted —The Eight Hour Law Awaited—General Routine Work.

Wednesday, July 22.]

Council was called to order at 2:26 p. m. yesterday, President Miles in the chair, and present Councilmen Brown, Bullis, Day, French, Holbrook, Hamilton, Lambie, McGarry, Santee and Velsir.

Minutes read and approved.

A message from the Mayor recommended to Council's attention a citizen's communication on the white scale, stating that the Supervisors' ordinance is inoperative, on account of the law's delays; that no substantial results are being attained; and that some other action is of pressing necessity; that lawyers say that under the charter a legal ordinance can be passed which will reach the evil.

Mr. Hamilton moved that the City Attorney draw ordinance against the scale bugs. Carried.

REPORTS OF CITY OFFICERS.

City Auditor's report of condition of the various funds referred to Committee on Finances.

Zanjero reported work amounting to $94. Same reference.

Also called attention of Council to the fact that the city can now get the right of way through the Wilhart property, so that zanja 6-1 can be straightened and piped. The Wilhart heirs are now of age, and the property is to be subdivided. If the right of way is not secured now, it probably never can be. Referred to the Committee on Zanjas.

Superintendent of Streets reported a pay-roll of $150. Referred to Committee on Finance.

Also that he had received several notices from the County Board of Horticultural Commissioners to disinfect white scale along San Pedro street, and also a lime tree on Fort street. Considerable discussion followed as to who owns and who should own trees on the streets. Referred to City Attorney.

Also that he has secured a lot on Fifth street between Main and Spring for a city stable and tool yard, at $25 per month, to commence August 1. Mr. Hamilton moved to approve this action and accept the yard. Carried.

THE CITY ATTORNEY'S BUDGET.

City Attorney reported that in his opinion there is nothing to prevent the purchase by the Board of Supervisors of the High school property, paying the city in installments and no deed being given till the full amount is paid. Committee on Finance.

Also recommendation that in matter of completion of purchase of water right from G. J. Griffith, the necessary conveyance for same be executed; and, upon its execution by the Council, a warrant for the agreed price be drawn and delivered to Mr. Griffith. An able discussion followed as to whether it was necessary to bring suit against Mr. Griffith and have him confess judgment. The City Attorney said it was not necessary.

On Mr. Lambie's motion, City Attorney was instructed to draw proper ordinance.

City Attorney also reported his opinion that the Water Company is expressly required by its contract to keep the fire hydrants in repair. Approved.

Also presented an ordinance, forbidding men, women, children, horses and mules to swim in the city zanjas. Rules suspended and ordinance passed.

Also a resolution providing for a special election on the proposition to issue $245,000 bonds for municipal improvements. Discussion began as to the date of the election.

Mr. Lambie said there was a large population now of unemployed men, to whom the voting of the bonds would give employment.

Mr. Hamilton moved to fix the date of the election for Monday, August 17th.

The following voting places were fixed:

First Ward, Kansas City House, San Fernando street.

Second Ward, courthouse.

Third Ward, police office.

Fourth Ward, Vigilance Hook and Ladder House.

Fifth Ward, Washington Gardens.

Judges and Inspectors of election for the several voting places were appointed.

Mr. Hamilton moved to adopt the resolution as filled out. Carried unanimously.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Committee on Finance reported.

First—Recommendation to file certain reports of city officers. So ordered.

Second—Referring back to Council, as Committee of the Whole, on matter of offices for City Auditor and City Tax-collector. Referred back to the committee to find suitable places for the offices.

Third—Recommendation to authorize Clerk of Council to engage Hoyes & Field to assist him in selling the Fort Hill lots, they offering to serve for a commission of 1 per cent. So ordered.

Fourth—Recommendation that Los Angeles Electric Light Company and the Los Angeles Gas Company be charged $10 per month license till the end of the year, provided that the Gas Company will pay up its arrearages. So ordered.

Fifth—Recommendation to refer to special Committee on Pipe-line the bills of Ed. Partridge for $300 and $90. So ordered.

Sixth—Recommended that warrants be drawn for payment of various pay-rolls and bills. So ordered.

THE EIGHT-HOUR LAW.

Messrs. Workman and Lambie presented the majority report of the Finance Committee on the City Assessor's bill for June. "Extra work" has been charged by the clerks on work done between 7 and 9 a. m. and after 5 p. m. The present eight-hour law is working unlimited extra expense to the tax-payer. Instead of employing more men, it enables one man to work fifty or sixty days per month, thus shutting out others from employment. It works a hardship to the city and tax-payer, and is of no value to city employes except to make sixty days per month, for which the city has to pay. Workman and Lambie, on the strength of these allegations, recommend the repeal of the eight-hour law; also that the rate per day paid by the city to any employe be for a day's work and no more; also that the City Attorney draw ordinance to repeal the eight-hour ordinance.

Mr. Brown moved to adopt the report.

Mr. Hamilton said the clerks had plainly violated the law. If the eight-hour law is enforced there will be no trouble.

Mr. McGarry presented a minority report.

Mr. Fischer explains that the clerks are employed for extra time because they are more expert at the work. Mr. Fischer's office only has the extra work for a short time. I can't consent to the repeal of the eight-hour law, for eight hours is as long as any man should work or should wish to work.

Mr. Hamilton said each Councilman is sworn to enforce the laws, and the eight-hour law is plain. No Councilman can vote to pay for extra work without violating his oath.

Mr. Brown's motion to adopt the majority report was carried, Messrs. Day, Hamilton and McGarry voting no.

Mr. Hamilton moved to refer the bills of the Assessor's clerks to the City Attorney to see if the clerks have violated the eight-hour law. Carried.

The Committee on Zanjas presented a resolution fixing rates after August 1st at $3 per head per day and $2 per head per night in the city; $5 per head per day and $3 per head per night outside the city. Resolution adopted.

Committee on Sewers reported:

First—Pay-roll of $33.75. Referred to Committee on Finance.

Second—Recommendation to grant petition of Henry Gardiner for leave to connect with private sewer on Olive street. So ordered.

Third—Resolution ordering construction of branch public sewer on Elmyra street. Mr. Brown moved to adopt resolution and advertise for bids for construction of sewer. Carried.

Postponed report of Committee on Police recommending purchase of a "Black Maria," the extra horse of the fire department to be used to propel same, was brought up.

Mr. Day moved to receive and file the report. Carried.

Mr. Day moved to allow the Chief of Police $10 per month to hire wagons on occasion to take the place of a "Black Maria." No action.

Mr. Holbrook, at Dr. Baker's request, moved that the special committee of physicians appointed to investigate the city water, be empowered to send a demijohn from each water system to the State Chemist for analysis, at a cost not to exceed $20. Carried.

Mr. Bullis moved City Surveyor define lines of city property on north side First street. Carried.

Mr. Hamilton moved that at next meeting the Health Officer report whether Chinatown is a nuisance, or whether there are other nuisances. Carried.

Mr. Day moved that Philip Heiman, tiller-man of the hook and ladder company, be paid $70 per month instead of $60. Lost. Messrs. Brown, Bullis, French, Lambie and Miles voting no.

Dr. French moved that Committee on Supplies procure desks for the Councilmen and for the reporters, which would complete the furnishing of the Council Chamber. Lost. Messrs. Day and McGarry voting no.

Mr. Day said the Chief of Police would not let the Twos wash the hose on the sidewalk in front of their house. Moved that they be allowed to wash there, and that Street Superintendent lay down 30 feet of planking over gutter, to wash hose on. Lost. Mr. Brown voting no.

Special Committee on City Building recommended to pay J. D. Campbell's bill of $157, for which an itemized bill was appended.

Also that his other bill, of $65, be not allowed, as it is not certified by the architect.

The matter of allowing discount has been reported adversely by the City Attorney. Whole report referred to the City Attorney.

A Mr. Flood, being given the floor, said that Council was accepting bids for its Second-street sidewalk, which will be infringements on the patent he represents—Schillinger's. Mr. Flood was much excited, and loud in threats of prosecution. Mr. Brown said he had tried the Schillinger, and found it worthless. Mr. Flood was bidden to go ahead with his circus.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS reported:

First—Asking one week further time on petition of M. Levy and others for establishing new grade of Kip and Ingraham streets. Granted.

Second—Recommendation to grant the petition of Los Angeles Improvement Company for leave to grade on Diamond street; provided it be without expense to the city. So ordered.

Third—Recommendation that City Attorney draw contract between city and T. F. Joyce, he being the lowest bidder on sidewalk and curb in front of city property, corner of Second and Spring streets. So ordered.

Fourth—Recommendation that Superintendent of Streets remove old bridge lumber from Aliso street and store it on City Hall lot. Report adopted, on condition that the owners of the property consent.

Fifth—Notice of intention to establish grade of Olive street between Temple and Courthouse streets. Adopted and ordered published.

Sixth—Recommendation that Superintendent of Streets repair Second street from Spring to Olive where street has been accepted by the city, and notify property holders to do it elsewhere. So ordered.

Seventh—That Superintendent of Streets notify property owners on Kip and Ingraham streets to stop grading. So ordered.

PETITIONS.

Of Bicknell & White asking to be released from further obligation in the matter of a suit prosecuted in 1884, to be entered by the city against the Los Angeles City Water Company. Finance Committee.

Of George S. Walker, for leave to move a house from Mechanics' Mill to Griffin avenue. Board of Public Works, with power to act.

Of James Pattison for leave to move a frame building from Fifth street to Fort Hill to tract. Board of Public Works, with power to act.

Of the Anti-Chinese Union demanding that the Chinese be removed beyond the corporate limits of the city, under Article XIX, section 4, of the Constitution of California. One thousand two hundred and seventy-one signers had been obtained to this document, including a large number of leading business houses. Mr. Brown moved to file. Carried.

Mr. Day moved that the following petitions be referred by the clerk to the appropriate committees. So ordered.

Of A. McCartney, for return of $11.81, overpaid taxes.

Of A. M. Foster, for leave to put in water gate in zanja 9—E.

Of J. B. Cohn and 19 others, for proper sprinkling of Commercial and Los Angeles streets.

Of M. G. Jones and 18 others, for abatement of nuisance on Rowland street, caused by parties encroaching on said street so it cannot be traveled from Figueroa street west to 6 mile; and asking that lines of Rowland street be defined and obstructions removed.

Of M. D. Johnson and 8 others, for leave to grade Bellevue avenue in front of their properties.

Of J. D. Campbell, by H. T. Hazard, his attorney, setting forth that the Council paid him for city building in warrants which he had to sell to highest bidder at a discount of nearly $500, for which reason he has been unable to pay some of his workmen, who have filed liens on the building. Asking that he be paid $300 deducted by the city from his pay, in consideration whereof he would waive all claim for discount on warrants.

Adjourned at 5:15.

BRIEFS.

Tuesday, July 21.

A $30,000 sanitarium, of Queen Anne architecture, is soon to be erected at Ontario.

Work on the $40,000 building of the University of California is expected to begin again in a few weeks.

The Reading Union, which shows signs of growing prosperity, will hereafter have its office in the Border block, on South Spring street.

Six carloads of ties for the Atlantic & Pacific extension came up from San Pedro yesterday. They go to the Waterman end of the extension.

Lee Bohanan, charged with receiving stolen property, had his examination in Justice Austin's Court yesterday and was held to answer in default of $500 bonds.

Fifteen cars densely crowded went down to Long Beach yesterday morning. Eight hundred and fifty tickets for that resort were sold at the Commercial-street depot.

Mrs. Mary Flores, of Santa Monica, had an examination before Judge Cheney yesterday morning, and was adjudged insane. Captain F. M. Darcy will escort her to Stockton to-morrow.

Judge Slawson learns that the oranges he sent recently, to put a Southern California flavor in the mouth of the President of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, reached their destination sound and safe, and were duly appreciated.

The Sheriff's office is loading the jail-guns for war, and when the Courts again pull the trigger, some one is apt to get hurt. There are a great many prisoners in the county jail, but most of the longest-winded cases have already been disposed of.

Joaquin Marcos was arrested by Officers Stoermer and Rulo, on Upper Main street, at 1:30 a. m. yesterday, on the charge of robbing a Frenchman of his watch and chain. He was held for trial, yesterday, in $200. John Doe, arrested at the same time for battery, was sentenced to five days or $5.

Following are the newly installed officers of Los Angeles Lodge, No. 2639, G. U. O. O. F.: George Brown, N. G.; Abraham Scott, V. G.; E. B. Lane, P. N. G.; Samuel Hazleton, N. F.; J. Thomson, W. T.; George H. Washington, P. S.; H. J. Porter, R. S.; C. W. Collis, Warden; S. C. Pierce, Chaplain; Ed. Morton, L. G.; W. Connor, R. H. S. to N. G.; W. Ballard, L. H. S. to N. G.; H. Thurston, R. H. S. to V. G.; W. H. Harris, L. H. S. to V. G.

Wednesday, July 22.

The new hospital of the Sisters of Charity was dedicated Sunday with appropriate services.

The charges brought in Merrill Lodge, I. O. G. T., by J. R. Levering against W. W. Taylor and I. S. Smith, have been dropped. The curious persistency with which the crooked proceedings found publicity doubtless influenced this move.

County Clerk Dunsmoor certifies that V. M. Whigham, of 234 North Main street, was duly appointed Deputy Coroner February 24th last, and that his oath of office is on file. Deputy Whigham is to be notified, in case of the Coroner's absence, of all deaths requiring official investigation.

Striking it Rich.

John Hall and Alex. Fraser, of this city, and members of Carpenters' Union No. 56, are in a streak of luck. After several months' prospecting, they felt to work on the deserted Casteos mine on Piru creek, Ventura county. A 20-foot uplift brought them to a vein of free-milling gold-bearing ore, six inches to four feet thick. They have an arastra and two-stamp mill, run by water, and from a recent run of twenty-five tons of ore got $506 in gold. Mr. Hall is now in this city.

Water War at Pasadena.

A water war in a small way has raged at Pasadena during the past week. It is stated that, last Monday, the water was shut off from a portion of the settlement for half a day. It is hoped that before long a compromise between the two settlements of Pasadena will be effected, and the wrangling over the water question cease.

TEMPERANCE ADVOCATES.

Award of Prizes to Some Compton Scholars.

The ladies of the Compton Union decided some months ago to offer prizes to the boy and girl in each of the two departments of the local school who would write the best essay on "Effects of Alcohol and Tobacco on the Human System," and also two prizes in the primary department to the ones who would speak the best temperance piece. About eighteen in the lower department and two in the upper department engaged in the contest.

An entertainment was given, separate from the school exercises, at Odd Fellows' Hall. It was a very pleasant affair, with a programme as follows: Prayer, by Rev. T. E. Robinson; singing, the National W. C. T. U.; anthem, by the choir; Remarks by Mr. Wm. Steel, in which he spoke enthusiastically in favor of having temperance taught in the schools; next came the reading of the prize essays and of some good ones that did not get the prize. These were read by Miss Carrie Wood, one of the teachers, and Dr. Millard. The merits of the essays had been decided previously by a committee of five.

There were several pieces spoken by the little ones, and the audience was called upon to decide by a rising vote who should be entitled to the prize. The people unanimously voted in favor of Amelia Longry and King Mealy. Prizes were awarded by Dr. Whaley, one of the judges, to the boy and girl writing the second best essays. Master Strawbridge and Letitia Talbot took them. The prizes given were some nice books; titles, "Thayer's Life of Lincoln," "Garfield's Life," "Eminent Men of the Revolution," "Mrs. Hemans' Poems," etc.

Dr. McFarland had consented to give a talk on the effects of alcohol viewed from a Coroner's observation and a physician's stand-point, but before night he was called away to hold another inquest, probably caused by crime or liquor, or both.

Back from the Mountains.

D. M. Adams, who, with his family, made a several days' jaunt up Switzer trail, Arroyo Seco, returned Tuesday, after a week's absence. Mr. Adams is enchanted with his mountaineering experience, and speaks in the highest praise of the scenery, the timber, the water and the "ozone." He only regrets that he could not stay a month. Messrs. Day and Holmes, two well known citizens of Los Angeles, whom Mr. Adams encountered in the mountains, returned about the same time. Messrs. Stratton and Downer are still in camp. The highest altitude attained by the climbers was 4650 feet above the sea level.

The Switzer trail is the one described by Mrs. Jeanne C. Carr, of Pasadena, in an interesting letter to the TIMES some months ago. Since this gifted lady called the trail into promise it notice it has become a popular place of resort. Several improvements have been made lately, and the trail has been considerably extended. It is about a day's jaunt from Los Angeles to the pinewoods country by easy stages, and the trip back to town may be made in six or eight hours. The wonder is that more people do not go up Switzer trail.

Additional Teachers' Certificates.

The County Board of Examination has granted additional certificates as follows:

To Miss Emily Voss, first grade certificate upon an educational diploma.

To Miss Abbie M. Frater, the same.

To Miss Portia Cowan, first grade certificate on credentials of Los Angeles Branch Normal School.

To Mrs. Mary E. Cowan, the same.

Upon credits obtained in examination and experience in teaching, the Board granted certificates to the following:

Miss Clara Brown, first grade.

L. Adele Phillips, second grade.

Camillus J. Reed, second grade.

Pearl Kent, second grade.

Li bie Hawkins, second grade.

Mrs. E. B. Strong, second grade.

Miss Sallie Reese was recommended to the State Board of Education for an educational diploma.

The Evening Union.

The Evening Union, the only labor daily on the coast, is getting on its sealegs. It is no longer Tom, Dick and Jarry's paper, but is now run by three Union men, under the auspices and with the support of the united labor organizations. This is the most encouraging sign of permanency and permanency. The paper has pleasant offices in the Hooker block, and is getting matters into good shape. The management remains the same. The Union came out last week in a handsome six-column proportions, and decidedly newsy. The Evening Distress is "previous" in writing the obituary of the Union, which is exceedingly "live corpse," and threatens to become very troublesome to its would-be undertakers.

In For Repairs.

John Peterson, one of the pair who recently discovered the wonderfully rich gold mine in the Cargo Muchacho District near Ogilby station on the S. P. R. R., is at the White House, corner of Commercial and Los Angeles streets, undergoing repairs. He was just getting his arastra to work when the horse kicked him, so terribly mangling the left side of his face that he will probably lose the eye. He is an old chum of Officer McMahon.

Attempt to Burn a Warehouse at San Gabriel.

Wednesday, July 22.]

Day before yesterday an attempt was made to burn the Schumacher Warehouse, at San Gabriel. Smoke was seen issuing from the building early in the morning, by a butcher, but the flames were put out before they had gained much headway. The warehouse has between four and five thousand sacks of grain in it. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary.

NEIGHBORHOOD NOTES.

Santa Ana Valley.

Standard, July 18.]

Nineteen cars of fat cattle were shipped north this week from the San Margarita ranch.

W. C. Robinson is building a fine large frame dwelling-house on his place about a mile north of town.

W. H. Spurgeon received returns on Thursday from his last shipment of oranges to Denver. They netted him $1.44 per box over and above freight and commission.

Mrs D. M. Harwood, formerly a prominent lady of Orange, wrote a magnificent poem for the Fourth of July celebration at Calico. The Calico Print published it in full, and to be very candid the poem is a fine literary production.

Exports from Santa Ana depot for the week ending July 17th, 1885: One hundred and one boxes oranges, 6730 lbs.; 38 boxes lemons, 2730 lbs.; 91 cases eggs, 5460 lbs.; 24 cases honey, 3250 lbs.; 4 coops fowls, 640 lbs.; 19 cars cattle, 380,000 lbs.; general merchandise, 4650 lbs.

Herald, July 18.]

We learn from one of the largest orange growers in the valley that the coming season's crop gives promise of being, both as to quantity and quality, one of the best ever known. The prospect is also good for remunerative prices.

The late hot spell has been highly beneficial to the cornfields on the damp lands in the Newport district. If nothing occurs to injure the crop it will be one of the largest, if not the largest corn crop ever known in this Egypt of California.

A meeting of orange growers and shippers was held Wednesday, in the Water Office at Orange, to hear the report of Mr. C. F. Mansur, who went East in the interest of a number of orchardists. It was a very satisfactory meeting to all concerned. One dollar net per box was the price obtained for the most of the oranges. Some sold a little higher. Mr. Mansur said the oranges of this valley have gained high favor in the West.

Observations Among the Manufactories of the Atlantic States.

THE EFFECTS OF OVER-PRODUCTION

The Outpouring from New York City on the Fourth of July—Steamer Travel on the Hudson.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

YONKERS, N. Y., July 6, 1885.—I wrote you from Portland, or Old Orchard Beach, Maine's great seaside resort, where we were stopping with the G. A. R. at the Fisk Hotel. From there to Boston we had intended to take a steamer, but the probability of having some rough weather and a lurking remembrance of the habitual antagonism between the inside and outside wherever we have ventured out on the ocean's waves, (and as a rule the inside has to give up) decided us in favor of a land route. The hurried getting together our effects and a four-bit retainer to the porter, inaugurated us with bag and baggage ready for Boston when the whistle sounded down brakes and the conductor sang out all aboard for Boston. Close observation on either side of the railroad revealed to us an unprecedentedly active industrial country, and just as we were wondering how a white man could get a living, our train stopped, and we saw some large manufacturing establishments four and five story brick buildings. This settled the question, for we ourselves were direct contributors for their support. Everything we had on our persons was products of some of these factories.

Passing on and through Lawrence one sees at a glance what tells the story for them—their immense cotton manufactures. After all the inquisitive mind fails to get an answer to the question why all these factories are located in so poor a country. Why has not the Niagara Falls been utilized? There is water power enough there to drive all the machinery in the State of Massachusetts.

As we approach Boston more factories are seen in every direction, but they all have been too ambitious. A great blessing in disguise for the country, is the strikes in some of these great manufactories; it stops production and gives a chance to work off some of the surplus goods. To-day I was up to the great carpet factory here. For three months the three thousand employees have been on a strike. A day or two since an arrangement was made whereby to-day the works open and resume business again. This is the largest factory of the kind in the world. More brick are piled up here for a single carpet than I ever saw before. The works are simply immense. These men have also built up a small city of their own for their employees. This is but one of the large manufactories here.

I spent one day through the shops of Newark, N. J. Here is a city of 160,000 people, and nearly all produce goods for the home market. I visited the new and large works of the Edison Incandescent Light Company, located here. It would seem they could, in a short time, get out machines in force at the rate they have said it of. A day spent on one of these steamers from Albany to New York, in June, is simply a feast, for nature has done her very best here in all that is grand and beautiful. A gifted traveler, with a soul to appreciate nature's works and a ready pen to describe, lets fall his pen and is lost in admiration. Five o'clock p. m. we landed at Yonkers in view of the grandest views on the Hudson, meeting our friends who had received our telegram in advance. A meeting after thirteen years' separation by parents and children, brothers and sisters, is better imagined than described. It was realizing what had long been anticipated. I have now spent two weeks in and about New York on business most of the time among manufacturers, which has enabled me to form a pretty good idea of what has caused the dull times. In my opinion it is just simply over-production. Men may write all the long articles, and try to give it some other name, and search out some other cause, but it reverts right back to those two words, over-production. I have had occasion to talk with a great many of the most intelligent manufacturers, and every one concedes this fact, and that they all have been too ambitious. A great blessing in disguise for the country, is the strikes in some of these great manufactories; it stops production and gives a chance to work off some of the surplus goods. To-day I was up to the great carpet factory here. For three months the three thousand employees have been on a strike

Farm and Range.

To the Officers and Members of the Los Angeles County Pomological Society:—In the past two months I have received a large number of letters from almost every section of the county where citrus trees are grown, asking as to the strength of solutions that the orange tree can bear upon its foliage and fruit without injury. The orange tree is known to be the hardiest of the citrus family. The strength of solution that it can bear was not known until recently. The experiments that I have made in the past two years have established the fact that, while the orange tree itself is hardy, strong solutions containing concentrated parts cannot be applied to its foliage and fruit at any time of the year without injury to both. During the months of March and April this tree is making its first growth, and is blooming.

HOW THE FRUIT IS DESTROYED.

If a solution consisting of concentrated parts strong enough to kill red or white scale is applied to it during these months, the spraying will wash away the pollen of the blossoms. Therefore, it is absurd to say that the solutions used in winter can be applied to orange trees in spring without injury to the young fruit. If a weak solution is applied during March and April the fruit will be injured and the insects upon the tree will remain unkilled. Three or four days after the solution is applied the blossom will begin to drop. The cause of this is that the solution has washed away the pollen of the blossoms, and the concentrated parts of the solution as they are about to dry collect around and eat into the calyx of the young fruit, causing it to lose its hold and drop to the ground. If strong solutions are applied in these spring months not only blossoms will drop but the shoots upon which the blossoms are fastened will also suffer. These shoots are very tender and brittle, and with but two joints, one where they sprout from the limb and the other where they connect with the blossom. When sprayed, the concentrated parts of the solution collect about the former or base bud in drying and, as the incrustation remains there, it eats into the root of this bud causing it to drop. Only a few seconds are required for the concentrated parts to do their work. However, the buds and blossoms do not drop off immediately nor can any apparent effect be seen for several days. Sometimes it is as much as a full week before they are noticed to be changing in color, after which they begin to drop. If they are closely watched it will be seen that the blossoms first drop off at the joint, where they are connected with the buds. Sometimes they fall two days after spraying, but it is generally in four days. The bud remains on the tree two or more days longer, until the leaves of these buds begin to drop, and the bud then follows them. If the solution be strong enough to cause the outside leaves to drop off, death to the young shoots is sure to follow.

A PROPER SOLUTION.

The greatest of care should be taken that the solution contains the proper ingredients, and that it be properly applied. Remember that while an impracticable remedy may be cheap, the result is disastrous. In this event, you will find your trees damaged, and the insects upon them unkilled. To accomplish the desired purpose, the solution should be strong enough to kill the insects, and not injure the foliage and fruit. In the past four years orange growers have damaged their crops considerably, and many have rendered their fruit unmarketable by using solutions that contained carbonate and caustic soda, and too much greasy matter. Cheap whale oil soaps contain caustic and carbonate of soda. This chemical is used because it is cheap, and the soap is thus easy of manufacture. Growers have been led to believe that by increasing the whale oil soap the solution would be stronger, which is the case; but it also increases the grease in the solution. As this greasy solution has been many times applied to the trees when the fruit was young and tender, the fruit has been stained so that its market value has been greatly reduced. The greasy matter alone does not stain, but when it is applied to the fruit it remains and dries there, keeping with it the concentrated parts of the solution. The chemical eat into the fruit, causing the discolorations, which injure its appearance and reduce its market value. If the solution needs to be stronger,

POTASH ALONE SHOULD BE ADDED

and not soap. If the potash alone is added the expense is less and the result will be satisfactory. For instance, if a soap be made with six per cent. potash and used at one-half pound to the gallon of water, 100 gallons of solution would contain three pounds of potash, which would not be enough for the white scale, and in order to make the solution contain six per cent. of potash, it would be necessary to add 50 pounds of soap, in which there is but three pounds of potash, and by so doing you would also add 47 pounds of greasy matter. So much greasy matter is of no use, and only adds to the expense. If three pounds of potash is added to the solution you do away with a great deal of the expense, while the strength of the solution is the same, and the result will be more satisfactory. Potash is the chief ingredient and should be used as such.

COAL OIL IS NEXT.

The latter should be used as one of the ingredients, and not as the chief one. It should be used to penetrate the shells and cotton coverings of insects, and to carry with it the potash in the solution. Coal oil without potash is of very little use. The greatest of care should be taken in using coal oil upon citrus trees. Never use coal oil without first emulsifying it. The working hands are generally careless, and the emulsion in many cases is not properly made. In this event the coal oil will rise to the surface of the water after it is left standing. The pump will at first take up the soap and at last the pure coal oil will be pumped upon the trees, causing great injury to them.

AN EMULSION.

Many experiments have been made in the past two years to see if a perfect emulsion could be made that would not rise to the surface when left standing. I have succeeded in preparing such an emulsion in a very simple and cheap way. The method consists in mixing the hot soap and coal oil in a churn and churning together for about five minutes, when the mixture will turn to a thick cream or butter. It should then be cooled or reduced by the addition of cold water. The water must be applied a little at a time, so that the oil does not separate but is held in suspension. If a great quantity of cold water is added the coal oil will rise to the surface. When the water is added, churn well and keep churning until the mixture becomes thin. The emulsion should be applied cold, for if it is heated the coal oil will evaporate. The soap should be made of nothing but whale, seal or fish oils, and should never contain neatsfoot or cotton-seed oil, as they are difficult to dissolve after once made into a soap.

SULPHUR

has been very strongly recommended in addition to the many other ingredients used. It is claimed that the steam from the sulphur kills fungus and keeps away insects. Let me say to you that sulphur is a worthless article in killing scale insects of any kind. It is not an insecticide. The stench from it is of no value, as it only remains on the tree a day or two. Sulphur only adds to the expense, and while it must be admitted that it has a tendency to cleanse the tree from smut, it will not keep away the white scale. Supposing that it did, where would the scales go? Would not they infest trees non-sulphured? The main object is to kill the insects wherever they may be, and not allow them to go away from an infested tree to an uninfested one.

As for smut, kill the insects and you will have no smut. Of all the orchards that have been sprayed in the past two years, the cleanest fruit has come from orchards where no sulphur was used. Of the many experiments which have been made in the past two years the best results were obtained by the use of potash as the chief ingredient, coal oil the second and fish oil the third. These three should be properly combined and properly applied.

SALT

has been strongly recommended, to be applied to orange trees infested with the white scale, so that the foliage be taken off and the tree afterwards sprayed. I wish to say to you, beware of this recommendation. Salt is not an insecticide, and will only cause the leaves to drop. They will be blown about by the wind over your entire orchard. The insects upon the leaves will not die, but will desert the leaves as soon as they find no more nourishment in them. The bugs will crawl until they find a weed or a tree to fasten themselves upon and lodge for future work. So by this method you will find that, instead of checking their spread, you have scattered them to uninfested trees where they were before unknown. Salt should never be applied to trees infested with contageous pests. The remedy is cheap and easily used, but the result proves to be worse than the disease.

A HARD CUSTOMER.

Many growers regard these scale insects as trifles. Only when the scales are discovered in their own orchards, or when their orchards are ruined, do they discover the danger; only then do they ask why something has not been done, and they complain that entomologists have not invented something to kill the scales at one blow, without the necessity of accomplishing it by hard, tedious work.

In conclusion, I wish to say that I have employed a chemist, and we are steadily at work experimenting. We expect to produce a remedy that will kill the insects as it comes in contact with them, and to be effective as it remains on the trees, until the winter rains wash it off.

Nothing but war will avail now—war to the death on these insidious and ever recruiting armies of insect enemies, which are working destruction to so many citrus orchards throughout the county. This white scale, which has only made itself felt in the past two or three years, is as deadly to our fruit interests as the phylloxera has been to the wine making of France.

HORTICULTURE.

Fruit Shipments East—Letter from Hixson, Justi & Co., Chicago.

At the late session of the State Horticultural Society, the Secretary read selections from communications from Hixson, Justi & Co., of Chicago, proposing a joint stock fruit-shipping company among growers. The following letter was received too late to read at the meeting:

To the Secretary of the State Horticultural Society: As the subject for discussion by your Society this month is, "The shipment of fruit by growers," and as we feel a deep interest in all that concerns California and her fruit interests, we think a few remarks giving our impressions, gained by our observations here this Spring, would not be out of place. In the first place, it has been a recognized fact for some time past that the immense amount of fruit raised in California had far overtaxed the capacity of our local markets, and the disposal of the surplus becomes a matter of serious consideration for the growers. Of course there will continue to be a large amount canned and dried, but in order to relieve the market of the surplus during the rush of the season, there must be a large amount shipped "green." The next question is, is it better for the growers to study the shipping business thoroughly and intelligently, and where one has enough of his own, ship that individually, and where a number of small ones are near together combine, and by joining forces load their cars, stock one being bore a part of expense; or is it better to sit back and wait for the Eastern speculators to come in and buy just what they know they can realize large profits on, and let the balance go to waste?

After our arrival here last spring when we began talkaug of California fruits coming here in "large quantities," the old conservative merchants of the street, as well as the general run of people we met, pooh-poohed the idea, saying: "You can sell a small amount of your California fruits, but only a limited amount, for they are so high no one but a bank president or a relative of Vanderbilt can use them. Some of the middle classes may buy them once as a curiosity."

It seemed like a tale from the Arabian Nights when we told them that California cherries, the like of which they had never seen before, could be sold here at 12½ to 15 cents per pound and still leave the grower a fair profit, and when one solid car of cherries arrived here from Hayward's it excited more talk and comment than anything from the State since the first car of pears. Since the first introduction of California fruits on this side of the Mississippi river, the main idea has been to only have them come in limited quantities and to keep prices up to a fancy figure, and to hold out the idea to the California growers that risks of shipment were so great that they had better sell at home at any price than to chance shipping on their own accounts. As the rule of our present world is "Look out for No. 1; never mind the rest" the argument was a specious one, and the growers readily accepted it. The experience we have had with cherries, peaches, plums and apricots has proven the fact that, with the exercise of a little judgment, fruit can be shipped here by passenger train in four and one-half days' time with but little more risk than to San Francisco.

There is one thing, however, that must be kept constantly in mind (and those of your members who have visited the World's Fair at New Orleans and the Eastern country this spring, will remember), and that is, the fruit-growers on this side and the importers of foreign fruits, recognize in California the most formidable competitor that has yet appeared in the field. With that fact in view, it behooves our growers to use extra pains in selecting and packing their fruits, so as to sustain our reputation for good fruits, well handled. There must be no Chinese packing or false topping off if we wish to hold the market.

Chicago to-day is the main distributing point for California fruits, and even right here in this city nine-tenths of the people do not know what California fruit is, except from hearsay, and they probably never will if the old course is pursued; that is, selling to the speculators, who would rather sell 100 boxes at 50 per cent profit than 500 boxes at 10 per cent profit.

When we think of the wonderful producing capacity of our glorious State, as compared with the small population, and then look at a place like this with ten times the population within a radius of 100 miles, and nearly all consumers, not producers, it is time some organized effort was made by our growers to reap the benefits of this trade.

Our Horticultural Society has done a great deal for the fruit interests of our State, but to our minds they have touched on no topic that is of more immediate importance than the one now under discussion. By systematic advertising and pushing, and the hearty co-operation of the leading growers, California oranges have been forced to the front this season, and we have made a name for them and created a demand that by next season will result in an immense business for the citrus fruit raisers of our State Our raisin and dried fruit shippers first showed their ability to forward goods to this market, and this season have developed the fact that orange men could ship here as safely as to San Francisco, and reap the benefit of a market twenty or thirty times larger than the local market, and there is no reason why our growers of deciduous fruits should not be able to do the same thing.

We will be pleased to correspond with any of them individually, and to furnish every information in our power to aid in developing the fruit trade of "our glorious California."—HIXSON, JUSTI & CO., 99 South Water street, Chicago.

A COMMITTEE TO GATHER FACTS.

Dr. Gibbons said he thought it would be a good idea to keep in a permanent form all the important facts concerning the shipping of fruit East for future reference. A motion was made and carried that a committee of from three to five be appointed by the chairman for that purpose. As a great deal will be learned about the subject during the next three months, the chairman was directed to use his own judgment regarding the time of appointment.

The meeting adjourned at the usual hour, after selecting as the subject of the next meeting, "Co-operation in regard to Fruit Raising and Shipping."

LIVE STOCK.

A correspondent of the Western Rural says that, to prevent fever and retention of after-birth in cows after calving, allow the calf to suck what it wants, and then draw the rest of the milk and give it to the cow to drink. Nine out of ten cows will drink it eagerly. It is slightly loosening to the bowels, and also seems to quiet or prevent inward fever. If the cow is milked in advance of calving it is well to give the cow the milk to prepare her for that event. "I have followed this plan for the last twelve or fifteen years, and have never lost a cow during that time from either of the above causes, nor have I had a cow learn to suck herself from drinking the milk. If the supply of milk in heifers is not enough for the calf and mother, give the cow two quarts of flax-seed gruel per day."

The following terse valuation of cattle recently appeared in the columns of the Texas Live Stock Journal: "For quality, the Polled Angus; for early maturity and size, the Shorthorn; for grass beef, the Hereford; for general utility, the Devon; for butter, the Jersey; for milk, the Holstein; for cheese, Ayrshire; for cold, the Galloway; for heat, Brama; and for starvation, the Texas."

THE DAIRY.

Col. Colman, the new commissioner of agriculture, is disposed to fulfil the popular proverb, and let every citizan know precisely "on which side his bread is buttered." He has established a "Dairy Division" which he has placed under the direction of a gentleman of good sense and practical ability, and in due time we shall doubtless have some interesting statistics about this important product, of which, so the last census informs us, over 806,000,000 pounds were manufactured in 1880. The greater portion of this enormous supply is consumed in this country.

We never expected to hear of an oleomargarine company, which could buy grease for six or eight cents a pou d and transform it into imitation butter and sell it at fifteen to six teen cents a pound, going into the hands of a receiver. But it is a fact that the Commercial Manufacturing Company, of New York city, which deals in oleomargarine, has actually failed. Its consolidated capital stock, some time ago, was $10,000,000, but we understand it has failed with debts of less than $200,000. It would be good news for the dairymen, as well as for the unsuspecting public, if all the oleomargarine concerns should go out of business.

Historical Butter.

Ben: Perley Poore.]

The oldest mention of butter (and even that is an obscure one) is found in Herodotus, who says the Scythians "stir the milk of their mares, and separate that which rises to the surface, and they consider it more delicious than that which remains below it." This perhaps goes no farther than cream, but Hippocrates, who wrote 400 years before Christ, and was almost contemporary with Herodotus, writes of cream that when it is violently agitated "the fat part, which is light, rises to the surface and becomes butter. The heavy and thick part, which remains below, is kneaded and dried, and is known by the name of hippace. The whey or scum remains in the middle." Here we have butter and cheese satisfactorily made at least 2000 years ago. But it does not appear from Hippocrates, nor, indeed, from any of the ancient writers who mention it, that butter was ever used as an article of ordinary food. That learned Greek physician speaks of its emollient qualities, and prescribes it externally as a medicine. Strabo says that the Lusitanians used butter instead of oil; and Aetian mentions that the East Indians anointed the wounds of their elephants with butter. Galen writes that "in cold countries, which do not produce oil, butter is used in the baths." Pliny recommends it to be rubbed over children's gums in teething, and also for ulcers in the mouth. Plutarch tells of a Spartan lady who smelled strongly of butter, by which it seems to have been used as a perfume or ointment. It is never mentioned by any Greek or Roman writer as used in cookery or at the table.

POULTRY.

Avoid stuffing to fatness the aged breeders. They need good food, but much less of it than while breeding. They only require what is necessary in a light diet to keep them in good heart. Naturally all the Asiatic breeds incline to fatten internally in hot weather. This must be avoided; while it is desirable that they should retain their flesh well, yet they do not need to be fattened. Do not be in a hurry to crowd the young chicks of the heavier breeds on to the roosts. Let them stay in the nursing coops until they outgrow them. These coops may be moved to a fresh spot every night, and they will always be fresh and clean inside.

Where convenient, chickens should be allowed full liberty to run about at this season. They grow better thus and will thrive much better than it is possible when penned up. During the summer, when fowls must be shut up on account of their roving and mischief-doing, much of the ill effect of their imprisonment may be avoided if they are let out and watched for a short time at evening.

Vermin upon the wood work of the fowl-house, the walls, perches and nest boxes are best killed by an application of whitewash, which not only destroys these pests but at the same time leaves the premises light, sweet and clean. Carbolic acid is sometimes combined with the whitewash in the proportion of an ounce to a gallon of lime and water. Whitewash pure and simple is, however, amply sufficient.

Many eggs left in a hen's nest tend to induce setting. Where a large number of fowls is kept, a two story fowl house is excellent. Hens should be killed when three years old, as they lay a less number of eggs every year after the third.

Rake the lawn mowings every time the grass is cut, and shower the short, juicy, fresh blades over the floors or ground of your pens, where the poultry may be confined. Every morsel will be eagerly devoured by the chickens.

A healthy fowl will drink fifteen to twenty times a day, and in a close coop, or in hot weather, still oftener. Therefore, when fowls are shipped, all possible pains should be taken to properly fasten water cups in their cages.

QUERIES.

And Answers to Our Correspondents.

SUMMER PRUNING THE APRICOT.

YOUNG ORCHARDIST, Pomona: It has come to be quite a common practice among apricot growers to prune their trees heavily as soon as the crop is gathered. This work is now in progress in many orchards in Los Angeles county. No effort is made at this time to thin out the branches, but the ends simply are cut back, forming a compact, rounded head. The theory is, that by the shortening-in process before the trees make their final growth of the summer the fruit-spurs on the branches are increased in number. As these spurs bear the fruit, the productive capacity of the tree for next season is supposed to be correspondingly enlarged. Some of our orchardists have followed this method for a number of years, and they pronounce in its favor.

BLACKBERRIES AND RASPBERRIES.

SMALL FRUIT GROWER: At this season, when the blackberry and raspberry crops are about finished, it is the "nick of time" to look out for next season's yield. The few new canes which have been spared should be carefully staked up. If you have pinched back the tops properly, the canes have made a sturdy growth and have thrown out a great number of axillary branches. You may now pinch back the ends of some of these branches with great advantage. The idea is to keep the stock upright and sturdy, that it may bear its load of berries next year without bending or breaking. The axillary branches carry the fruit. The more and the stronger these branches, the greater the yield. Later in the season the old canes which bore this season's crop should be cut away.

NASAL GLEET.

JOCKEY, Los ANGELES: If this disease has gone very far, killing the horse is the safest remedy. In the early stages it may be helped a good deal and sometimes cured by syringing the nasal passages. Dr. Manning recommends a mixture of one ounce bayberry bark in one pint of boiling water; when cool, strain through a close linen or flannel cloth; inject daily. He advises, also, to give daily in the feed one ounce of the following: One part each of grains of paradise, white mustard seed, powdered sulphur, powdered charcoal. Give occasionally, in gruel, one-half ounce balsam copaiba, two drachms sweet spirits of nitre. Keep the animal warm, and feed soft, nutritious food.

(Partly Phonetic.)

The first is a spot or a stain;
Sometimes in the plural 'tis heard,
Referring to lenses in frames;
'Tis then an unauthorized word.
The second you ought to know best,
To you it has always referred;
So no more I'll say about that,
But simply pass on to the third.
No scholar should e'er be the third;
The teacher it greatly annoys,
Now please bear this fact in your mind,
And never be third, girls and boys.

THE KNIFE MUST GO.

DISEASES OF THE RECTUM

Female and Chronic Diseases a Specialty.

Rectal Ulcers, Hemorrhoids or Piles of Fistula, Fistula in Ano, Prurigo or so-called Itching Piles, Polypus Recti Successfully Treated by Dr. A. W. Brinkerhoff's System of Rectal Treatment.

SURE AND PAINLESS SYSTEM FOR the cure of Hemorrhoids without cutting, ligating, burning, taking medicine or doing time. Cures guaranteed in every case. Over 30,000 operations for piles and not one death. The only knife, ligature or caustic used on the rectal carbolic treatment are the surgeon in use to-day for the treatment of Piles.

We can treat you without using any of these but prefer them, and will always be pleased to do so.

Thousands die annually from what is called CONSUMPTION, heart, liver, kidney diseases, etc., while the cause is unknown, although there should be light. We ask the sick and suffering to investigate the cause of the [illegible] of Rectal Diseases, which is the [illegible] urinary, heart, lung, stomach, liver and head troubles; rheumatism, benumbed limbs and [illegible] to malaria, and they will find RECTAL ULCERATION from their [illegible] the foe to human health and happiness.

The existence of Rectal Ulcers is as old as the race. Physicians from time to time have written of them, but have been unable to SEE THEM. We have instruments by which the rectum can be clearly and intelligently examined, and without pain or danger to the patient. The invention of these instruments by Dr. A. W. BRINKERHOFF, of Upper Sandusky, Ohio, opened wide the doors of the successful treatment of this malady, and has established the fact, after examining more than twenty thousand patients suffering with all the various complaints found in this class of diseases, that Rectal Ulceration existed in every case. With our system of treatment we cure the patient, if not too far advanced, and the train of symptoms and misery disappear.

Come and investigate! Our practice is not experimental, our labor not given work. We know what we see. Charges reasonable.

Consultation and Examination Free

BANNING COLONY.

LOCATION:

Banning, San Bernardino County California, on

Line of Southern Pacific Railroad, miles directly East of Los Angeles Railroad running directly through center of tract.

ALTITUDE:

2500 feet above sea level.

WATER:

Absolutely pure, clear and soft, and abundance of it.

ATMOSPHERE:

As near perfect as can be found on the globe.

SOIL.

Rich, deep and adapted to the production of the peach, apricot, pear, apple, nectarine, plum, prune, raspberry, blackberry, strawberry, gooseberry, cherry, and the entire grape family, both raisin and wine.

Depot, express and postoffice, store, meat market, good school, fine Union church and the best country hotel on the Pacific coast.

The above are some of the many advantages this colony possesses, and the managers are all reliable business men, and now offer land in this colony for sale to actual settlers, and to those who come to California seeking homes, as well as to those already in the State. We say come and examine land and water, and we will guarantee satisfaction. Stop at the Bryant House and ask for the manager of the Banning Land Company. For terms, etc., address,
